Antitrust Stalemate Is Broken

WASHINGTON (AP) — A compromise agreement to break the Senate stalemate over an antitrust-enforcement bill was reached late Thursday.

It makes major concessions to the bill's opponents, who waged a fierce fight even after the Senate voted a week ago for debate-limiting cloture.

A key feature of the compromise would permit triple-damages suits by state attorneys general on behalf consumers only in price-fixing and patent-fraud cases.

The bill had permitted such class-action type suits for other antitrust violations, such as division of markets, limiting production and similar anti-competitive practices.

The compromise also bars a state from employing private counsel to bring suits under a fee contract that would entitled counsel to a percentage of the damages assessed.

Another part of the compromise would eliminate most of a section of the bill designed to make it easier for the Justice Department to block large corporate mergers.

The compromise retains a requirement that corporations with assets or annual sales of $100 million or more must give the government 30 days' advance notice of plans to merge with a company with assets or sales of $10 million or more.

But deleted from the bill by the compromise are provisions that would have given the government new powers to go into court to hold up a merger until its legality could be finally litigated.

The compromise provides, however, that the court shall give expedited handling to government requests to stay a merger.

Earlier, the Senate had voted, 49 to 36, to bar as a dilatory tactic a motion of Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., to postpone further consideration of the bill indefinitely. Allen had said his motion would clear the way for considering a compromise.

After the compromise was introduced, Allen said it showed the value of extended debate and added, "I think we've got a pretty fair bill now."

The compromise left untouched another part of the bill arming the Justice Department with new authority to conduct antitrust investigations.

This section, urged by President Ford, would permit the Justice Department to use a sort of civil subpoena to obtain information from persons other than the target of an antitrust investigation, such as customers, suppliers or competitors of a suspect company.

Even before the compromise was worked out, a number of amendments modifying the bill had been adopted and were left in the compromise.

One amendment provided that state damage suits on behalf of consumers could only be for future violations, instead of being retroactive.

S. Viets To Try 'U.S. Lackeys'

Bangkok, Thailand (UPI) — South Vietnam will hold war crimes trials against "lackeys for the U.S. imperialists" and other past and present enemies of the Communist government, official Vietnamese reports said Thursday.

Broadcasts by Hanoi and Saigon radios and the two official press agencies of Vietnam spoke for the first time of retaliation.

A lengthy police statement signed by South Vietnamese President Huynh Tan Phat on May 25 said those convicted "will be severely punished." It did not say whether punishment will include death sentences.

The announcement said most former soldiers and civil servants of pro-American governments would be freed, although many will be subjected to surveillance for six months and more.

The 40,000 officers and senior civil servants still in re-education camps in South Vietnam will be there for at least three years, it said.

Describing those who will be tried, the statement said

"These people deliberately served as lackeys for the U.S. imperialists, opposed the revolution and relied on the power of reactionaries to exploit, plunder, oppress and kill people and enrich themselves on the blood and bones of our compatriots."

The statement gave no indication when or how many persons will be tried, but said they will include

— Those in re-education camps who served with pro-American governments and who do not repent their anti-Communist feelings

— Former Communist troops and officials who defected to the Americans or the Saigon government under the Chieu Hoi (open arms defector) program

— Those who committed many crimes against the people and dangerous chief evildoers who incurred many blood debts

— Persons still involved in the anti-Communist resistance

— Anti-Communist refugees who fled in the American evacuation and who return to Vietnam

The last category apparently includes at least some of the 1,531 Vietnamese who returned to Vietnam last October from Guam. It excludes "those who went astray (or) became panicky, left Vietnam and who now wish to return

Also slated to undergo "appropriate punishment" are Vietnamese who are caught trying to flee the Communist nation

Peery Trial Hearing Set

By LYNN ZERSCHLING

Lancaster District Judge Dale Fahrnbruch Thursday set a hearing Friday morning to receive further evidence on Wesley Peery's request for a new trial.

Attorneys for Peery asked Fahrnbruch to declare a new trial Wednesday on the grounds that the entire jury was prejudiced in the case

Peery, a former maintenance man at Nebraska Wesleyan University, was convicted of the June, 1975, murder of Marianne Mitzner. Mrs. Mitzner, a Havelock coin shop dealer, was killed in the shop and a number of rare coins were stolen

Defense attorney Stanley Cohen said new evidence indicates the entire jury was aware of the reasons why one of the jurors asked to be excused in the case. Mary Ann Cecava was removed from jury April 21

Reportedly, Mrs. Cecava became convinced that she had seen one of the stolen coins and felt she would be prejudiced for that reason

On Thursday an affidavit was filed in district court by another juror, Deborah Hunt, who said that another juror, Joe Bruno, told jurors about Mrs. Cecava's concerns.

According to Ms. Hunt, Mrs. Cecava "approached Bruno on the street and asked him what he would do if he came across a coin like the one they were discussing at the trial."

Bruno said Mrs. Cecava said her children used coins for lunch money. She said she believed she had come across one of the stolen coins. Bruno told Mrs. Cecava she should report her concerns to the bailiff, which she did, according to Ms. Hunt.

Bruno then told the rest of the jurors what had happened

Cohen told the court Wednesday that this information constituted grounds for a new trial

Deputy County Attorney Bob Gibson said no showing had been made as to what influence that incident may have had on the jury

PSC Amends Voting Procedure, Skirts Attendance Issue

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The State Public Service Commission approved a new policy Thursday imposing more stringent voting requirements on itself, but did not include a mandatory attendance provision patterned after legislative rules.

The policy declares that for the PSC to conduct business, three of the five commissioners must be present. Action on all items will require at least a majority of three yes or no votes, instead of just a majority of those present.

The vote was 4-1 on Rule 36, proposed by Jack Romans of Ord. Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont voted no, after he attempted to amend the policy to include the mandatory attendance rule which died for lack of a second.

That amendment would have required commissioners to attend all regularly scheduled PSC meetings, unless excused by a majority. An enforcement would have located an absent member (at his own expense if necessary), and compelled him to return before business could proceed.

The action followed a formal hearing Thursday, which had been pending since March. During the hearing and before any testimony was requested, Romans moved to approved the policy without the amendment. Lincoln Commissioner Robert Marland seconded it.

Rasmussen objected, however, saying action on any issue during a hearing was "highly irregular." Testimony was then called.

Donald J. Jensen of Millard, who will challenge PSC Chairman Duane Gay of Columbus in the November election, said he favored the rule and amendment. "The very least the voter and taxpayer can expect is attendance at meetings. People today have come to demand this of their elected officials."

If they can't give the people full-time representation then they're "negligent," Jensen said.

Then the usual PSC free-for-all ensued. Romans told Jensen, "That sounds like a campaign speech." Romans and Gay pressed Jensen to know if commissioners' attendance has been negligent. Gay defended his own attendance record

Romans said incorrectly that the governor can oust any commissioner for lack of attendance. Commissioners debated again whether they could take action on Rule 36 during the hearing. Romans insisted they could, but asked for two votes — one then and another later in regular session — to ensure whichever way was correct would be followed

Gay ruled Romans' motion out of order, closed the hearing, took it up again in public session and it won approval. Budget Director Joyce Durand, a candidate for the retiring Marland's PSC seat in November, said later she favored Rule 36 with the mandatory attendance provision included

After the vote, Romans moved to direct the PSC secretary to "get a time clock to keep track of the hours of our employes." That drew silence and he withdrew the motion.

Then referring indirectly but castigatingly to a Lincoln Star story detailing some commissioners' phone industry associations and tax-supported expenses on a recent Missouri junket, Romans harshly questioned Mrs. Durand about an alleged overpayment to a retiring commissioner in January 1975.

Rasmussen asked why Romans hadn't brought up the issue until 18 months later. Mrs. Durand explained she'd informed the State Administrative Services Department and payroll personnel of the overpayment, and together they'd attempted to resolve it. The discrepancy arose because of a pay change connected with office-holding and inauguration dates, she said

Romans publicly ridiculed and badgered Mrs. Durand, in effect calling her a liar about attempts to recover the money, and directed the alleged $485 overpayment to John Swanson to be sought and returned to state coffers

U.S.-Supplied Material May Have Been Used In Blast

WASHINGTON (AP) — India may have used U.S.-supplied nuclear material in producing the plutonium for its nuclear explosion in 1974, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., said Thursday.

Both nations have previously denied that any U.S. material was involved in the explosion.

But Ribicoff, chairman of the Senate Government Operations Committee which is studying the U.S. nuclear export program, said the United States exported 21 tons of "heavy water" to India in 1956.

Then it failed to establish whether India used this same substance in a nuclear reactor that produced the plutonium used to set off the 1974 explosion, he said.

"The United States never publicly acknowledged exporting the heavy water to India. Instead, U.S. officials said only that Canada supplied the research reactor used by India to produce the plutonium for its explosion," Ribicoff said.

"Heavy water," an important ingrediant used in reactors to moderate nuclear chain-reactions, is a rare form of water made up of atoms of hydrogen and oxygen with heavier-than-usual masses.

Ribicoff said there is reason to believe that even though the heavy water was exported to India 20 years ago, that nation may still have had a considerable quantity of it on hand at the time of the nuclear blast.

Ribicoff made public a June 2 State Department letter acknowledging the 1956 shipment to India of the heavy water.

"This agreement stipulated that the heavy water was for use only in India by the government of India in connection with research into and the use of atomic energy for peaceful purposes," Asst. Secretary of State Robert J. McCloskey said in the letter to Ribicoff.

McCloskey added that, "there was no explicit or implicit reference to peaceful nuclear explosions in this agreement; the concept of a peaceful nuclear explosion had not been developed at that time."

McCloskey went on to note that Indian officials in 1974 had assured Secretary of State Henry Kissinger that "the plutonium used in the Indian nuclear explosive had been produced by using 100 per cent Indian material, technology and personnel."

But he added that no effort was made to verify that claim, saying it was impossible to determine whether the heavy water in the Indian reactor in 1974 was of U.S. origin.

The State Department also cited an Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) calculation that heavy water degrades into regular water — useless for nuclear reactor purposes — at a rate of about 10 per cent per year.

ERDA said this indicates total replacement of the U.S. heavy water with heavy water from a small German-built Indian plant most likely occurred at least four years before the explosion.

"There is substantial evidence that ERDA is in error," Ribicoff argued. He cited information provided by the Atomic Energy Control Board of Canada which said the rate of loss of heavy water in the Canadian reactor used by India to produce the plutonium is "virtually nil."

Large Cracks Found In Teton Dam

Washington (UPI) — A six-man panel of engineers will investigate the Teton Dam disaster, the Interior Department announced Thursday after disclosure of a two-year-old report that two "unusually large" cracks were found in a dam abutment during its construction

The Labor Department also announced it was earmarking $750,000 to help hundreds of workers left jobless by last Saturday's dam collapse

The report on potential trouble with the huge earth-filled dam was filed with the Bureau of Reclamation in February 1974, by project engineer Robert Robison. He said excavation of a chanel across the canyon bottom had "disclosed two unusually large fissures" extending into the canyon walls.

It was in that area that major leaks were first detected before the 300-foot-high dam collapsed Saturday, sending a wall of water roaring down the Teton River into Idaho cities and farmlands

The "largest and most extensive open zone" found in one of the rubble-filled cracks was about 10 feet wide at one point and had a vertical clearance of about 40 feet at a point further back, the report said

Reclamation Commissioner Gilbert G. Stamm said the report went to Harold G. Arthur, director of design and construction in the bureau's Denver office, who ordered 15 holes drilled to assess the size of the fissures and concrete poured to fill them

Dess L. Chappelear, chief of the bureau's division of general engineering, said "certainly it was a matter of concern" but that there was no indication the problem was not correctable

Interior Secretary Thomas S. Kleppe said he and Idaho Gov. Cecil D. Andrus had selected the investigative panel from engineers with extensive experience in dam design, dam safety, soil mechanics, foundation engineering and seismicity

Guns Fall Silent In 'De Facto' Truce

Beirut, Lebanon (UPI) — Guns fell silent on Lebanon's four wartronts Thursday but all sides insisted there was no cease-fire. Rightist Christian President Suleiman Franjieh vowed to fight any Arab peacekeeping force with "all our means and resources."

While Arab League officials met in Cairo to begin assembling a joint Arab force of 4,500 men to police a Lebanese cease-fire, Franjieh cabled Mahmoud Riad, the 20-member league general secretary, that its resolutions calling for the force "are not valid and not binding."

"Lebanon will resist with all its means and resources any Arab force that enters its territory against its will and without its prior agreement," said Franjieh, the lame duck president who has refused to resign and allow his Parliament-elected successor, Elias Sarkis, take office.

On the country's four warfronts fighting between leftist and Palestinian guerrillas and the Syrian army subsided as a "de facto truce" took effect.

In southern Beirut sporadic fighting between Palestinian and pro-Syrian Saiqa forces continued along the airport road but other areas of the capital were quiet.

There were unconfirmed reports the first two detachments of Arab peacekeeping forces, one Libyan and one Sudanese, arrived Thursday.

An unconfirmed report from the eastern border said a detachment of Libyan troops arrived from Damascus and corssed into Lebanon at Aasnaa.

The leftist-held National Radio said a detachment of 100 Sudanese soldiers arrived at Beirut Airport. But the same radio said later it was not known where the soldiers were or "if they are in fact Sudanese."

Palestinian, leftist and independent sources all said the key issue holding up a formal cease-fire was the issue of a Syrian withdrawal.

Palestinian and leftist leaders — guerrilla leader Yassir Arafat and leftist leader Kamal Jumblatt — have demanded a total Syrian withdrawal within one week, which Syrian President Hafez Assad has refused, the sources said.

Syria agreed to accept a truce arranged through Libyan, Algerian and Arab League mediation. But Syria accepted the Arab League's plan for a multination peacekeeping force because it allowed Damascus to keep some troops in Lebanon and thus not lose face in what some observers are calling "Syria's Vietnam."

But truce talks between Moslem leftist and Palestinian leaders and Libyan Premier Maj. Abdel Salam Jalloud erupted into angry arguments over whether the more than 12,000 Syrian troops in Lebanon should be forced to leave.

In the end, Jalloud, who had initially proposed a cease-fire leaving the Syrian army in its advanced positions, reversed his stand and called for a total Syrian withdrawal.

"We do not agree with the Syrian military intervention," the Libyan said. "This should stop and the Syrians should pull back immediately."

Syrian tanks and troops remained halted in their tracks on three fronts by the combination of stubborn leftist-Palestinian resistance and diplomatic pressure from other Arab states.

Clashes in the rugged central mountains 12 miles east of the capital, around the ancient southern port of Sidon and on the outskirts of northern Tripoli died down after a day of deadly artillery duels between Syrian and leftist gunners.

In Beirut, rightist and leftist heavy guns thundered overnight in what local newspapers were now calling the "traditional war" — the 14-month battle between Lebanese Moslems and Christians — adding to the 24-hour toll of more than 220 dead and 550 wounded before the guns fell still.

Foreign Investment Is Two-Way Street

BONN, West Germany (AP) - Volkswagen's decision to build a plant in the United States marks a shift in world investment. The days of one-way American investments in the cheap labor markets of Europe are over, German and U.S. officials say.

"German-American investment once was a one-way street, but now it has become two-way," said a German government spokesman.

In 1975, for the first time since World War II, West Germans invested more in the United States than American firms invested in Germany.

U.S. investment in West Germany for the year was $249 million, compared with the $299 million the Germans invested in the United States, the economics ministry said.

One American analyst noted that U.S. investment dropped sharply in the first half of 1975 — and pointed out that talks were then under way on a law giving German workers nearly the same control of large companies that stockholders have.

The so-called Mitbestimmung (codetermination) law was passed late last year.

A German government spokesman said he thought the law had little to do with the decline in U.S. investment.

"That was at the worst of the recession," he said. "Besides, we say to businessmen, 'Which would you rather have, strikes or Mitbestimmung and labor peace.' The Federal Republic has the lowest strike rate in the world."

German and U.S. analysts agreed that there were three basic factors which lured American capital to Europe after the war — favorable exchange rates, low-cost labor and the development of the European Common Market.

American businessmen put their own plants in Europe so they could compete if the Common Market kept out U.S. imports.

But the dollar, which used to buy four marks, has weakened so that it is worth only 2.5 marks. Labor costs in the United States are the same and sometimes less than in Germany, financial experts say.

"Experience shows that when a European operation goes into our area the per-unit cost is 20 to 25 per cent cheaper — because of labor, raw materials, transportation, duties and especially fringe benefits," said Arno Burckhart, who represented the Pittsburgh area here in its apparently successful campaign to get Volkswagen to put its plant in New Stanton, Pa.

States and cities in Germany seek new plants and investment much the way they do in the United States, with negotiated favorable treatment on site location, taxation and other matters.

But the German incentives have been sufficient to attract only a declining amount of new American investment in recent years. The economics ministry says U.S. investment dropped from 1.9 billion marks in 1973 to 1.3 billion marks in 1974 and 623 million marks last year.

The daily Die Welt said in an article Thursday that recent unrest and political shifts to the left in Spain, Italy and Portugal were slowing down U.S. investment in all of Europe.

"That doesn't touch the Federal Republic," said a government spokesman. "Germany is very stable."

The economics ministry said Germans had invested 4.2 billion marks in the United jstates since 1952, while Americans had invested 17.1 billion marks in Germany, just since 1961.

ANGOLA DEMONSTRATORS . . . say 'death to mercenaries.'

Lawyers Plan To Call Psychiatrist

Luanda, Angola (AP) — The lawyers for two American Vietnam veterans who go on trial for their lives Friday for mercenary activities, plan to call Angola's defense minister and a psychiatrist, if one can be found, as surprise defense witnesses.

The 13 foreign mercenaries captured on the losing pro-Western side of the Angolan civil war face a firing squad if convicted by a five-member people's revolutionary tribunal.

The government's demand for the death penalty for all the mercenaries has become a rallying cry on the government radio and press and at a massive public demonstration.

Attorney Robert Cesner of Columbus, Ohio, told reporters he requested Defense Minister Henrique Iko Carriera be called as a defense witness "basically for his knowledge of the general situation that existed at the time they were arrested."

Cesner said he had "no plans to call any Cuban witnesses," but apparently their status at the front would be part of the questioning of the defense minister, one of Angola's guerrilla heroes.

The defense will try to show that Gary Acker, 24, of Sacramento and Daniel Gearhart, 34, of Kensington, Md., never fired their weapons or killed anyone before their capture by advancing Cuban troops a few days after their arrival in Angola.

Gustavo Grillo, a former U.S. Marine from Tom's River, N.J., who claims Argentine nationality, is sharing an Angolan lawyer with three Britons. Attorney Bill Wilson of St. Louis said Grillo declined their services and wanted to assert his Argentine citizenship.

Cesner said Thursday that Gearhart apparently was bilked by the recruiters who brought him out to Africa. The attorney said Gearhart gave more than $1,000 to one of the recruiters to take home to his wife, but she never received the money.

Cesner said he has asked the court for a psychiatrist to examine Acker, the 24-year-old ex-Marine corporal, for an evaluation of the reasons behind his activities. He said Acker received a general discharge from the Marines because of some mental problems.

The 139-count indictment against the mercenaries claims the CIA and the FBI played an underground role in their recruitment.

According to the government-sponsored press, a 51-member international commission on inquiry into mercenary activities indicated a willingness to "repatriate" the prisoners "in a trade" for the leaders of the losing factions still fighting a guerrilla war. The leaders were identified as Holden Roberto, Dr. Jonas Savimbi, Daniel Chapinda and others who fought in the civil war after Angola won its independence.

The inquiry commission which began its work last week came up with a resolution calling on the Organizationn of African Unity, OAU and the United Nations to convene a worldwide body to formulate a basis of international law against mercenary activities.

The American lawyers regard the commission being in Luanda during the trial as proof of the defense contention that there is little international law concerning soldiers of fortune.

Cesner met for several hours Wednesday with Espirio Do Santos, one of the court-appointed Angolan lawyers defending five of the 10 British mercenaries. He said his Angolan colleague confessed to having "some difficulty with the case because of his loyalty to the revolution and his duty to his clients."

House Votes 400-0 To Push Hays Case

Washington (UPI) — The House Thursday voted 400 to 0 to speed investigation of the Wayne Hays sex scandal charges and a Democratic leader predicted Hays would soon quit his key chairmanship.

In its second unanimous vote on the case in two days, the House authorized its Ethics Committee to bypass Hays' Administration Committee in getting funds for its investigation of Elizabeth Ray's allegations.

Miss Ray, a former secretary on an administration subcommittee staff, claims Hays put her on the payroll to serve as his mistress. Under normal procedures, the Administration Committee would approve the Ethics Committee's requests for money to investigate the charge.

Under the procedure approved Thursday, the ethics panel can use a contingency fund for any money it needs for the remainder of the year. The panel must report publicly every 60 days on how much it has withdrawn and spent.

Ethics Chairman John Flynt, D-Ga., said the need to go through the Hays committee had delayed another pending investigation into the leak of a secret House CIA report to reporter Daniel Schorr. He said the Hays probe could have suffered the same delay.

Wednesday, the House voted 388 to 0 to give the payroll and other records of Miss Ray and three other administration staff employes to a federal grand jury investigating the case.

Thursday's vote came as Hays was reported ready to give up his chairmanship of the administration panel at a meeting Monday or Tuesday, and the Democratic Caucus was geared to elect his successor Wednesday.

"My political instincts tell me he will resign," House Democratic leader Thomas O'Neill said Thursday. "Our steering committee is ready to nominate a successor for the caucus to vote on Wednesday."

Hays Takes Overdose Of Pills

BARNESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Rep. Wayne Hays, center of the congressional sex scandal, took an overdose of sleeping pills and lay unconscious in a hospital Thursday night. It was not known whether he had attempted suicide, his doctor said.

Hays, 65, was comatose and in guarded condition, the doctor said. He said the vital signs were stable.

Dr. Richard Phillips, Hays' physician, said it was not known if the overdose was accidental or deliberate. Phillips said it "probably wouldn't have been a problem" if the Congressman's health had been better. Phillips did not elaborate.

"He took an overdose of medication," said Carol Clawson, an aide in Washington. "We don't know how much he took, and we don't know if it was taken inadvertently or not." She said no suicide note had been found.

Gambling In Morgue Probed

New York (UPI) — Authorities are investigating a call girl and gambling operation reportedly operating in the New York City Morgue for at least nine months.

Sources told UPI the night-time revelry came to light when top-ranking officials walked into the doctors lounge at the medical examiner's office in the Bellvue Hospital complex on Manhattan's East Side and discovered a high stakes poker game in progress.

Independent sources, both in and outside the medical examiner's office, said investigators also had uncovered evidence of heavy drinking.

Guns Fall Silent In 'De Facto' Truce

Beirut, Lebanon (UPI) — Guns fell silent on Lebanon's four warfronts Thursday but all sides insisted there was no cease-fire. Rightist Christian President Suleiman Franjieh vowed to fight any Arab peacekeeping force with "all our means and resources."

Reagan Winning Forces Ford Into Political Overtime

By JAMES R. DICKENSON
Washington Star Writer

Los Angeles — For 10 years now, politicians, reporters and just plain citizens, beginning with former California Gov Edmund G (Pat) Brown, have underestimated Ronald Reagan

He thanked them by winning the California governorship twice by huge margins and now he has won the California presidential primary by nearly a 2 1 margin over the incumbent Republican president

And so as a result, he has fought President Ford to a standoff in the primaries and is forcing him into the political equivalent of overtime between now and the Republican National Convention in late August

According to The Washington Star's tally, Ford is about 145 delegates shy of the 1,130 needed to nominate and Reagan is about 245 short

Reagan s strong challenge is due to several factors, not the least of which is a characteristic he holds in common with Jimmy Carter, the likely Democratic nominee This is the ability to rise above his errors some of which are almost incredible — to just power through them and not be un done by then

Couldn't Exploit Mistakes

That has something to do with Reagan s ability as a campaigner and his solid conservative constituency and has been unable to exploit Reagan s mistakes

Reagan s deserved reputation as a skilled performer on the stump shouldn t obscure the fact that he is in a good position for the nitty-gritty delegate-hunting that lies ahead That is primarily because his top campaign strategist, John Sears is probably as good a headhunter as there is in the country, certainly on the Republican side

As a young lawyer in his late 20s, Sears was one of Richard Nixon s chief headhunters before Nixon s 1968 nomination It was a time when there were far fewer primaries than there are today and delegates were selected primarily through the party machinery

Analysis

Sears displayed a precocious understanding of the process and sensitivity to its practitioners at that time Judging from his current performance there is no reason to suspect that he s lost the touch

Sears reportedly believes that there are enough pro-Reagan delegates in the uncommitted and unbound delegations elected in the primaries and in those to be chosen at the state conventions to give his man the nomination assuming there are no serious mistakes The first thing to do is identify the potential supporters and determine what will persuade them to sign on

The next thing is to persuade them There is no reason to believe that Sears and Reagan and their supporters can t set a standard that President Ford s strategists, for all their skill in organizing primary campaigns, will do well to match

There are huge chunks of uncommitted or unbound delegates elected from major primary states such as New York Pennsylvania New Jersey Illinois and Ohio that Reagan people intend to chip away at Mostly however they will be nicking and diming for handfuls here and there in the small convention states

This weekend Reagan and Ford go to Missouri where there are 19 delegates up for grabs Next weekend it s Iowa with 16 Mississippi (22) and Montana (20) come the following week

There are 13 uncommitted delegates in Illinois The delegation is about to elect former Gov Richard Ogilvie who managed Ford s primary campaign there as chairman However Sears hears that some of the delegates including some who prefer Ford detest Ogilvie Chances are someone will show up to talk to them

Nickling and diming for delegates could be a tough hard fight, like mopping up a determined resistance in house to house warfare The underlying theme of the Ford Reagan campaign has been who is more electable and who is more likely to cause a rerun of Barry Goldwater s 1964 debacle

That will be a strong consideration for the delegates Reagan shows them his victory in California Ford shows them Ohio Reagan points to Texas Ford recalls Florida

'Buddy System'

Reagan points to Ford s Nixon pardon and the Washington buddy system that is the source of the nation s problems and of which he contends Ford is a member Ford points to Reagan s incredible speculations on sending U S troops to Rhodesia investing the Social Security trust fund in industry and turning part of the Tennessee Valley Authority over to the private sector

It looks like a very close fight that holds great potential for a damaging split of the party that has steadily declined in the 20th Century It is not difficult to imagine some Republicans sitting on their hands or even some conservatives taking a walk as the progressive Bull Moosers did over Teddy Roosevelt in 1912

Kissinger Sees Little Chance For Reagan Win In November

Santiago Chile (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger told diplomats attending a meeting of the Organization of American States that he saw little chance of Ronald Reagan winning the presidency in November, the diplomats said Thursday

They quoted Kissinger as saying because of that he expects American foreign policy to remain almost unchanged regardless of whether the Democrats or Republicans are in the White House

Kissinger left Thursday night for Mexico City — his first visit to Mexico since his honeymoon in March 1974 — after what he described as the best OAS meeting he has ever attended He left several major American proposals, including one that suggested a fundamental reform of the OAS itself

According to the diplomats Kissinger said 95% of Ford administration foreign-policy proposals, particularly in the economic field will be continued or even accelerated by any conceivable Democratic administration

They also said Kissinger told them privately while he will not stay on as secretary of state in the next administration, there is almost no chance he will resign before the end of this term

The diplomats quoted Kissinger and other American officials as saying that a Kissinger resignation would create an extremely difficult constitutional and political situation for Ford

They said a resignation at the height of a presidential campaign would revive foreign policy as a partisan issue at a time when it is receding in both the Democratic and Republican campaigns

The diplomats said they were told that Kissinger increasingly will devote his energies to economic and trade issues spending less time on such matters as the Middle East and the strategic arms limitation talks They said this meant U S foreign policy would assume a holding pattern for the next five months

Carter Endorsements Come In A Flurry

By United Press International

Jimmy Carter s bandwagon runneth over

After getting the blessings Wednesday of Chicago Mayor Richard Daley, Alabama Gov George Wallace Minnesota Sen Hubert Humphrey and other leading Democrats Carter Thursday collected endorsements almost too fast to keep track of — Pennsylvania Gov Milton Shapp who won 19 delegates during his presidential bid released them and endorsed Carter

— Sen Robert Byrd, D-W Va , released the 31 West Virginia delegates committed to him The delegates would be free to back Carter but Byrd did not make an official endorsement

— Kentucky Sens Wendell Ford and Walter Huddleston endorsed Carter as did Mississippi Sens James Eastland and John Stennis

— Philadelphia Mayor Frank Rizzo whose support in the Pennsylvania primary Carter said he was proud not to have, endorsed him

— District of Columbia Mayor Walter Washington whose slate lost to Carter s in the D C primary endorsed the Georgian

Governor Of Louisiana Gives Brown Uncommitted Delegates

Baton Rouge La (UPI) — Louisiana Gov Edwin Edwards Thursday endorsed Edmund G Brown Jr for the Democratic presidential nomination calling the California governor a viable candidate and deserving of the state s 19 uncommitted delegates

Brown agreed saying Jimmy Carter s lead is commanding but not insurmountable

Jimmy you may be called Brown said but you ve not yet been chosen

Brown was in Louisiana to speak before a joint session of the state legislature and court the state s 19 uncommitted delegates Following a breakfast with Edwards and 17 of the 19 the Louisiana governor announced I think this man offers us our best hope

Edwards said the 19 uncommitted delegates had agreed in advance to act as a unit at the convention and only support one candidate but there was strong evidence of some dissension

Mayor Moon Landrieu of New Orleans one of the two delegates who failed to appear at the breakfast earlier endorsed Carter

I still think the man (Brown) has a chance, that his candidacy is viable Edwards said

Since we are at this time facing a situation where no one has the nomination tied up we are going to support Gov Brown as long as he remains a candidate We feel there is still a possibility that however slight the convention may remain open

Brown said Edwards endorsement would lead other uncommitted delegates into his camp

Mayor Richard) Daley (of Chicago) has welcomed me to appear before the Illinois delegation Brown said Why not? This campaign has been unorthodox in the beginning and why not be unorthodox in the end

But Edwards stopped sort of committing his delegates to Brown if Carter collects more than the 1 505 votes needed to nominate before the convention begins

Court Rules On Employes' Rights

Washington (UPI) — A narrowly divided Supreme Court ruled Thursday that public employes have no constitutional right to a hearing before they are fired

The 5-4 decision said that unless a contract or law provides for a hearing public employment is not the sort of property interest protected from arbitrary loss under the due process clause of the Constitution

In additin Justice John Paul Stevens said that although an employe s reputation and chances for future employment might be injured by dismissal on false charges no ' liberty was infringed that demanded constitutional restraint

The decision presumably will further encourage public employes to join labor unions and obtain collective bargaining rights to hearings since they cannot rely on constitutional protection

The four dissenters accused the majority of tacitly overruling a 1974 decision in which six justices said if procedures for dismissal are available due process requires they be followed But Stevens said that decision rested on federal civil service regulations

The lawsuit was brought by Carl D Bishop who lost his job as a Marion N C policeman in 1972 for alleged misconduct and unsatisfactory work Bishop had passed a six-month probation period and was listed as a ' permanent ' employe under a Marion ordinance

Bishop claimed his civil rights were violated by denial of due process But Stevens said in the absence of a specific ordinance or an implied contract ' to continued employment Bishop s interest in his job was not constitutionally protected

He said the North Carolina Supreme Court ruled public employes in the state generally had no right to continued employment absent a statute or contract, and state law must be followed in Bishop s case

In addition stevens noted that the reasons for Bishop s firing were given to him privately and became public only when he filed suit

Even if Marion officials were mistaken in firing Bishop Stevens said We must accept the harsh fact that numerous individual mistakes are inevitable in the day-to-day administration of our affairs and not all warrant constitutional restraints

Justice William J Brennan Jr noted that earlier this year the high court ruled a Louisville man had no constitutional right to protect his reputation when police falsely labeled him a shoplifter

Brennan said Thursday s decision is simply another curtailment of precious constitutional safeguards that marks too many recent decisions of the court '

In another 5-4 ruling Thursday the justices said impoverished federal prisoners have no constitutional right to a free trial transcript when they fail to pursue normal appeals

And in a unanimous decision, the justices held that the Tennessee Air National Guard did not have to explain why it denied a technician re-enlistment

Levi Challenges Grand Jury System Reforms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty Gen Edward H Levi on Thursday challenged a proposed congressional reform of the federal grand jury system that would allow witnesses to bring legal counsel into the room while giving testimony

He said that under certain circumstances the witness might feel restricted in testimony

However Rep Joshua Eilberg D Pa chairman of a House judiciary subcommittee holding hearings on grand jury reform legislation disagreed He said the right to have immediate counsel would protect a witness from an overaggressive prosecutor who may attempt to deceive him into waiving his constitutional rights

Under current federal practice counsel must remain outside the grand jury room but the witness is free to interrupt his testimony to consult with his attorney as he desires

Eilberg said that the proposed change would eliminate the numerous and extensive delays

Reagan Winning Forces Ford Into Political Overtime

By JAMES R. DICKENSON
Washington Star Writer

Los Angeles — For 10 years now, politicians, reporters and just plain citizens, beginning with former California Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, have underestimated Ronald Reagan.

He thanked them by winning the California governorship twice by huge margins and now he has won the California presidential primary by nearly a 2-1 margin over the incumbent Republican president.

And so, as a result, he has fought President Ford to a standoff in the primaries and is forcing him into the political equivalent of overtime between now and the Republican National Convention in late August.

According to The Washington Star's tally, Ford is about 145 delegates shy of the 1,130 needed to nominate and Reagan is about 245 short.

Reagan's strong challenge is due to several factors, not the least of which is a characteristic he holds in common with Jimmy Carter, the likely Democratic nominee. This is the ability to rise above his errors, some of which are almost incredible — to just power through them and not be undone by them.

Couldn't Exploit Mistakes

That has something to do with Reagan's ability as a campaigner and his solid conservative constituency and has been unable to exploit Reagan's mistakes.

Reagan's deserved reputation as a skilled performer on the stump shouldn't obscure the fact that he is in a good position for the nitty-gritty delegate-hunting that lies ahead. That is primarily because his top campaign strategist, John Sears, is probably as good a headhunter as there is in the country, certainly on the Republican side.

As a young lawyer in his late 20s, Sears was one of Richard Nixon's chief headhunters before Nixon's 1968 nomination. It was a time when there were far fewer primaries than there are today and delegates were selected primarily through the party machinery.

Analysis

Sears displayed a precocious understanding of the process and sensitivity to its practitioners at that time. Judging from his current performance, there is no reason to suspect that he's lost the touch.

Sears reportedly believes that there are enough pro-Reagan delegates in the uncommitted and unbound delegations elected in the primaries and in those to be chosen at the state conventions to give his man the nomination, assuming there are no serious mistakes. The first thing to do is identify the potential supporters and determine what will persuade them to sign on.

The next thing is to persuade them. There is no reason to believe that Sears and Reagan and their supporters can't set a standard that President Ford's strategists, for all their skill in organizing primary campaigns, will do well to match.

There are huge chunks of uncommitted or unbound delegates elected from major primary states such as New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Illinois and Ohio that Reagan people intend to chip away at. Mostly, however, they will be nickling and diming for handfuls here and there in the small convention states.

This weekend Reagan and Ford go to Missouri where there are 19 delegates up for grabs. Next weekend it's Iowa with 16. Mississippi (22) and Montana (20) come the following week.

There are 13 uncommitted delegates in Illinois. The delegation is about to elect former Gov. Richard Ogilvie, who managed Ford's primary campaign there, as chairman. However, Sears hears that some of the delegates, including some who prefer Ford, detest Ogilvie. Chances are someone will show up to talk to them.

Nickling and diming for delegates could be a tough, hard fight, like mopping up a determined resistance in house-to-house warfare. The underlying theme of the Ford-Reagan campaign has been, who is more electable and who is more likely to cause a rerun of Barry Goldwater's 1964 debacle?

That will be a strong consideration for the delegates. Reagan shows them his victory in California, Ford shows them Ohio; Reagan points to Texas, Ford recalls Florida.

'Buddy System'

Reagan points to Ford's Nixon pardon and the "Washington buddy system" that is the source of the nation's problems and of which he contends Ford is a member. Ford points to Reagan's incredible speculations on sending U.S. troops to Rhodesia, investing the Social Security trust fund in industry, and turning part of the Tennessee Valley Authority over to the private sector.

It looks like a very close fight that holds great potential for a damaging split of the party that has steadily declined in the 20th Century. It is not difficult to imagine some Republicans sitting on their hands, or even some conservatives taking a walk as the progressive Bull Moosers did over Teddy Roosevelt in 1912.

Governor Of Louisiana Gives Brown Uncommitted Delegates

Baton Rouge, La. (UPI) — Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards Thursday endorsed Edmund G. Brown Jr. for the Democratic presidential nomination, calling the California governor a "viable" candidate and deserving of the state's 19 uncommitted delegates.

Brown agreed, saying Jimmy Carter's lead is commanding but not insurmountable.

"Jimmy, you may be called," Brown said, "but you've not yet been chosen."

Brown was in Louisiana to speak before a joint session of the state legislature and court the state's 19 uncommitted delegates. Following a breakfast with Edwards and 17 of the 19, the Louisiana governor announced, "I think this man offers us our best hope."

The lawsuit was brought by Carl D. Bishop, who lost his job as a Marion, N.C., policeman in 1972 for alleged misconduct and unsatisfactory work. Bishop had passed a six-month probation period and was listed as a "permanent" employe under a Marion ordinance.

Bishop claimed his civil rights were violated by denial of due process. But Stevens said in the absence of a specific ordinance or "an implied contract" to continued employment, Bishop's interest in his job was not constitutionally protected.

Levi Challenges Grand Jury System Reforms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi on Thursday challenged a proposed congressional reform of the federal grand jury system that would allow witnesses to bring legal counsel into the room while giving testimony.

He said that under certain circumstances the witness might feel restricted in testimony

However, Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., chairman of a House judiciary subcommittee holding hearings on grand jury reform legislation, disagreed. Eilberg said that the proposed change would eliminate the "numerous and extensive delays".

The Opening Battle

The initiative on nuclear energy safety soundly beaten by California voters was, as one proponent put it only the first battle, not the war

Proposition 15 would have limited nuclear power plant construction provided for legislative certification of nuclear reactor safety and charged utilities with full financial liability in case of nuclear accidents

The proposition was fought tooth-and-nail by utilities which spent millions of dollars to spread the message that the initiative if passed would rob California of jobs and energy in a time of high unemployment and depleting energy sources

Proponents of the measure spent almost a million dollars and argued that Prop 15 was only meant to guarantee safe nuclear power plants

The initiative lost by a 2-1 margin It was the first state vote on nuclear energy At least ten other states are considering similar proposals While the California election results were tilted decisively in favor of the nuclear generation of electric power both proponents of Prop 15 and its opponents agree that the debate is far from over in California and in the rest of the country

The debate over the safety of nuclear power — as with other questions relating to the production of energy questions of environmental and personal safety growth and so forth — is not always rational and to the point

For example the utility and energy companies which financed the anti-Prop 15 campaign were accused of spreading grossly distorting' information On the other side of the coin, proponents were accused of trying to shut down all nuclear power plants

The charges and countercharges are similar in many respects to those which are exchanged in fights over nuclear plant development or supersonic aircraft development, or water projects or barge canal proposals all over the nation There is little common ground, there is no quarter given and as a result, many of the voters called upon to make far-reaching decisions do so on the basis of gut feelings

It was the gut feeling of many, many Californians we're certain, that without the existing and planned nuclear generating plants and the power they do and will produce energy would be scarce and jobs would be harder to find The utility companies knew just where to base their appeals

But the questions relating to the safety of nuclear power and the storing of nuclear wastes and its implications for future generations go unresolved in such campaigns So does rational discussion of alternate energy sources

The fact of the matter is that Americans probably will be satisfied with whatever source can provide the desired energy at a lower price and with less obvious sacrifice than other sources As a people we don t seem to want to discuss options which could require "hard decisions as one of our leaders used to say and our shortsightedness may be costly in the long run

From Check To Checkmate

Whew' In one short day it seems Carter went from check to checkmate It is all over barring some sore loser wiping the board clean and demanding a new game

But President Ford and Ronald Reagan having battled to almost a draw during the primaries are still locked in the fight of their lives

There are a crucial few delegates yet to be chosen and some uncommitted delegates left and both challengers for the GOP nomination to take on Carter are making the rounds of the convention states and where the uncommitted roam It will not be beneath the dignity of either candidate to woo a mere handful of delegates It could be that close Both Ford and Reagan are predicting they will win on the first ballot with the President pressing hardest the argument that he alone among Republicans has the political attractiveness to retain the White House for the GOP

One might wonder why the President thinks he could do better against Carter in the south and the west and in the farm belt than Reagan, all places where Republicans have to do well to win Our hunch is that Ford would run a better overall race than Reagan too but it isn t based on much To win Ford will have to beat the Democrat in traditional Democratic strongholds

It might be that a Ford nomination, while safer for the country, would not be as good for the party

By MARY L SCHMIT
Lincoln, Nebr

After reading all of The Star s articles concerning my father particularly the Monday June 7 editorial I am writing this letter to straighten out past erroneous and misleading statements I believe my father deserves equal time

So State Senator Loran Schmit received more than $30 000 in campaign contributions Is this a federal crime?

The last time I checked the American political system was based on the premise that if you supported a candidate who in your opinion represented your views worked hard and did a good job you were allowed to contribute to his campaign

Virtually all of The Star articles have not so subtly implied that Senator Schmit received such a large sum as a payoff for sponsoring the medical malpractice legislation In view of my father's reputation this assumption is to say the least ludicrous

The Star is talking about the same man who refuses to be obligated to anyone, so far as to reject the courting of the lobbyists — for example free dinners drinks, entertainment, etc , a practice that is considered by many senators as part of their salary

"My father's goals in sponsoring the malpractice legislation were to create a stable medical environment which in turn would hopefully draw more physicians to the state NOT to raise funds from the doctors

As for the speculation of Senator Schmit s building up a war chest for a possible bid for the governorship I can assure everyone that he does not have the luxury of time to start planning two years ahead for another campaign

He did not go out and personally raise money The success of his campaign was all due to his re-election committees which consist of hard working energetic people He did not stand over them cracking a whip ordering Write Beg Solicit' I repeat — he does not have the time

The Monday morning editorial was the most ill researched of all. How conveniently The Star forgets all of Senator Schmit's past legislative record He has sponsored and worked for bills in agriculture, aid to education, mental retardation programs, gasahol, the ombudsman, etc

The Star says the average bloke who works eight hours a day five days a week has nobody looking out for him Well my father rises at 4 30 a m and rarely goes to bed before 12 30 a m He frequently never sleeps, at all, and works seven days a week He does not know the meaning of the words ' vacation or "overtime

This same man has come to the aid of the average bloke hundreds of times and not just those from the 23rd District but from all over the state He has in the past

—prevented the Welfare Department from committing a five-year-old girl to the Beatrice State Home, who was, by the way, not mentally retarded

—pulled strings to acquire a special wheelchair for a boy paralyzed from the waist down

—helped an elderly man get back his driver's license, his only link with the outside world

To list everything he has done to help people would take more space than The Star has room for in its paper

The Star could not have picked a poorer choice for its lambasting because many average blokes know that Senator Schmit is the one senator they can turn to and expect a sincere interest in their problems and all the help he can muster

Many people may pass this letter off as biased Fine — it may be biased After all, I am my father s most ardent supporter But it is also the truth After all who could know a man better — his schedule his work his ambitions and goals — than a member of his own family"

The Differences Loom

WASHINGTON — Public cynicism about politics is an old story in this country but the feeling seems especially strong this year Pollsters telephoning prospective voters in the primary states met this sort of reaction again and again 'Oh don t ask me about politicians They re all the same I m not voting

Indifference will be a particular threat to Jimmy Carter as the nominee There remains a good deal of doubt about him among traditional Democratic voters in the North and they have to be motivated to go to the polls Among liberals especially there is a sour mood, some say Carter is really a conservative at heart, no different from President Ford, and they would just as soon vote for the known quantity of Ford

Would a Carter presidency make a difference? We still have five months to go in this interminable election year, and they will be spent in good part drawing distinctions. But it is possible already to make up a sizeable list of specifics that would be handled differently by Carter.

Take an issue of peculiar symbolic import amnesty for Vietnam draft resisters and deserters It has no world significance but it seems to me to matter a very great deal in terms of conscience and internal peace in this country

Neither Gerald Ford nor Ronald Reagan could be expected to do anything for the thousands of young men who still face prosecution for Vietnam-era offenses The Ford ' clemency program turned out to be a bitter joke Ford has not even acted on any recommendations of his own board Carter has said that the week he took office he would "pardon ' all those who "defected ' from service for reasons of conscience I see no reason to doubt that he would.

On what could be described generally as issues of humane concern a President Carter would be very different At least one has to think so on the basis of his campaign statements and of his efforts as governor of Georgia to improve such things as mental health services and prison conditions

It is extremely unlikely that Carter would take drastic administrative action to cut back food stamp benefits for the working poor, as the Ford administration has just done There is next to no chance that he would veto a bill providing funds for needy children in day-care centers.

Similarly those concerned for civil rights could expect a more sympathetic ear in the White House Carter would not suggest that the Supreme Court should re-examine the case of Brown v Board of Education He would not be ignorant of his Justice Department s legal position on racial questions

In foreign affairs, too, the indications are that a Carter administration would be more concerned with human rights In the main foreign policy speech of his primary campaign, Carter emphasized that subject He condemned "policies that strengthen dictators He scorned Secretary of State Kissinger for praising the Brazilian military government s respect for human dignities '

Chile is a litmus test of attitudes President Ford has explicitly refused to criticize American intervention in Chile s democratic processes Kissinger evidently feeling the weight of criticism, now notes the brutalities of the regime he has so crucially aided Carter has criticized the U S role in Chile and said, "It is un-American to interfere in the free political processes of another nation '

The likely choice of a secretary of state is a highly significant standard of comparison at this point A good bet in either a Ford or Reagan administration would be John Connally who in his foreign operations as secretary of the Treasury was known for suddenness secrecy and crude disregard of allies

The most likely possibilities in a Carter administration are George Ball and Cyrus Vance. Both have emphasized the need to be steady, to choose long-term goals, to eschew sudden opportunism, to respect allies It is unlikely that either would be sucked into Angola, for example, or would feel it necessary to prove his manhood in a Mayaguez affair.

On defense Carter would certainly not be a radical reformer He spent years as a naval officer, and he is no dove on defense spending On the other hand, he has said he is against the biggest proposed new weapons system, a main target of military budget criticism the B1 bomber And he is more likely to appoint a reformist secretary of defense

There are innumerable other specific differences that have already surfaced Even Carter s critics, for example, generally credit him with a deep commitment to environmental protection He would not be likely to veto a strip-mining bill — or to leap aboard a tuna boat, as Ford did recently in the search for votes and denounce a judge's decision to enforce the law against the wanton slaughter of porpoises

Of course, such an exploration of particular differences does not touch the deeper instincts that may move voters

But it is not really possible to say, in logic, that there is no difference between him and Ronald Reagan or Gerald Ford.

Humphrey-Hawkins Bill

Washington, D C.

At least as wild as the Humphrey-Hawkins Bill is The Star editorial, "Jobs Are Dangerous?" (June 4)

With $20,000 one government make-work job can be funded for two years The same $20,000 in private savings will create one permanent, full-time, productive job in private enterprise HR7241, which I introduced in May, 1975, would change our federal tax law to encourage more investment by individuals of modest means and the expansion of small business If enacted, this bill would create an estimated 20 million additional jobs in the next 10 years

Together with encouragement of private enterprise, I support federal job-training programs Permanent jobs in the private sector and training so the unskilled can fill available jobs will bring real prosperity

The alternative The Star espouses is condemned by its own words "The Humphrey-Hawkins measure, in many regards, is only a promise but it is certainly a worthy one to pursue " Nothing could be more cruel than giving the unemployed and poor the false promise of jobs and prosperity .

What caused the recession? High inflation Adding $40 billion to $80 billion per year in deficit federal spending through the Humphrey-Hawkins ' guarantee" of jobs for all would create worse inflation than America has ever known

An all-time record high for U S employment was set in May, 1976 The number of people employed has increased 3 6 million since March, 1975

If we keep inflation low, if we encourage our private enterprise system, we can continue to create lasting jobs If we enact the Humphrey-Hawkins Bill, we'll end up like the Weimar Republic in Germany, using wheelbarrows to carry our money

Has He Forgotten?

Bella Vista, Ark.

Has Ronnie Reagan forgotten all about his "11th Commandment pledge? Just wondering

The Ford 'Death Wish' Charge

CHICAGO — The clearest indication that Gerald Ford is going to lose the nomination to Ronald Reagan came at the conclusion of one of the President s television spots in California.

"GOVERNOR Reagan couldn't start a war," the Ford commercials said. "PRESIDENT Reagan could."

That was the Ford campaign s equivalent of the daisy spot, the television ad that depicted Sen Goldwater in 1964 as likely to cause a war that peaceful Lyndon Johnson would avoid It worked for LBJ, it will work against Ford

When the President personally decided to smear his challenger as a warmonger — a trigger happy extremist — he delighted Democrats who will exploit that theme in the fall, and dismayed Republicans who will have to scrub off the smear

Accordingly we can expect to see much learned commentary that President Ford would make a far stronger candidate than Reagan but this commentary will come from people most of whom fully expect to vote for the Democratic candidate

We can also expect to see Republican delegates in states like Missouri react against the below-the-belt attack by the panicked White House. It is one thing for Ford to adopt a negative, my - opponent - can't - win strategy, but it is another for him to attempt to permanently cripple his Republican opponent. Rockefeller did that, and the GOP elephant never forgot.

Moreover, Republican delegates will come to see that the Ford nomination strategy is self-defeating since it will ultimately be based on public opinion polls For a can't win strategy to work — as it did when Boss Thurlow Week blocked Henry Clay in 1840 — it must prove that one candidate would win while the alternative would surely lose

But logic suggests that events will undermine that strategy In the next six weeks band-wagon publicity and endorsements from all sides will elevate Jimmy Carter in the polls his peak of popularity will be in the month between the Democratic and Republican conventions

At the time the polls are likely to show that both Ford and Reagan "can't win In the flush of the Carter acceptance speech and the unifying choice of a vice president, both Republicans will be swamped in the polls that month — and if the polls show the President slightly stronger, it won t matter

In that light, let us try to think like uncommitted Republican delegates

(1) IF WE'RE GOING TO LOSE ANYWAY, I MIGHT AS WELL ENJOY THE RIDE. The sentimental favorite is Reagan, more important, conservatives believe that he better represents their principles than a president who has abdicated half his job to defeatist Henry Kissinger and who grimly promises four more years of the same

(2) IF WE'RE GOING TO HAVE TO CATCH UP, I MIGHT AS WELL GO WITH A CAMPAIGNER WHO WON AN UPHILL FIGHT TO VICTORY IN THE PRIMARIES Ford is a good president and a terrible candidate Reagan would make a good president and is an excellent candidate Most delegates would rather shoot for a longshot Reagan upset rather than settle for a dignified Ford loss

(3) IF REAGAN "CAN'T WIN," IT'S BECAUSE FORD'S WAR MONGERING CHARGES MADE IT IMPOSSIBLE — WHICH MEANS THAT THE RIGHT WON'T LET FORD WIN. Such nightmarish thoughts are to be put quickly out of mind

(4) IF ANY REPUBLICAN IS TO WIN, HE WILL HAVE TO BE ABLE TO CARRY CALIFORNIA AND TEXAS, AND TO TAKE THE WALLACE VOTE IN THE NORTH FROM CARTER — WHICH REAGAN COULD DO, IN SPITE OF GEORGE WALLACE'S ENDORSEMENT OF CARTER Ford still thinks in outdated left-right spectrum terms while Reagan is picking up blue-collar support with new majority appeals

(5) IF THIS TURNS OUT TO BE A CLOSE CAMPAIGN, A GOOD STAFF WOULD MAKE THE DIFFERENCE. The Ford staff — exhausted Rogers Morton gut fighter Stu Spencer and hack writer Bob Hartmann — are no match for the Reagan men Delegates are impressed with John Sears, Professor Martin Anderson, writer Pete Hannaford, a talented young group which easily outclasses the White House hangers-on, and which has more experience than the Carter coterie.

(6) IF THIS IS INDEED THE YEAR OF THE OUTS, AN ANTI-WASHINGTON CAMPAIGNER LIKE REAGAN CAN HELP ME LOCALLY. In those areas where most of the uncommitted delegates are, resentment of bureaucracy is high and Carter poses a special threat — which Reagan, not Ford, could best counter

For those reasons (which liberals are certain to label a 'death wish'') the unpresidential attack by the President will probably deliver the nomination to Gov Reagan Then it will be "Reagan vs Carter — and the Californian's turn to move up in the polls, as Carter does his ambiguous best to stay tall in the straddle

The Opening Battle

The initiative on nuclear energy safety soundly beaten by California voters was, as one proponent put it, only the first battle, not the war.

Proposition 15 would have limited nuclear power plant construction, provided for legislative certification of nuclear reactor safety and charged utilities with full financial liability in case of nuclear accidents.

The proposition was fought tooth-and-nail by utilities which spent millions of dollars to spread the message that the initiative, if passed, would rob California of jobs and energy in a time of high unemployment and depleting energy sources.

Proponents of the measure spent almost a million dollars and argued that Prop. 15 was only meant to guarantee safe nuclear power plants.

The initiative lost by a 2-1 margin. It was the first state vote on nuclear energy. At least ten other states are considering similar proposals. While the California election results were tilted decisively in favor of the nuclear generation of electric power, both proponents of Prop. 15 and its opponents agree that the debate is far from over in California and in the rest of the country.

The debate over the safety of nuclear power — as with other questions relating to the production of energy, questions of environmental and personal safety, "growth" and so forth — is not always rational and to the point.

For example, the utility and energy companies which financed the anti-Prop. 15 campaign were accused of spreading "grossly distorting" information. On the other side of the coin, proponents were accused of trying to shut down all nuclear power plants.

The charges and countercharges are similar in many respects to those which are exchanged in fights over nuclear plant development or supersonic aircraft development, or water projects or barge canal proposals all over the nation. There is little common ground, there is no quarter given, and as a result, many of the voters called upon to make far-reaching decisions do so on the basis of gut feelings.

It was the gut feeling of many, many Californians, we're certain, that without the existing and planned nuclear generating plants and the power they do and will produce, energy would be scarce and jobs would be harder to find. The utility companies knew just where to base their appeals.

But the questions relating to the safety of nuclear power and the storing of nuclear wastes and its implications for future generations go unresolved in such campaigns. So does rational discussion of alternate energy sources.

The fact of the matter is that Americans probably will be satisfied with whatever source can provide the desired energy at a lower price and with less obvious sacrifice than other sources. As a people we don't seem to want to discuss options which could require "hard decisions," as one of our leaders used to say, and our shortsightedness may be costly in the long run.

From Check To Checkmate

Whew! In one short day, it seems Carter went from check to checkmate. It is all over, barring some sore loser wiping the board clean and demanding a new game.

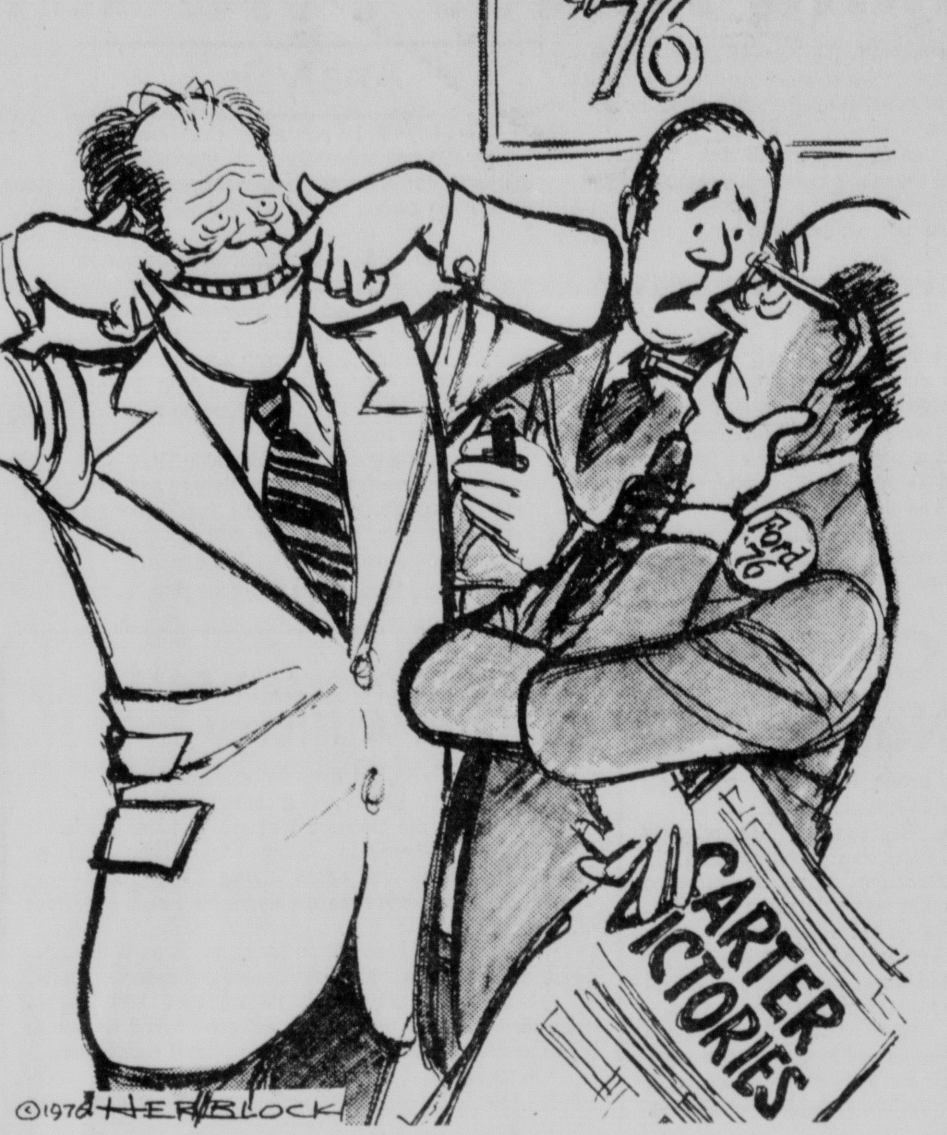
But President Ford and Ronald Reagan, having battled to almost a draw during the primaries, are still locked in the fight of their lives.

There are a crucial few delegates yet to be chosen and some uncommitted delegates left, and both challengers for the GOP nomination to take on Carter are making the rounds of the convention states and where the uncommitted roam. It will not be beneath the dignity of either candidate to woo a mere handful of delegates. It could be that close. Both Ford and Reagan are predicting they will win on the first ballot, with the President pressing hardest the argument that he alone among Republicans has the political attractiveness to retain the White House for the GOP.

One might wonder why the President thinks he could do better against Carter in the south and the west and in the farm belt than Reagan, all places where Republicans have to do well to win. Our hunch is that Ford would run a better overall race than Reagan, too, but it isn't based on much. To win, Ford will have to beat the Democrat in traditional Democratic strongholds.

It might be that a Ford nomination, while safer for the country, would not be as good for the party.

"WELL, WHAT DO YOU THINK?"



ANTHONY LEWIS

The Differences Loom

WASHINGTON — Public cynicism about politics is an old story in this country, but the feeling seems especially strong this year. Pollsters telephoning prospective voters in the primary states met this sort of reaction again and again: "Oh, don't ask me about politicians. They're all the same. I'm not voting."

Indifference will be a particular threat to Jimmy Carter as the nominee. There remains a good deal of doubt about him among traditional Democratic voters in the North, and they have to be motivated to go to the polls. Among liberals especially there is a sour mood; some say Carter is really a conservative at heart, no different from President Ford, and they would just as soon vote for the known quantity of Ford.

Would a Carter presidency make a difference? We still have five months to go in this interminable election year, and they will be spent in good part drawing distinctions. But it is possible already to make up a sizeable list of specifics that would be handled differently by Carter.

Take an issue of peculiar symbolic import: amnesty for Vietnam draft resisters and deserters. It has no world significance, but it seems to me to matter a very great deal in terms of conscience and internal peace in this country.

On what could be described generally as issues of humane concern, a President Carter would be very different. At least one has to think so on the basis of his campaign statements and of his efforts as governor of Georgia to improve such things as mental health services and prison conditions.

It is extremely unlikely that Carter would take drastic administrative action to cut back food stamp benefits for the working poor, as the Ford administration has just done. There is next to no chance that he would veto a bill providing funds for needy children in day-care centers.

Similarly, those concerned for civil rights could expect a more sympathetic ear in the White House. Carter would not suggest that the Supreme Court should re-examine the case of Brown v. Board of Education. He would not be ignorant of his Justice Department's legal position on racial questions.

In foreign affairs, too, the indications are that a Carter administration would be more concerned with human rights. In the main foreign policy speech of his primary campaign, Carter emphasized that subject. He condemned "policies that strengthen dictators." He scorned Secretary of State Kissinger for praising the Brazilian military government's respect for "human dignities."

Chile is a litmus test of attitudes. President Ford has explicitly refused to criticize American intervention in Chile's democratic processes. Kissinger, evidently feeling the weight of criticism, now notes the brutalities of the regime he has so crucially aided. Carter has criticized the U.S. role in Chile and said, "It is un-American to interfere in the free political processes of another nation."

The likely choice of a secretary of state is a highly significant standard of comparison at this point. Point of View

Contributions to this space from readers are welcome and will appear periodically as a special feature of our editorial page. Length of article should not exceed 800 words and publications must include the writer's name. Submit articles to "Point of View," The Lincoln Star, 926 P St., Lincoln, Nebr.

By MARY L. SCHMIT
Lincoln, Nebr.

After reading all of The Star's articles concerning my father, particularly the Monday, June 7, editorial, I am writing this letter to straighten out past erroneous and misleading statements. I believe my father deserves equal time.

So State Senator Loran Schmit received more than $30,000 in campaign contributions. Is this a federal crime?

The last time I checked, the American political system was based on the premise that if you supported a candidate who, in your opinion, represented your views, worked hard and did a good job, you were allowed to contribute to his campaign.

Virtually all of The Star articles have not so subtly implied that Senator Schmit received such alarge sum as a payoff for sponsoring the medical malpractice legislation. In view of my father's reputation, this assumption is, to say the least, ludicrous.

The Star is talking about the same man who refuses to be obligated to anyone, so far as to reject the courting of the lobbyists — for example, free dinners, drinks, entertainment, etc., a practice that is considered by many senators as part of their salary.

My father's goals in sponsoring the malpractice legislation were to create a stable medical environment which in turn would hopefully draw more physicians to the state, NOT to raise funds from the doctors.

As for the speculation of Senator Schmit's building up a "war chest" for a possible bid for the governorship, I can assure everyone that he does not have the luxury of time to start planning two years ahead for another campaign.

He did not go out and personally raise money. The success of his campaign was all due to his re-election committees, which consist of hard-working, energetic people. He did not stand over them cracking a whip, ordering: "Write! Beg! Solicit!" I repeat — he does not have the time.

The Monday morning editorial was the most ill researched of all. How conveniently The Star forgets all of Senator Schmit's past legislative record. He has sponsored and worked for bills in agriculture, aid to education, mental retardation programs, gasahol, the ombudsman, etc.

The Star says the "average bloke who works eight hours a day . . . five days a week . . . has nobody looking out for him." Well, my father rises at 4:30 a.m., and rarely goes to bed before 12:30 a.m. He frequently never sleeps, at all, and works seven days a week. He does not know the meaning of the words "vacation" or "overtime."

This same man has come to the aid of the "average bloke" hundreds of times, and not just those from the 23rd District but from all over the state. He has in the past:

—prevented the Welfare Department from committing a five-year-old girl to the Beatrice State Home, who was, by the way, not mentally retarded . . .

—pulled strings to acquire a special wheelchair for a boy paralyzed from the waist down . . .

—helped an elderly man get back his driver's license, his only link with the outside world.

To list everything he has done to help people would take more space than The Star has room for in its paper.

The Star could not have picked a poorer choice for its lambasting, because many "average blokes" know that Senator Schmit is the one senator they can turn to and expect a sincere interest in their problems, and all the help he can muster.

Many people may pass this letter off as biased. Fine — it may be biased. After all, I am my father's most ardent supporter. But it is also the truth. After all, who could know a man better — his schedule, his work, his ambitions and goals — than a member of his own family?

The Ford 'Death Wish' Charge

CHICAGO — The clearest indication that Gerald Ford is going to lose the nomination to Ronald Reagan came at the conclusion of one of the President's television spots in California.

"GOVERNOR Reagan couldn't start a war," the Ford commercials said. "PRESIDENT Reagan could."

That was the Ford campaign's equivalent of the "daisy spot," the television ad that depicted Sen. Goldwater in 1964 as likely to cause a war that peaceful Lyndon Johnson would avoid. It worked for LBJ; it will work against Ford.

When the President personally decided to smear his challenger as a warmonger — a trigger-happy extremist — he delighted Democrats who will exploit that theme in the fall, and dismayed Republicans who will have to scrub off the smear.

Accordingly, we can expect to see much learned commentary that President Ford would make a far stronger candidate than Reagan, but this commentary will come from people most of whom fully expect to vote for the Democratic candidate.

We can also expect to see Republican delegates in states like Missouri react against the below-the-belt attack by the panicked White House. It is one thing for Ford to adopt a negative, my - opponent - can't - win strategy; but it is another for him to attempt to permanently cripple his Republican opponent. Rockefeller did that, and the GOP elephant never forgot.

Moreover, Republican delegates will come to see that the Ford nomination strategy is self-defeating, since it will ultimately be based on public opinion polls. For a "can't win" strategy to work — as it did when Boss Thurlow Week blocked Henry Clay in 1840 — it must prove that one candidate would win while the alternative would surely lose.

But logic suggests that events will undermine that strategy. In the next six weeks, band-wagon publicity and endorsements from all sides will elevate Jimmy Carter in the polls; his peak of popularity will be in the month between the Democratic and Republican conventions.

At the time, the polls are likely to show that both Ford and Reagan "can't win." In the flush of the Carter acceptance speech and the unifying choice of a vice president, both Republicans will be swamped in the polls that month — and if the polls show the President slightly stronger, it won't matter.

In that light, let us try to think like uncommitted Republican delegates.

(2) IF WE'RE GOING TO HAVE TO CATCH UP, I MIGHT AS WELL GO WITH A CAMPAIGNER WHO WON AN UPHILL FIGHT TO VICTORY IN THE PRIMARIES. Ford is a good president and a terrible candidate; Reagan would make a good president and is an excellent candidate. (3) IF REAGAN "CAN'T WIN," IT'S BECAUSE FORD'S WAR MONGERING CHARGES MADE IT IMPOSSIBLE — WHICH MEANS THAT THE RIGHT WON'T LET FORD WIN. Such nightmarish thoughts are to be put quickly out of mind.

(4) IF ANY REPUBLICAN IS TO WIN, HE WILL HAVE TO BE ABLE TO CARRY CALIFORNIA AND TEXAS, AND TO TAKE THE WALLACE VOTE IN THE NORTH FROM CARTER — WHICH REAGAN COULD DO, IN SPITE OF GEORGE WALLACE'S ENDORSEMENT OF CARTER. Ford still thinks in outdated left-right spectrum terms, while Reagan is picking up blue-collar support with new majority appeals.

(5) IF THIS TURNS OUT TO BE A CLOSE CAMPAIGN, A GOOD STAFF WOULD MAKE THE DIFFERENCE. The Ford staff — exhausted Rogers Morton, gut fighter Stu Spencer, and hack writer Bob Hartmann — are no match for the Reagan men. Economic Review Says U.S. Outlook Improving

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration, in its midyear economic review, said Thursday that the outlook for consumer prices is improving and that unemployment might drop below 7 per cent by the end of the year.

Chairman Alan Greenspan of the President's Council of Economic Advisers said the underlying inflation rate probably has fallen to between 5 and 6 per cent, while the nation's Gross National Product should expand by about 7 per cent in real terms this year.

However, Greenspan said the improved outlook from earlier forecasts does not signify major changes. He said Americans should not expect the same robust performance in the economy during the remainder of the year that occurred in the past nine months when real GNP expanded at an 8.4 per cent annual rate. The GNP is the nation's total output of goods and services.

"As of midyear . . . there do not appear to be compelling reasons to make major changes in the overall outlook for 1976," Greenspan told the Joint Economic Committee of Congress.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department reported in some adverse economic news that retail sales during May fell 1.2 per cent, the second straight monthly decline and the sharpest drop in 15 months.

Greenspan disclosed the administration's midyear economic review to the committee. He appeared to be more optimistic in response to questions from the committee than he was in his prepared presentation, which did not give any specific changes in outlook.

In its original forecast in January, the administration predicted unemployment would be between 7 and 7.5 per cent by the end of the year, with price inflation of 5.9 per cent and a real increase in the GNP of 6.2 per cent. Currently 7.3 per cent of the work force is unemployed.

Asked by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., about his new expectations for unemployment, Greenspan said, "I expect it clearly to be under 7 per cent."

He also said under questioning he now believes the increase in GNP maybe about 7 per cent for the year, which he declared is "a moderate change in our forecasts; I do not consider it a major change."

He said that while the economic recovery had exceeded expectations in its early stages, it probably is "fairly average" as far as recoveries from recessions go.

"Consequently, although the pace of recovery should be expected to subside a bit, there is no evidence that it will fade or peter out in the immediate or foreseeable future," he said.

He said gains in income and employment and an expectation that capital spending will increase later this year "increasingly suggest a sustained and durable recovery."

But he urged that the government practice restraint in its money and spending policies in the next few years to avoid risking another round of inflation in the future.

"Unless we can accomplish this, we cannot safely count on a continued deceleration in inflation. Indeed we cannot even count on being able to avoid another serious future recession," he added.

Senate Tax Reform Fight Likely

Washington (UPI) — Liberal senators, preparing for a floor fight over tax reform next week, announced Thursday a package of amendments designed to take a bigger tax bite from exporters, multinational companies and the well-to-do.

Included are a strengthening of the minimum tax, deletion of a proposed maximum tax of 50% on unearned income, and end to tax deferral on foreign income, stronger curbs on tax shelters except in residential real estate, a reduction in the foreign tax credit for oil and a reduction in export subsidies.

One amendment would give a greater tax break, advancing the effective date of a liberalized retirement income credit for the elderly.

Most of the amendments would junk provisions of the Senate Finance Committee's bill scheduled for floor action early next week, and substitute stronger House-passed provisions.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., leading the fight, called the Finance Committee bill "a real fraud under the name of tax reform."

The amendments, some of which are toned down from the usual liberal position, represent a limited but realistic attempt to make a step toward reform, according to the 13 co-sponsors.

"The failure of tax reform in the past is that we tried to bite off more than we could digest or consume or chew," said Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., at a news conference with most of the co-sponsors.

Acknowledging that "our track record in the past has not been good," Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said each of the seven proposals "has a good chance of passage."

Congress is working under a deadline of July 1 for passage of some kind of bill because current individual tax cuts expire on that date.

Ford Plans Five-Day Fourth of July

Washington (UPI) — President Ford will mark America's 200th birthday with five days of Fourth of July celebrations ranging from visits to Valley Forge and Independence Hall to the monitoring of a spaceship landing on Mars, the White House announced Thursday.

Ford's speeches July 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 "will together form one statement" about America's founding, history, development and "what he hopes and plans for the future," press secretary Ron Nessen said.

He said the President's schedule for the bicentennial birthday begins July 1 with a speech dedicating the Smithsonian Institution's new air and space museum in Washington.

Thereafter, Nessen said, the itinerary will include:

July 2: A speech at the National Archive in Washington, opening an exhibit of the documents of American liberty, including the Magna Carta loaned by Queen Elizabeth, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution.

July 3: Attendance at a bicentennila entertainment salute at Washington's Kennedy Center.

July 4: "A speech at Valley Forge, Pa., site of the winter quarters where George Washington fashioned a victorious American Revolutionary Army; and another at Philadelphia's Independence Hall, where the Declaration of Independence was signed.

On the afternoon of July 4, Nessen said, Ford will visit New York Harbor to review Operation Sail, an armada of 200 sailing ships visiting for the bicentennial celebrations.

Ford then returns to the White House to observe, in the evening, a special fireworks display and to monitor the scheduled landing of an unmanned U.S. Viking spaceship on Mars.

On July 5, he will travel to Thomas Jefferson's Virginia home, Monticello, to preside over the swearing in of new American citizens at a naturalization ceremony.

Moritorium On CIA Plans Recommended

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new Senate intelligence committee has unanimously recommended a six-month moratorium on CIA plans to destroy files of improper and illegal activities.

The decision was reached by the panel in a closed-door session on Wednesday and publicly disclosed Thursday by chairman Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii in a letter to Senate leaders.

"It is the further recommendation of the committee that the CIA and other intelligence agencies should submit an inventory of the records to be destroyed" to the panel, Inouye said in a letter to Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and Minority Leader Hugh Scott.

Mansfield and Scott earlier in the week had left it to the new panel to decide whether the CIA should be allowed to destroy its files on its past misdeeds.

Economic Review Says U.S. Outlook Improving

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration, in its midyear economic review, said Thursday that the outlook for consumer prices is improving and that unemployment might drop below 7 per cent by the end of the year.

Chairman Alan Greenspan of the President's Council of Economic Advisers said the underlying inflation rate probably has fallen to between 5 and 6 per cent, while the nation's Gross National Product should expand by about 7 per cent in real terms this year.

However, Greenspan said the improved outlook from earlier forecasts does not signify major changes. He said Americans should not expect the same robust performance in the economy during the remainder of the year that occurred in the past nine months when real GNP expanded at an 8.4 per cent annual rate. The GNP is the nation's total output of goods and services.

"As of midyear . . . there do not appear to be compelling reasons to make major changes in the overall outlook for 1976," Greenspan told the Joint Economic Committee of Congress.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department reported in some adverse economic news that retail sales during May fell 1.2 per cent, the second straight monthly decline and the sharpest drop in 15 months.

Greenspan disclosed the administration's midyear economic review to the committee. He appeared to be more optimistic in response to questions from the committee than he was in his prepared presentation, which did not give any specific changes in outlook.

In its original forecast in January, the administration predicted unemployment would be between 7 and 7.5 per cent by the end of the year, with price inflation of 5.9 per cent and a real increase in the GNP of 6.2 per cent. Currently 7.3 per cent of the work force is unemployed.

Asked by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., about his new expectations for unemployment, Greenspan said, "I expect it clearly to be under 7 per cent."

He also said under questioning he now believes the increase in GNP maybe about 7 per cent for the year, which he declared is "a moderate change in our forecasts; I do not consider it a major change."

He said that while the economic recovery had exceeded expectations in its early stages, it probably is "fairly average" as far as recoveries from recessions go.

"Consequently, although the pace of recovery should be expected to subside a bit, there is no evidence that it will fade or peter out in the immediate or foreseeable future," he said.

He said gains in income and employment and an expectation that capital spending will increase later this year "increasingly suggest a sustained and durable recovery."

But he urged that the government practice restraint in its money and spending policies in the next few years to avoid risking another round of inflation in the future.

"Unless we can accomplish this, we cannot safely count on a continued deceleration in inflation. Indeed we cannot even count on being able to avoid another serious future recession," he added.

Ford Plans Five-Day Fourth of July

Washington (UPI) — President Ford will mark America's 200th birthday with five days of Fourth of July celebrations ranging from visits to Valley Forge and Independence Hall to the monitoring of a spaceship landing on Mars, the White House announced Thursday.

Ford's speeches July 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 "will together form one statement" about America's founding, history, development and "what he hopes and plans for the future," press secretary Ron Nessen said.

He said the President's schedule for the bicentennial birthday begins July 1 with a speech dedicating the Smithsonian Institution's new air and space museum in Washington.

Thereafter, Nessen said, the itinerary will include:

July 2: A speech at the National Archive in Washington, opening an exhibit of the documents of American liberty, including the Magna Carta loaned by Queen Elizabeth, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution.

July 3: Attendance at a bicentennila entertainment salute at Washington's Kennedy Center.

July 4: "A speech at Valley Forge, Pa., site of the winter quarters where George Washington fashioned a victorious American Revolutionary Army; and another at Philadelphia's Independence Hall, where the Declaration of Independence was signed.

On the afternoon of July 4, Nessen said, Ford will visit New York Harbor to review Operation Sail, an armada of 200 sailing ships visiting for the bicentennial celebrations.

Ford then returns to the White House to observe, in the evening, a special fireworks display and to monitor the scheduled landing of an unmanned U.S. Viking spaceship on Mars.

On July 5, he will travel to Thomas Jefferson's Virginia home, Monticello, to preside over the swearing in of new American citizens at a naturalization ceremony.

"It is the further recommendation of the committee that the CIA and other intelligence agencies should submit an inventory of the records to be destroyed" to the panel, Inouye said in a letter to Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and Minority Leader Hugh Scott.

Mansfield and Scott earlier in the week had left it to the new panel to decide whether the CIA should be allowed to destroy its files on its past misdeeds.

Senate Tax Reform Fight Likely

Washington (UPI) — Liberal senators, preparing for a floor fight over tax reform next week, announced Thursday a package of amendments designed to take a bigger tax bite from exporters, multinational companies and the well-to-do.

Included are a strengthening of the minimum tax, deletion of a proposed maximum tax of 50% on unearned income, and end to tax deferral on foreign income, stronger curbs on tax shelters except in residential real estate, a reduction in the foreign tax credit for oil and a reduction in export subsidies.

One amendment would give a greater tax break, advancing the effective date of a liberalized retirement income credit for the elderly.

Most of the amendments would junk provisions of the Senate Finance Committee's bill scheduled for floor action early next week, and substitute stronger House-passed provisions.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., leading the fight, called the Finance Committee bill "a real fraud under the name of tax reform."

The amendments, some of which are toned down from the usual liberal position, represent a limited but realistic attempt to make a step toward reform, according to the 13 co-sponsors.

"The failure of tax reform in the past is that we tried to bite off more than we could digest or consume or chew," said Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., at a news conference with most of the co-sponsors.

Acknowledging that "our track record in the past has not been good," Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said each of the seven proposals "has a good chance of passage."

Congress is working under a deadline of July 1 for passage of some kind of bill because current individual tax cuts expire on that date.

Breakfast of sliced mangoes and fresh pineapple. Heavy roast Haiti coffee with Haiti sugar. A couple of spoonsful of fragrant Barbancourt rum — made double-distilled from the cane itself. Not from the residue of molasses.

"The fish trusts the water, and it is in the water that it is cooked," says the Creole proverb.

It's easy to swim through the tourist life in Haiti. Warm. Sunny. Morning eases into shady noon. Afternoon light flows off the mirror-green banana leaves. The sky darkens over the Caribbean. The lights of Port-au-Prince come on in chess board squares of blue-green.

Ice tickles in a tall glass and smells of fresh lime.

This is not a barefoot island. It's a little formal — but so's most of the Caribbean. They don't go for the wraparound pareu of the South Pacific.

"Gentlemen will please wear jackets after the cocktail hour." That's the sign in my room. Not many do — (Or not many of us are gentlemen. The weather is warm — not hot. But it's not jacket weather. It's short-sleeve time.)

In air-conditioned restaurants, we do the whole bit: Jacket, tie. If you live here, you own a few starchy white linen suits.

A man from a Haiti art gallery said: "Our black ancestors — in freedom — wore silks and satins and wigs. They copied the courts of Europe."

☆ ☆ ☆

Not barefoot for tourists. But bare bottom country for country kids. As you ride a plodding horse from Cap Haitien to King Christophe's citadel, the kids follow you.

You, blanc, are a curiosity. YOU with your clothes and cameras.

They follow you, bare as a mango. Black as a piece of anthracite coal.

They play homemade bamboo flutes. Trotting up hills that make the horses pant.

"Un gourde, M'sieu! For the music." (A gourde of 100 centimes is 20 cents U.S. We pay the gourde. ("Only the knife knows what's in the heart of the yam," says the Haiti proverb. Look in my heart and you'll find it soft as warm butter.)

☆ ☆ ☆

Freedom didn't come easy to the only black republic on our side of the world.

The French were here for a hundred years. Instead of black freedom, they left behind a mulatto aristocracy.

I talked to a Haitian, educated in the U.S. Except for black hair, his skin and features were like mine. What I've unherited from northern Europe.

He said: "You should see my grandmother. She could have come off one of your Aunt Jemima pancake packages."

☆ ☆ ☆

He said: "The white French had children by a black mother. The woman was rewarded. She became 'affranchi' — a free woman."

"She could wear the long dress of the 'affranchi.' She could wear the turban of the 'affranchi.' " (The affranchi turban you still see, worn as a costume by some waitresses. As New Orleans cocktail waitresses wear the spangled tights of the old wicked French Quarter.)

☆ ☆ ☆

They say President Francois "Papa Dock" Duvalier tried to break down the light-skinned aristocracy. The light-skins say they're as black as anybody else. But so far, I haven't seen one COAL black in high business position.

"Papa Doc" is gone. Tourists are returning to Haiti. Down at the Presidential Palace, "Papa Doc's son is "President-for-Life. A stocky 23-year-old who took office at 19. He hires and fires Ministers. For a hobby, rides hot rod motorcycles.

Inflationary Boom Cautioned Against

Geneva (AP) — If the current recovery accelerates much further, it can easily "degenerate into a new inflationary boom, leading quite probably to a new world-wide recession in 1977 or 1978," Emile van Lennep, secretary-general of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, said.

Omaha Cop Supervision Is Sought

By The Associated Press

State Sen. Ernest Chambers says there should be state regulation of Omaha police because there currently is "no meaningful guidance or supervision" for the force.

In a letter to fellow lawmakers, the Omaha solon said Safety Director Richard Roth and Police Chief Richard Andersen have not been providing leadership.

Meanwhile, Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky said the legislature should consider making it a felony to flee from police in a motor vehicle, even if the person is being sought for an apparent misdemeanor.

Zorinsky said he would not change the city's policy on pursuits, which Chambers has said is responsible for several incidents, one of them fatal, recently.

In his letter, Chambers said he was convinced many of the incidents were not accidental.

"Various officers are psychologically unsuited to police work and totally unfit to deal with the discretionary power to take human life," he said.

"Remember these 'accident' prone gun wielders are the ones who are supposed to enforce the law in September when the schools are desegregated," Chambers wrote. "It is not a very encouraging prospect when their rules permit almost any dangerous conduct toward citizens."

Chambers said Omahans don't know whether Zorinsky is mayor or candidate for the U. S. Senate.

"He will take a position against busing, over which he has no jurisdiction. But he adopts a hands-off policy on police matters, over which he does have jurisdiction," Chambers said of the Democratic senatorial nominee.

South Pole's Cold Waters Are Studied

No one knows yet what might be found in the cold, dark water near the South Pole.

To explore this area is the purpose of the Ross Ice Shelf Project (RISP).

The first attempt to drill through the Ross Ice Shelf will start this fall, according to John Splettstoesser, administrative director of the RISP Management Office, located at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The Ross Ice Shelf is a floating mass of glacier ice attached to the continent of Antarctica. The ice shelf has a surface area of about 200,000 square miles, 2.5 times the size of Nebraska, and is 800 to 2,000 feet thick.

After two years of delays and postponements, the first drilling will begin in November.

Dr. John Clough, science director and principal investigator of the project, said the program is unique.

He said the goals of the project are to satisfy scientific curiosity. Answers to questions about how much the water interacts with the open sea, and about peculiar forms of life in the water will be sought, and he said the ice and sediment should give clues to the past history of the region.

The entire ice shelf was covered by a much larger ice mass some 6,000 years ago, he said. The mass retreated or shrank, leaving behind a floating ice shelf.

The Ross Ice Shelf is one of the two major shelves still remaining in the world.

Dr. Clough has been to the Antarctic six times and Splettstoesser has been there four times.

Since the RISP office began, grants totalling $1.78 million dollars have been awarded to the University for its projects.

Elizabeth And Richard

The Volcano Exploded, Stopped, Exploded Again

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fifth of six articles excerpted from a book by the authors of the best-selling "Jackie and Ari.")

By LESTER DAVID and JHAN ROBBINS

Speaking of his marriage to Elizabeth Taylor, Richard Burton once said: "I live on the edge of a volcano — an exciting volcano."

Deep beneath the surface of the marriage, elements were coming together that, before too long, were to exert an explosive pressure.

Quarrels over his drinking intensified. His movie work skidded badly.

By 1972, Variety, the show business bible, was reporting in a review of a forgettable film called Hammersmith is Out, which starred the couple: "Burton goes through the film with a single bored expression . . . It's getting uncomfortably difficult to watch Richard Burton now without thinking of John Barrymore in his last days, parading the bleary remnants of a considerable talent through material at once third-rate and self-parodying."

Elizabeth, moving from film to film with scarcely a breather, nerve-frazzled, not up to par physically, was hurt, bewildered and upset.

Separated, Then Together

In the Spring of 1973, the Burtons separated for 17 days, then reconciled.

In the summer of 1973, Elizabeth was in Los Angeles to visit her mother and see old friends. At the home of the late British actor Laurence Harvey, she watched a private showing of the movie Night Watch she had made with him the year before. With Peter Lawford as escort, she was seen around town a good deal.

Burton had gone to an isolated summer home in Quogue on Long Island's south shore. He was far from tranquil when he read about Elizabeth's antics in Hollywood. He picked up the telephone and, according to a Hollywood gossip columnist, thundered to her: "Get your ass back here or you won't have an ass to sit on." She boarded a plane.

Burton met her at Kennedy Airport in a limousine and together they started for Quogue. It was a tender meeting. But before they had gone halfway, they began to argue. The quarreling became so bitter that Elizabeth returned to New York and checked into a hotel.

Acts On Her Own

On July 3, Elizabeth finally acted. She wrote her own statement to the press:

"I am convinced it would be a good and constructive idea if Richard and I are separated for a while. Maybe we have loved each other too much (not that I ever believed such a thing was possible) but we have been in each other's pockets constantly, never being apart except for matters of life and death, and I believe this has caused a temporary breakdown in communications . . ."

She said she would leave for California in a few days to see "my mother and old and true friends."

Burton burned up the telephone wires between New York and Los Angeles. He left for Rome and called again — and again and again.

Meanwhile Elizabeth had met Henry Wynberg, a wealthy Los Angeles used car dealer, who would play a role in her life from then on. Three weeks after her arrival in California, however, she was aboard a jet bound for Rome — and a meeting with Richard Burton.

At the Rome airport, Elizabeth and Richard embraced and kissed warmly.

But once again they separated, and Elizabeth announced she would seek a "friendly divorce" in Switzerland, their legal residence.

MARRIAGE VOWS IN AFRICA . . with Ivory rings.

AP

In December of 1973, she entered the Medical Center at the University of California in Los Angeles, where doctors removed an ovarian cyst. Burton, ashen-faced, rushed to visit her. His get-well gift was a diamond pendant.

Later that month, the couple returned to their home in Switzerland, seemingly happy, seemingly reconciled.

"Richard waited on her tenderly," says a friend. "But as her strength grew, so did his voice. Soon, they were quarreling something fierce."

In April of 1974, four months later, Elizabeth filed for divorce!

On June 26 the judge awarded her the divorce on the grounds of incompatibility.

Elizabeth received custody of their adopted daughter, and rights to their yacht Kalizma and her fabled collection of gems, then valued at about $5,000,000.

Burton In Seclusion

And Burton?

He was in seclusion in New York. Two days later, he boarded the transatlantic liner France for Europe. His traveling companions were a pet Pekingese called E'enso (Shakespearian for "even so") and 27-year-old Ellen Rossen.

The press set up a hullabaloo about Ellen's presence, with leering references to a "grieving" Burton mending his broken heart . . . The suggestion of an affair between the two was untrue. Actually, he had known Ellen since she was a child. She was the daughter of an old friend. An affair with Ellen, Burton told friends, would be practically incest.

Vittorio De Sica, the late great Italian filmmaker who directed Burton in Naples and Rome the summer the marriage shattered, revealed his true state of mind during those on-again, off-again months:

"Richard," said De Sica, "was a man ready to die. A man killing himself. He drank, he came onto the set shaking, in a daze. It broke my heart to see him, because he has pride and you knew he didn't want it that way."

Elizabeth spent some time in Hollywood, then went to Moscow to make The Bluebird. Richard telephoned her frequently, often several times daily. She put it bluntly: "Booze — no me. No booze — me."

So he began dating other girls — models, stewardesses, teenage starlets, mature movie queens. A new Elizabeth came into his life, the 38-year-old Princess Elizabeth of Yugoslavia.

On October 17, with the princess at his side, he announced: "We are going to get married as soon as it is practically possible." (The princess was married to Neil Balfour, a 30-year-old British banker.)

Princess Elizabeth is the daughter of Prince Paul and Princess Olga of Yugoslavia, who fled their country following World War II. She is a second cousin to the heir to the British throne, Prince Charles.

The romance, and the marriage plans, went glimmering as 1974 ended.

Doctors Give Ultimatum

Winter ended, and with spring came a doctors' ultimatum.

"The learned doctors told me," he said, that "if I continued to booze, I should be prepared to welcome the end." A published report said he had been given only a few months to live.

He went to his villa on Lake Geneva in Switzerland, a surprisingly modest little house with simple furnishings but a large library of 3,000 books. There, in the tiny village of Celigny, Burton set about licking the liquor problem.

A tall, beautiful black model and actress whom he had met on a movie set played a key role in getting him off the bottle.

He remembers her with affection and gratitude.

Her name is Jean Bell. And she may have saved not only his career, but his life. In October, 1969, Ms. Bell, who was born in Jamaica, became the first black girl to be photographed for a Playboy centerfold. A graduate of Phyllis Wheatly High School in Houston, Tex., she took a job in a downtown men's clothing store, then became a secretary for a steel company, placed in beauty contests, was awarded a scholarship to a modeling school and won roles in two Burton films, The Klansman in 1974 and The Jackpot, shelved before it was finished in 1975.

One-Man Alcohol Center

The Villa At Celigny became a one-man alcohol rehabilitation center. Burton wisely began his drying-out under the supervision of a Swiss doctor — and Jean Bell. "They stopped my drinking dead," Richard recalls.

His detoxification from alcohol was medically supervised. He was given sedatives, tranquilizers and anticonvulsants in the proper amounts to minimize any possible withdrawal symptoms. Along with the medications was a program of recreation, nutritious food and exercise.

Jean Bell refuses to take credit for getting Burton to stop drinking. "Richard put himself on the wagon," she insists, though adding: "I assisted him. I suppose I gave him soul. He had to have somebody to talk to and to listen to, and he had to have peace of mind. I helped supply that."

During the hard weeks, Jean visited him often at the villa. She lived nearby, in Geneva.

By early fall, Richard Burton was drinking only milk and Perrier mineral water.

'This Is Permanent'

On August 20, 1975, Richard told an aide, "Elizabeth and I may soon remarry." And then he added, "This is not a trial reconciliation — this is permanent!

The fear that she might have cancer, Elizabeth explained, helped her decide to remarry Richard. X-rays taken for a suspected broken rib revealed two spots on her lungs. She told Richard and for about 12 hours both feared the worst. But next day the doctor reported the spots were scars from an old, silent case of TB she had never known she had.

Recalling the "overwhelming" feeling of love she felt for Burton during those terrible hours of waiting tipped the scales for remarriage.

On a pilgrimage to Jerusalem's Wailing Wall, Burton, wearing a skullcap, and Elizabeth a flowered silk headscarf, made brief appearances. They communicated their respect for the ancient holy place — and the crowds seemed to sense it.

$40 Ivory Rings

They left Israel, still unmarried, and made their way to Africa. There, on October 10, in a primitive Botswana village, they exchanged ivory rings, cost: $40.

A few weeks after their remarriage, at Elizabeth's urging, Burton decided to return to the stage. He read dozens of plays, but nothing seemed suitable. Finally his agent suggested he read Equus, then running in New York.

He stayed up all night reading it, blocking out the role in his mind. He agreed to play it in New York, replacing Anthony Perkins.

Although he had been an actor for more than 30 years and a major star for 20, Burton was terrified. "To be blunt," he says, "I was bloody scared! Frightened!

The play opened in New York late in February. The reviews were ecstatic.

Suddenly, however, during preview performances preceding opening night, the Burtons startled the world: a seething Elizabeth canceled a 44th birthday party scheduled at a Greenwich Village restaurant and flew to the west coast; an uncharacteristically subdued Richard remained behind, and opened in New York.

The couple was separating again!

'Out Of Gas' Signs Unlikely This Month

By United Press International

Nebraska's fuel allocation officer said Thursday summer traffic is up over last year and should continue to roll across the state at least through the end of this month without hitting a string of stations displaying "out of gas" signs.

"I think we'll make it through June. But it wouldn't surprise me all that much if a filling station or two was out of product around the end of the month," said George Dworak in an interview.

He said it is too early to tell what the fuel situation will be in July. He won't find out until allocations and supporting information for the months arrive in his office toward the end of this month.

Later Crunch Possible

There is a chance, Dworak said, that there may be a fuel crunch later in the summer when the refineries that have been operating at capacity without stopping for maintenance finally reach the point that they must cease for a while to work over equipment.

Dworak said his office has been fielding some calls from operators requesting permission to tap the state's 2.6 million gallon reserve in gasoline and 1.75 million gallon field fuel reserve. From that information, he said there is no doubt that station operators are selling more than they did a year ago.

The allocation officer said his shopping records indicate that over the first four months of this year operators bought 32 million more gallons of gasoline than a year ago, a 12.6 per cent increase for those months. He said that doesn't necessarily mean they sold it.

Based On 1972

Fuel allocations for the state are based on the year 1972, the point at which the fuel crisis was at its peak.

Dworak said he hasn't heard yet exactly when refineries overdue on maintenance will be shutting down. He said he hoped they would build up sufficient reserves before they do.

Should the fuel situation reach the crisis stage, he said agricultural use would demand the same top priority as in the past for distributing out fuels available.

In May, Dworak said, there was a localized shortage in Omaha where "three or four stations shut down" over the Memorial Day weekend.

Elizabeth And Richard

The Volcano Exploded, Stopped, Exploded Again

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fifth of six articles excerpted from a book by the authors of the best-selling "Jackie and Ari.")

By LESTER DAVID and JHAN ROBBINS

Speaking of his marriage to Elizabeth Taylor, Richard Burton once said: "I live on the edge of a volcano — an exciting volcano."

Deep beneath the surface of the marriage, elements were coming together that, before too long, were to exert an explosive pressure.

Quarrels over his drinking intensified. His movie work skidded badly.

By 1972, Variety, the show business bible, was reporting in a review of a forgettable film called Hammersmith is Out, which starred the couple: "Burton goes through the film with a single bored expression . . . It's getting uncomfortably difficult to watch Richard Burton now without thinking of John Barrymore in his last days, parading the bleary remnants of a considerable talent through material at once third-rate and self-parodying."

Elizabeth, moving from film to film with scarcely a breather, nerve-frazzled, not up to par physically, was hurt, bewildered and upset.

Separated, Then Together

In the Spring of 1973, the Burtons separated for 17 days, then reconciled.

In the summer of 1973, Elizabeth was in Los Angeles to visit her mother and see old friends. At the home of the late British actor Laurence Harvey, she watched a private showing of the movie Night Watch she had made with him the year before. With Peter Lawford as escort, she was seen around town a good deal.

Burton had gone to an isolated summer home in Quogue on Long Island's south shore. He was far from tranquil when he read about Elizabeth's antics in Hollywood. He picked up the telephone and, according to a Hollywood gossip columnist, thundered to her: "Get your ass back here or you won't have an ass to sit on." She boarded a plane.

Burton met her at Kennedy Airport in a limousine and together they started for Quogue. It was a tender meeting. But before they had gone halfway, they began to argue. The quarreling became so bitter that Elizabeth returned to New York and checked into a hotel.

Acts On Her Own

On July 3, Elizabeth finally acted. She wrote her own statement to the press:

"I am convinced it would be a good and constructive idea if Richard and I are separated for a while. Maybe we have loved each other too much (not that I ever believed such a thing was possible) but we have been in each other's pockets constantly, never being apart except for matters of life and death, and I believe this has caused a temporary breakdown in communications . . ."

She said she would leave for California in a few days to see "my mother and old and true friends."

Burton burned up the telephone wires between New York and Los Angeles. He left for Rome and called again — and again and again.

Meanwhile Elizabeth had met Henry Wynberg, a wealthy Los Angeles used car dealer, who would play a role in her life from then on. Three weeks after her arrival in California, however, she was aboard a jet bound for Rome — and a meeting with Richard Burton.

At the Rome airport, Elizabeth and Richard embraced and kissed warmly.

But once again they separated, and Elizabeth announced she would seek a "friendly divorce" in Switzerland, their legal residence.

AP

MARRIAGE VOWS IN AFRICA . . with Ivory rings.

In December of 1973, she entered the Medical Center at the University of California in Los Angeles, where doctors removed an ovarian cyst. Burton, ashen-faced, rushed to visit her. His get-well gift was a diamond pendant.

Later that month, the couple returned to their home in Switzerland, seemingly happy, seemingly reconciled.

"Richard waited on her tenderly," says a friend. "But as her strength grew, so did his voice. Soon, they were quarreling something fierce."

In April of 1974, four months later, Elizabeth filed for divorce!

On June 26 the judge awarded her the divorce on the grounds of incompatibility.

Elizabeth received custody of their adopted daughter, and rights to their yacht Kalizma and her fabled collection of gems, then valued at about $5,000,000.

Burton In Seclusion

And Burton?

He was in seclusion in New York. Two days later, he boarded the transatlantic liner France for Europe. His traveling companions were a pet Pekingese called E'enso (Shakespearian for "even so") and 27-year-old Ellen Rossen.

The press set up a hullabaloo about Ellen's presence, with leering referenecs to a "grieving" Burton mending his broken heart . . . The suggestion of an affair between the two was untrue. Actually, he had known Ellen since she was a child. She was the daughter of an old friend. An affair with Ellen, Burton told friends, would be practically incest.

Vittorio De Sica, the late great Italian filmmaker who directed Burton in Naples and Rome the summer the marriage shattered, revealed his true state of mind during those on-again, off-again months:

"Richard," said De Sica, "was a man ready to die. A man killing himself. He drank, he came onto the set shaking, in a daze. It broke my heart to see him, because he has pride and you knew he didn't want it that way."

Elizabeth spent some time in Hollywood, then went to Moscow to make The Bluebird. Richard telephoned her frequently, often several times daily. She put it bluntly: "Booze — no me. No booze — me."

So he began dating other girls — models, stewardesses, teenage starlets, mature movie queens. A new Elizabeth came into his life, the 38-year-old Princess Elizabeth of Yugoslavia.

On October 17, with the princess at his side, he announced: "We are going to get married as soon as it is practically possible." (The princess was married to Neil Balfour, a 30-year-old British banker.)

Princess Elizabeth is the daughter of Prince Paul and Princess Olga of Yugoslavia, who fled their country following World War II. She is a second cousin to the heir to the British throne, Prince Charles.

The romance, and the marriage plans, went glimmering as 1974 ended.

Doctors Give Ultimatum

Winter ended, and with spring came a doctors' ultimatum.

"The learned doctors told me," he said, that "if I continued to booze, I should be prepared to welcome the end." A published report said he had been given only a few months to live.

He went to his villa on Lake Geneva in Switzerland, a surprisingly modest little house with simple furnishings but a large library of 3,000 books. There, in the tiny village of Celigny, Burton set about licking the liquor problem.

A tall, beautiful black model and actress whom he had met on a movie set played a key role in getting him off the bottle.

He remembers her with affection and gratitude.

Her name is Jean Bell. And she may have saved not only his career, but his life. In October, 1969, Ms. Bell, who was born in Jamaica, became the first black girl to be photographed for a Playboy centerfold. A graduate of Phyllis Wheatly High School in Houston, Tex., she took a job in a downtown men's clothing store, then became a secretary for a steel company, placed in beauty contests, was awarded a scholarship to a modeling school and won roles in two Burton films, The Klansman in 1974 and The Jackpot, shelved before it was finished in 1975.

One-Man Alcohol Center

The Villa At Celigny became a one-man alcohol rehabilitation center. Burton wisely began his drying-out under the supervision of a Swiss doctor — and Jean Bell. "They stopped my drinking dead," Richard recalls.

His detoxification from alcohol was medically supervised. He was given sedatives, tranquilizers and anticonvulsants in the proper amounts to minimize any possible withdrawal symptoms. Along with the medications was a program of recreation, nutritious food and exercise.

Jean Bell refuses to take credit for getting Burton to stop drinking. "Richard put himself on the wagon," she insists, though adding: "I assisted him. I suppose I gave him soul. He had to have somebody to talk to and to listen to, and he had to have peace of mind. I helped supply that."

During the hard weeks, Jean visited him often at the villa. She lived nearby, in Geneva.

By early fall, Richard Burton was drinking only milk and Perrier mineral water.

'This Is Permanent'

On August 20, 1975, Richard told an aide, "Elizabeth and I may soon remarry." And then he added, "This is not a trial reconciliation — this is permanent!

The fear that she might have cancer, Elizabeth explained, helped her decide to remarry Richard. X-rays taken for a suspected broken rib revealed two spots on her lungs. She told Richard and for about 12 hours both feared the worst. But next day the doctor reported the spots were scars from an old, silent case of TB she had never known she had.

Recalling the "overwhelming" feeling of love she felt for Burton during those terrible hours of waiting tipped the scales for remarriage.

On a pilgrimage to Jerusalem's Wailing Wall, Burton, wearing a skullcap, and Elizabeth a flowered silk headscarf, made brief appearances. They communicated their respect for the ancient holy place — and the crowds seemed to sense it.

$40 Ivory Rings

They left Israel, still unmarried, and made their way to Africa. There, on October 10, in a primitive Botswana village, they exchanged ivory rings, cost: $40.

A few weeks after their remarriage, at Elizabeth's urging, Burton decided to return to the stage. He read dozens of plays, but nothing seemed suitable. Finally his agent suggested he read Equas, then running in New York.

He stayed up all night reading it, blocking out the role in his mind. He agreed to play it in New York, replacing Anthony Perkins.

Although he had been an actor for more than 30 years and a major star for 20, Burton was terrified. "To be blunt," he says, "I was bloody scared! Frightened!

The play opened in New York late in February. The reviews were ecstatic.

Suddenly, however, during preview performances preceding opening night, the Burtons startled the world: a seething Elizabeth canceled a 44th birthday party scheduled at a Greenwich Village restaurant and flew to the west coast; an uncharacteristically subdued Richard remained behind, and opened in New York.

The couple was separating again!

'Out Of Gas' Signs Unlikely This Month

By United Press International

Nebraska's fuel allocation officer said Thursday summer traffic is up over last year and should continue to roll across the state at least through the end of this month without hitting a string of stations displaying "out of gas" signs.

"I think we'll make it through June. But it wouldn't surprise me all that much if a filling station or two was out of product around the end of the month," said George Dworak in an interview.

He said it is too early to tell what the fuel situation will be in July. He won't find out until allocations and supporting information for the months arrive in his office toward the end of this month.

Later Crunch Possible

There is a chance, Dworak said, that there may be a fuel crunch later in the summer when the refineries that have been operating at capacity without stopping for maintenance finally reach the point that they must cease for a while to work over equipment.

Dworak said his office has been fielding some calls from operators requesting permission to tap the state's 2.6 million gallon reserve in gasoline and 1.75 million gallon field fuel reserve. From that information, he said there is no doubt that station operators are selling more than they did a year ago.

The allocation officer said his shopping records indicate that over the first four months of this year operators bought 32 million more gallons of gasoline than a year ago, a 12.6 per cent increase for those months. He said that doesn't necessarily mean they sold it.

Based On 1972

Fuel allocations for the state are based on the year 1972, the point at which the fuel crisis was at its peak.

Dworak said he hasn't heard yet exactly when refineries overdue on maintenance will be shutting down. He said he hoped they would build up sufficient reserves before they do.

Should the fuel situation reach the crisis stage, he said agricultural use would demand the same top priority as in the past for distributing out fuels available.

In May, Dworak said, there was a localized shortage in Omaha where "three or four stations shut down" over the Memorial Day weekend.

Burned? On A Hot Raisin?

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

Fixing breakfast at 6 a.m. is rough enough, but burning yourself on a hot raisin! That's not only inexplicable, that's ridiculous.

You see, at least six days out of the week, breakfast at our house is a junk food junkie's delight. It runs the gamut from frosted pop tarts to Little Sizzlers, with a few shots of orange juice and lots of raisin toast in between.

At least we used to have a lot of raisin toast . . . but this morning, that ordeal with the hot raisin was too much. Besides, I was fixing it for my wife who has to be at work by 7 a.m. I don't really like raisin toast.

When I grabbed the bread to take it out of the toaster, this little raisin fell out and stuck to my finger, sizzling. I screamed; the wife asked what all the commotion was about; the cat scrambled for safety under the living room couch.

As soon as the excitement waned, and I had been duly reprimanded for sticking my finger in the tub of whipped margarine, I thought, "Well, butterfingers, get your act together and write a letter to the surgeon general."

Imagine suggesting that raisin bread wrappers be labeled with the same warning that has, heretofore, been reserved for cigarette packages:

"WARNING: The surgeon general has determined that toasting this bread may be hazardous to your health."

My co-workers weren't the least bit sympathetic. In fact, all the talk about butterfingers soon made me hungry. Alas, the junk food machines on our floor didn't have a Butterfinger in it, so my thought of revelling in a childhood pleasure never became reality.

Remember how you used to be able to eat all of the chocolate off the outside and be left with the neat golden center which could be later consumed almost like another piece of candy?

Junk food has, through the ages, provided therapeutic value almost double that of its nutrition. Consider, for a moment, the age-old habit of peeling the top cookie layer off of an Oreo and eating the white creamy filling, then eating the bottom chocolate cookie.

This junkie habit hasn't been reserved solely for kids, though. Adults have often found a similar amount of pleasure in this modern day form of dissection.

People have been known to eat the marshmallow coating off of Snowballs, the nuts off of salted nut rolls, the chocolate off of covered peanuts, raisins and ants.

My all-time favorite has to be attacking a jungle full of animal cookies. Ever bite the leg off of a lion, or the neck off a giraffe? Ever notice the looks on the face of the grocery checker when a grown man in a business suit buys 10 boxes of assorted animal goodies, all different brands?

Or, try the look on the face of the editor when a full grown reporter spills a bag of M&Ms on his desk and starts to sort them out by colors, calculating the number of each colors in a package (most are brown.)

Back to breakfast.

Sundays are a real treat: The Sunday paper, a cup of instant cocoa and an angle-cream filled bismark, with a mess of powdery sugar on the outside.

At least one day out of the week I get pancakes, bacon, eggs, oatmeal, milk, the real stuff that breakfasts are made of. But the rest of the time, an X-ray of my stomach would look like a grocery store bargain bin.

That isn't really a fault of my present lifestyle. I have a long history of junk food giving in to fun and frivolity at the expense of my waistline.

There was the quiet Sunday afternoon in the college dorm when lunch was a mid-size bag of Fritos and a head of lettuce. Actually, quite tasty.

Then there was the bachelor day when I fried, browned actually, a piece of lettuce and ate it on bread with mustard and onions. Not bad, but it lacked something, like a piece of meat.

I even once toyed with the idea of writing a book, something like 101 things to do with a macaroni and cheese dinner — the boxed variety which used to sell for about 22 cents. With a little cheese and a diced wiener, not really a bad budget meal.

As my wallet grew, so did my appetite . . . and my waistline. Today I have graduated to Bacon Thins, and Swiss Cheese thins, and chocolate chips right out of the bag, with an occasional Hostess Twinkie or creme filled cupcake thrown in.

The Continental Baking Company says that they produce 50,000 Twinkies an hour, nearly 3 million a week, according to figures released by The Wall Street Journal.

That same story said that consumers are gulping them down at the rate of 700 million, or more, a year. And that's just one type of goodie.

Take heart fellow junkies. The National Livestock and Meat Board says that the average person consumes six to seven snacks daily. Children up to age 12, and women between the ages of 25 and 44 are heavy snackers, the board added, having up to 20 food contacts daily.

So, there you have it. If you fit any of those categories, or can identify with anything I've said, get up off your chair, go to that cupboard, grab that Twinkie, and stuff, stuff, stuff.

She Wants A Date With Elvis

DEAR ABBY: Please don't think I am some kind of kook, because I'm not. I am an attractive 24-year-old, level-headed southern girl who would like to know if there is a way I can get a date with Elvis Presley without having any big connections. I am not a screaming fan who has all his records and would attack him on sight. In fact, I have none of his records, but I have attended some of his concerts, and I do love the way he sings.

I know there must be at least five million other girls who would like to date him, and he has to date someone, so why not me? I honestly believe I could show him a good time.

Please print this and maybe, just maybe, Elvis will realize that he might be missing the chance of a lifetime if he doesn't meet me. Keep my name and phone number, Abby, but don't publish it. If Elvis wants it, he can get in touch with me through you. Sign me . . .

Food Fund Plan Needs Money

Rome (AP) — Establishment of a billion-dollar fund to help poor countries grow more food hinged Thursday on the ability of industrialized nations to raise $600 million in addition to $400 million pledged by oil-producing countries.

As delegates gathered for a two-day conference to set up the International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD), the industrialized nations had public pledges of nearly $500 million for the fund, including $200 million from the United States.

United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim opened the conference saying, "When problems respect no frontiers, answers can only be found through joint efforts. This fund is a constructive, and in many ways an innovative, response to a global problem through international cooperation."

When She Sat Down To Play: Nobody Laughed

EDITOR'S NOTE: Today's contributor is a Lincoln resident who writes what she describes as a true account based on personal experience.)

By FRANCES D. AMEN

Perhaps I'm just plain old-fashioned, but I do believe most families nowadays miss a real thrill when they get most anything they want without much hesitation or sacrifice.

The no-down-payment and the pay-as-you-go plans have speeded up the process of satisfying family cravings. Consequently, their possessions have no real sentimental value. They are ready to trade them off at the drop of a hat.

One of my most treasured memories is the day the movers delivered my beautiful upright piano. We had no phonograpyh or musical instrument of any kind in our home, and radios were not yet popular. My grandparents had an Edison phonograph and whenever we children visited their home we were entranced by the music that mysterious box produced.

I was about twelve years old and for more than a year I had been hankering for a piano. I used to sit at the window and pretend that the sill was my keyboard.

In fact, for nearly a year I had been enrolled in a public school piano class where I received one lesson per week at fifteen cents per lesson. It was the best my parents could afford, and they knew I was determined to learn. The course included a cardboard keyboard at seventy-five cents and a book entitled Hazel Gertrude Kinscella's First Steps in Music at fifty cents. The class teacher was Miss Irene Hiatt, (now Mrs. Faulhaber) a dedicated young woman who was so devoted to her pupils that she often gave us extra attention on her own time.

By the time I had advanced beyond middle C and the octave stage of the cardboard keyboard, my parents had arranged for me to practice every afternoon after school on my aunt's piano at my grandmother's house.

I was the eldest granddaughter on my father's side of the family and my grandmother was quite proud of my learning to play the piano. My aunt had never taken lessons and it was not unusual in those days of families to have a piano in the house even though no one in the household could play a note. It was just fashionable to have a piano.

I always kept my lesson book in the music compartment of the piano bench and I well remember the exotic scent of incense each time I raised up the seat to get my book. It was a fad at that time to burn incense occasionally and my aunt kept a little box if it in that bench.

Meanwhile, my parents were paring down our family budget to begin a piano fund. We were four children in the family and my father's wages as a gas-pipe fitter were at a minimum. It was definitely understood that the piano had to be a second-hand one because, financially, a brand new one was simply out of the question.

One day a friend advised my father that there was an elderly couple living about two blocks up the street who had a piano for sale. Their daughters had married and left home and the old folks were anxious to get rid of what they considered a white elephant.

My father went to see about it and the man had his price fixed at $125.00 cash. Since the piano was in excellent condition my father, who never bargained with anyone, considered it a fair price and he and mother faithfully continued to lay aside a few dollars out of each pay check every week.

I'll never forget how he used to stand on a chair and put the allotted greenbacks in the little brass cache of our dining room chandelier. We had no checking account or safe deposit box and so that was considered the safest place for keeping cash money on hand.

As the weeks and months passed by I stopped in for a glimpse of the piano on my way home from my music lesson one afternoon. The elderly couple graciously let me in and I stood with pure awe and admiration as I realized that some day soon it would be my very own.

When the day arrived on which the full sum had been met, it was carefully recounted and wound into a neat roll. My father handed over the full payment to the seller and arranged for a moving company to pick up the piano and deliver it to our home. That meant an additional $5.00.

Needless to say, my heart was filled to overflowing when that lovely walnut-cased piano graced the chosen corner of our living room and I sat down to run my fingers over the smooth, ivory keys. Believe it or not, nobody laughed.

Bidding Quiz

By B. JAY BECKER

You are South and the bidding has gone:

East	South	West	North
1 ♦	Pass	2 ♦	Dble
Pass	?

What would you bid now with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠ Q9842 ♥ AK5 ♦ 8753 ♣ 6
2. ♠ K86 ♥ J7 ♦ QJ92 ♣ Q843
3. ♠ J874 ♥ AQ53 ♦ 5 ♣ K962
4. ♠ 10 ♥ J652 ♦ 9743 ♣ AK95

1. Three spades. Partner's double is for takeout and, if you were to respond with only two spades, he might think you had a hand that looked something like this:

♠ Q742 ♥ 875 ♦ 8753 ♣ 62

The best way to represent your actual values is by jumping to three spades, thus indicating the game-going possibilities you have. North is not required to bid over three spades, but if he passes you are unlikely to miss a game.

2. Two notrump. It is better to respond two notrump than three clubs, a bid you could make with no high-card values at all! Two notrump is a forward-going bid that indicates moderate values (at least one diamond stopper and probably 6 to 10 points). Partner carries on or not, depending on the size and shape of his hand.

3. Three diamonds. It's hard to imagine any hand North could have where you wouldn't have a good chance for game. However, it's not feasible to make a jump response in one of your suits because you might choose the wrong one and thus wind up in the wrong contract.

You should assume your side has a game if you find the right suit to play in, and the best way of locating the proper trump suit is by a cuebid that forces partner to select the suit. You plan to raise North to game in any suit he picks in response to your cuebid.

4. Two hearts. Here you're not quite strong enough for a jump response, so the problem is whether to bid two hearts or three clubs. Actually, neither response indicates any high-card strength, but the fact is that a two heart bid is far more likely to stimulate a further bid from North than a three club bid. A prospective ten-trick game is obviously more enticing than a prospective eleven-trick game. If North raises two hearts to three, you should gladly bid four. You have values much greater than partner has a right to expect.

The Ultimate Substitute Is Here!

We are living in the Golden Era of Substitutes.

Restaurants serve pats of margarine instead of butter. Hamburgers are made with soybean extender. Our coffee is laced with non-diary whitener instead of cream. Our chocolate bars are made from corn syrup.

And now, the last salvo has been fired. The ultimate substitute has been developed: imitation caviar.

This new product is not coming from an upstart company trying to knock off the caviar market. As a matter of fact, the pseudo-caviar is coming from the western world's largest producer of the real stuff, Romanoff Caviar Co.

Arnold Hansen-Sturn, Romanoff's president, said the company has no immediate plans to market the artificial product, even though it has perfected the formula.

Hansen-Sturm said the imitation product tastes very much like the imported sturgeon caviar that retails for about $25 for a 4-ounce jar.

But it probably would be priced higher than the $5 per 4-ounce container usually charged for Romanoff's domestic red salmon caviar.

"The Soviets have announced that they have developed an ersatz caviar," Hansen-Sturm explained. "We thought we would make our announcement just to let them know that we, too, have the ability to produce a simulated caviar."

The class teacher was Miss Irene Hiatt, (now Mrs. Faulhaber) a dedicated young woman who was so devoted to her pupils that she often gave us extra attention on her own time.

By the time I had advanced beyond middle C and the octave stage of the cardboard keyboard, my parents had arranged for me to practice every afternoon after school on my aunt's piano at my grandmother's house.

I was the eldest granddaughter on my father's side of the family and my grandmother was quite proud of my learning to play the piano. My aunt had never taken lessons and it was not unusual in those days of families to have a piano in the house even though no one in the household could play a note. It was just fashionable to have a piano.

I always kept my lesson book in the music compartment of the piano bench and I well remember the exotic scent of incense each time I raised up the seat to get my book. It was a fad at that time to burn incense occasionally and my aunt kept a little box if it in that bench.

Meanwhile, my parents were paring down our family budget to begin a piano fund. We were four children in the family and my father's wages as a gas-pipe fitter were at a minimum. It was definitely understood that the piano had to be a second-hand one because, financially, a brand new one was simply out of the question.

One day a friend advised my father that there was an elderly couple living about two blocks up the street who had a piano for sale. Their daughters had married and left home and the old folks were anxious to get rid of what they considered a white elephant.

My father went to see about it and the man had his price fixed at $125.00 cash. Since the piano was in excellent condition my father, who never bargained with anyone, considered it a fair price and he and mother faithfully continued to lay aside a few dollars out of each pay check every week.

I'll never forget how he used to stand on a chair and put the allotted greenbacks in the little brass cache of our dining room chandelier. We had no checking account or safe deposit box and so that was considered the safest place for keeping cash money on hand.

As the weeks and months passed by I stopped in for a glimpse of the piano on my way home from my music lesson one afternoon. The elderly couple graciously let me in and I stood with pure awe and admiration as I realized that some day soon it would be my very own.

When the day arrived on which the full sum had been met, it was carefully recounted and wound into a neat roll. My father handed over the full payment to the seller and arranged for a moving company to pick up the piano and deliver it to our home. That meant an additional $5.00.

Needless to say, my heart was filled to overflowing when that lovely walnut-cased piano graced the chosen corner of our living room and I sat down to run my fingers over the smooth, ivory keys. Believe it or not, nobody laughed.

Bridge

Bidding Quiz

By B. JAY BECKER

You are South and the bidding has gone:

East	South	West	North
1 ♦	Pass	2 ♦	Dble
Pass	?

What would you bid now with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠Q9842 ♥AK5 ♦8753 ♣6
2. ♠K86 ♥J7 ♦QJ92 ♣Q843
3. ♠J874 ♥AQ53 ♦5 ♣K962
4. ♠10 ♥J652 ♦9743 ♣AK95

1. Three spades. Partner's double is for takeout and, if you were to respond with only two spades, he might think you had a hand that looked something like this:

♠Q742 ♥875 ♦8753 ♣62

The best way to represent your actual values is by jumping to three spades, thus indicating the game-going possibilities you have. North is not required to bid over three spades, but if he passes you are unlikely to miss a game.

2. Two notrump. It is better to respond two notrump than three clubs, a bid you could make with no high-card values at all! Two notrump is a forward-going bid that indicates moderate values (at least one diamond stopper and probably 6 to 10 points). Partner carries on or not, depending on the size and shape of his hand.

3. Three diamonds. It's hard to imagine any hand North could have where you wouldn't have a good chance for game. However, it's not feasible to make a jump response in one of your suits because you might choose the wrong one and thus wind up in the wrong contract.

You should assume your side has a game if you find the right suit to play in, and the best way of locating the proper trump suit is by a cuebid that forces partner to select the suit. You plan to raise North to game in any suit he picks in response to your cuebid.

4. Two hearts. Here you're not quite strong enough for a jump response, so the problem is whether to bid two hearts or three clubs. Actually, neither response indicates any high-card strength, but the fact is that a two heart bid is far more likely to stimulate a further bid from North than a three club bid. A prospective ten-trick game is obviously more enticing than a prospective eleven-trick game. If North raises two hearts to three, you should gladly bid four. You have values much greater than partner has a right to expect.

The Ultimate Substitute Is Here!

We are living in the Golden Era of Substitutes.

Restaurants serve pats of margarine instead of butter. Hamburgers are made with soybean extender. Our coffee is laced with non-diary whitener instead of cream. Our chocolate bars are made from corn syrup.

And now, the last salvo has been fired. The ultimate substitute has been developed: imitation caviar.

This new product is not coming from an upstart company trying to knock off the caviar market. As a matter of fact, the pseudo-caviar is coming from the western world's largest producer of the real stuff, Romanoff Caviar Co.

Arnold Hansen-Sturn, Romanoff's president, said the company has no immediate plans to market the artificial product, even though it has perfected the formula.

Hansen-Sturm said the imitation product tastes very much like the imported sturgeon caviar that retails for about $25 for a 4-ounce jar.

But it probably would be priced higher than the $5 per 4-ounce container usually charged for Romanoff's domestic red salmon caviar.

"The Soviets have announced that they have developed an ersatz caviar," Hansen-Sturm explained. "We thought we would make our announcement just to let them know that we, too, have the ability to produce a simulated caviar."

Valentine First To Reach 100

By The Associated Press

Valentine achieved the dubious distinction Thursday of becoming the first Nebraska community this summer to pass the 100 degree temperature mark.

As the mercury climbed to 101 degrees at Valentine, temperatures were reaching 99 degrees at Grand Island, Norfolk and Burwell, and Scottsbluff was recording 98 degrees, according to the National Weather Service.

Meanwhile, the Weather Service said no damage resulted when a tornado touched down 1 mile west of Ainsworth

Trial Access Barred

New York (UPI) — A federal judge barred the press and public at a civil trial in which singer Connie Francis is suing the Howard Johnson's motel chain for $5 million, charging it was responsible for her rape in 1974 and her subsequent unhappy sex life.

Federal Employes Get Fooled

Omaha (UPI) — Employes at the U.S. Attorney's office in Omaha's new federal building had a first hand experience Thursday at being conned by a conman.

The experience cost Blanche Failor, an administrative clerk, $20.

U.S. Attorney Dan Wherry said a man wearing a green uniform resembling those worn by General Services Administration employes entered the 8th floor office and proceeded to walk through the corridor.

Most visitors to the office are required to stop at the front desk and receive permission to go further.

"I didn't think anything about it," a secretary said. "I thought he was a janitor."

Wherry said when questioned inside the corridor, the man said he was "checking the air conditioning."

Instead, the man proceeded into Mrs. Failor's office and took her purse which contained $20.

The purse, without the $20, was found later in the men's restroom on the same floor.

"We never took a second look at him at the time," Wherry said. "I guess we're not as immune from crime as we thought we were."

Secretaries said another woman employed on a different floor had her purse stolen Thursday, while another female employe, who had just cashed her mother's Social Security check, had $100 in cash taken from her purse last week.

"The 'M-O' (method of operation) was the same," said a secretary. "I hope they catch him."

Wherry said the proper federal authorities had been notified and an investigation was underway.

"At present," Wherry said, "we think its someone from the outside trying to impersonate a General Services Administration employe."

Viking 1 Still Leaking

Pasadena, Calif. (UPI) — A helium leak continued in the propellant tank of the Viking I Mars probe spacecraft Thursday despite a long engine burn that was expected to blow free any obstruction in a valve.

While scientists guiding the mission worked on that problem, project officials faced a threatened strike of electricians at a space tracking station.

The spacecraft is scheduled to go into orbit June 19 around the red planet and put a lander on the Martian surface July 4, America's 200th birthday.

Scientists at jet propulsion laboratory said pressure continued to rise in the propellant tank from the leaking helium in a pressure regulator. A decision on whether to take other action to close the valve was expected early Friday.

Bees Attack Bus Riders After Crash Ino Pole

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil (UPI) — A swarm of African killer bees Thursday attacked nearly 50 high school students, already injured when their schoolbus collided with another bus in suburban Santa Cruz.

Following the crash on a small bridge in Santa Cruz, 37 miles southwest of Rio de Janeiro, the schoolbus rolled down a steep embankment and smashed into a telephone pole where the killer bees made their hive.

Police said 46 persons, most of them high school students, were treated at local hospitals for bee stings or injuries from the crash. One young girl suffered a broken collarbone and a cracked rib.

Firemen had to fight off the bees while ambulance crews removed the injured.

The African bees have killed some 200 persons since they were first introduced in Brazil in 1956 to increase honey production, according to the government agriculture department figures.

While they do not sting with more force or venom that the common breed of bees, the African variety is quick to anger and when distrubed swarms into enormous clouds and attacks any living creative within range.

Exxon Lowers Price

New York (AP) — Exxon USA has reduced the price of some of its heavy fuel oils by between 10 and 40 cents a barrel, the company said.

Stereo Equipment Worth $919 Stolen

Burglars apparently found easy access through the front door of an apartment at 7200 Candletree. Police said the theft of a TV set, 50 eight-track stereo tapes, two stereo speakers and a turntable, all valued at $919, was reported by Tracy J. Nedela, who resides at that address. The theft took place sometime between June 1st and Thursday, police said.

Federal Employes Get Fooled

Omaha (UPI) — Employes at the U.S. Attorney's office in Omaha's new federal building had a first hand experience Thursday at being conned by a conman.

The experience cost Blanche Failor, an administrative clerk, $20.

U.S. Attorney Dan Wherry said a man wearing a green uniform resembling those worn by General Services Administration employes entered the 8th floor office and proceeded to walk through the corridor.

Most visitors to the office are required to stop at the front desk and receive permission to go further.

"I didn't think anything about it," a secretary said. "I thought he was a janitor."

Wherry said when questioned inside the corridor, the man said he was "checking the air conditioning."

Instead, the man proceeded into Mrs. Failor's office and took her purse which contained $20.

The purse, without the $20, was found later in the men's restroom on the same floor.

"We never took a second look at him at the time," Wherry said. "I guess we're not as immune from crime as we thought we were."

Secretaries said another woman employed on a different floor had her purse stolen Thursday, while another female employe, who had just cashed her mother's Social Security check, had $100 in cash taken from her purse last week.

"The 'M-O' (method of operation) was the same," said a secretary. "I hope they catch him."

Wherry said the proper federal authorities had been notified and an investigation was underway.

"At present," Wherry said, "we think its someone from the outside trying to impersonate a General Services Administration employe."

Viking 1 Still Leaking

Pasadena, Calif. (UPI) — A helium leak continued in the propellant tank of the Viking 1 Mars probe spacecraft Thursday despite a long engine burn that was expected to blow free any obstruction in a valve.

While scientists guiding the mission worked on that problem, project officials faced a threatened strike of electricians at a space tracking station.

The spacecraft is scheduled to go into orbit June 19 around the red planet and put a lander on the Martian surface July 4, America's 200th birthday.

Scientists at jet propulsion laboratory said pressure continued to rise in the propellant tank from the leaking helium in a pressure regulator. A decision on whether to take other action to close the valve was expected early Friday.

Valentine First To Reach 100

By The Associated Press

Valentine achieved the dubious distinction Thursday of becoming the first Nebraska community this summer to pass the 100 degree temperature mark.

As the mercury climbed to 101 degrees at Valentine, temperatures were reaching 99 degrees at Grand Island, Norfolk and Burwell, and Scottsbluff was recording 98 degrees, according to the National Weather Service.

Meanwhile, the Weather Service said no damage resulted when a tornado touched down 1 mile west of Ainsworth

Trial Access Barred

New York (UPI) — A federal judge barred the press and public at a civil trial in which singer Connie Francis is suing the Howard Johnson's motel chain for $5 million, charging it was responsible for her rape in 1974 and her subsequent unhappy sex life.

Bees Attack Bus Riders After Crash Ino Pole

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil (UPI) — A swarm of African killer bees Thursday attacked nearly 50 high school students, already injured when their schoolbus collided with another bus in suburban Santa Cruz.

Following the crash on a small bridge in Santa Cruz, 37 miles southwest of Rio de Janeiro, the schoolbus rolled down a steep embankment and smashed into a telephone pole where the killer bees made their hive.

Police said 46 persons, most of them high school students, were treated at local hospitals for bee stings or injuries from the crash. One young girl suffered a broken collarbone and a cracked rib.

Firemen had to fight off the bees while ambulance crews removed the injured.

The African bees have killed some 200 persons since they were first introduced in Brazil in 1956 to increase honey production, according to the government agriculture department figures.

While they do not sting with more force or venom that the common breed of bees, the African variety is quick to anger and when distrubed swarms into enormous clouds and attacks any living creative within range.

Exxon Lowers Price

New York (AP) — Exxon USA has reduced the price of some of its heavy fuel oils by between 10 and 40 cents a barrel, the company said.

Stereo Equipment Worth $919 Stolen

Burglars apparently found easy access through the front door of an apartment at 7200 Candletree. Police said the theft of a TV set, 50 eight-track stereo tapes, two stereo speakers and a turntable, all valued at $919, was reported by Tracy J. Nedela, who resides at that address. The theft took place sometime between June 1st and Thursday, police said.

House Rejects Added Rights Rules

Washington (UPI) — The House rejected efforts to attach civil rights requirements to the federal revenue sharing program for 38,000 localities and states Thursday, then voted a four-year, $25 billion extension of the program with no strings attached.

The final bill won approval 361-35 and was sent to the Senate.

Resolving a debate that had tied up the House since Tuesday, members voted 223-172 not to impose civil rights requirements on the recipient states, counties and cities in the program.

The rejected modification also would have required payment of prevailing union wages for labor contracted with the grant funds and would have granted extra funds to large cities and poor rural areas.

The administration had hinted that President Ford would veto the bill if those provisions were included.

Of major importance to local governments was rejection of all efforts to have congress appropriate funds on a yearly basis for the program. Under the final bill, no further congressional action will be required for local governments to receive their funds.

The present revenue sharing program expires at year's end. Under it, state and local governments received $30 billion in federal funds since 1972 to use largely as they saw fit.

The central questions, all of which were defeated, were:

—How strong the bill's civil rights protections should be. One version would suspend funds to communities which discriminate by race, national origin, sex, age, religion or handicap status in any program unless the community could prove no revenue sharing funds were involved. Opponents charged this would turn revenue sharing into a civil rights program.

—Whether to include a provisin urging states to make plans to "modernize" local governments, which some interpret as an effort to encourage metropolitan forms of government.

—Whether to require union wages to be paid on construction projects using any revenue sharing funds. Opponents charged this would prevent some communities from starting any projects.

—Whether to allocate $150 million a year according to formula favoring big cities and poor rural areas. Opponents said 37,000 communities across the nation would lose, while 2,584 would gain.

—Whether to pledge the $25 billion all at once or subject it to the annual appropriations process. Rep. Brock Adams, D-Wash., chairman of the House Budget Committee, said revenue sharing is "the biggest and the worst of the backdoor spending" programs and Congress cannot control the budget unless it brings it under periodic review.

Buses Seen Replacing Planes

Omaha (AP) — Increasingly expensive and scarce fuel probably will force airlines to end service to smaller communities creating an opportunity for bus lines, a Continental Trailways, Inc., executive said Thursday.

Ben Robinson, Trailways senior vice president, said, "As energy becomes more scarce, airlines will have to concentrate on greater length of haul from big city to big city and drop service to smaller cities.

"I believe that will cause a need the bus industry can fill."

During the fuel crisis of two to three years ago, Trailways "enjoyed a dramatic increase" in riders. "But that dropped back to pre-energy crisis levels when fuel became available again," Robinson said.

He said the number of bus passengers is holding steady, with Trailways carrying about 21 million annually.

Robinson, of Dallas, Tex., was in Omaha Thursday for the opening of Trailways' new 15,000-square-foot terminal downtown.

In providing bus service to some 15,000 cities, Robinson said bus lines must compete with Amtrak, the nation's passenger railroad. But such competition is unfair, he said, because of Amtrak's federal subsidy.

"We don't seek to put Amtrak out of business but we don't feel it's fair for a private industry to have to compete with one heavily subsidized by taxpayers," he said.

Robinson said the railroad's income averages about four cents for each passenger mile traveled, while expenses are about eight cents per mile.

"We think it is is unrealistic, economically," Robinson said. "We think Congress should apply some sort or revenue test and slowly phase out is subsidy so Amtrak is left providing service where it is needed by the public and where it is self-sustaining."

Cyclists Injured In Mishaps

Two motorcyclists came out on the losing end in separate accidents Thursday.

Both motorcyclists collided with cars, both cyclists went to the hospital with injuries, and both drivers of the cars were cited for failing to yield the right-of-way.

Bruce Scanlons, 2232 S. 35th, was taken to a local hospital with abdominal injuries after he was struck by a car at 21st and G driven by David C. Baehr of Adams.

Lynn A. Forsgren of Sprague was taken to a local hospital with leg, back and arm injuries after being struck by a car at 28th and Arlington. Lucile M. Smith was the driver of that car.

Police said there was about $500 worth of damage to the Baehr car and $300 worth of damage to Scanlons' motorcycle. There was about $700 worth of damage reported on Mrs. Smith's car and $200 damage reported on the Forsgren motorcycle.

Teaching Substitute Found Guilty

A former Lincoln substitute teacher was found guilty by a U.S. District Court jury of sending threatening letters through the mails to a Christian Science couple.

Hattie Ruth Norris, 36, of Birmingham, Ala., was found guilty of threatening to kill Theodore and Mary Holtgrewe of Lincoln.

According to testimony at the trial, Ms. Norris had gone to Holtgrewe in late 1972 for help with an eye problem. Holtgrewe said he later broke off the practitioner-patient relationship. However, he said Ms. Norris attacked him with a board and tried to set his house on fire.

Ms. Norris moved from Lincoln and in April the Holtgrewes said they received threatening letters, which were turned over to the FBI.

U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom deferred sentencing, pending a pre-sentence investigation.

Scottsbluff Man Gets 20 Years On Murder Rap

Gering (UPI) — Steven D. Adams, 25, rural Scottsbluff, was sentenced to 20 years imprisonment on a second-degree murder charge in the fatal shooting March 17 of Lavonne Devita Bretthauer, Scottsbluff.

Scotts Bluff County District Judge Alfred Kortum, who had earlier accepted Adams' plea of no contest to the reduced charge, handed down the sentence.

An autopsy report showed Mrs. Bretthauer's body had six to eight bullet wounds in the left chest area with the fatal shot passing through her heart. Her body was found about 2½ miles north of Scottsbluff on the county road.

Adams initially was charged with first-degree murder, but the charge was amended to second-degree murder. Kortum had been told the charge was amended after plea negotiations.

House Rejects Added Rights Rules

Washington (UPI) — The House rejected efforts to attach civil rights requirements to the federal revenue sharing program for 38,000 localities and states Thursday, then voted a four-year, $25 billion extension of the program with no strings attached.

The final bill won approval 361-35 and was sent to the Senate.

Resolving a debate that had tied up the House since Tuesday, members voted 223-172 not to impose civil rights requirements on the recipient states, counties and cities in the program.

The rejected modification also would have required payment of prevailing union wages for labor contracted with the grant funds and would have granted extra funds to large cities and poor rural areas.

The administration had hinted that President Ford would veto the bill if those provisions were included.

Of major importance to local governments was rejection of all efforts to have congress appropriate funds on a yearly basis for the program. Under the final bill, no further congressional action will be required for local governments to receive their funds.

'Night Minister' Gives Up His Peculiar Parish

San Francisco (UPI) — The Rev. Donald Stuart, whose pulpit was the seedy tenderloin streets and his parishioners the hookers, hustlers and winos, is resigning after 12 years as the nation's first "night minister."

"I'm weary," the United Church of Christ clergyman said this week. "The hours have fatigued me. The kind of situations in which I've had to deal have burned me out."

"This was once a wonderful night town," recalled the bespectacled minister. "Something of the personality of San Francisco is lost. We've just about become Kansas City West."

Stuart came from Lincoln, Neb., a dozen years ago to set up the "night ministry," a unique experiment funded by five religious denominations and several private sources.

The 53-year-old cleric walked the streets of the city's ghetto from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m., tending to the needs of his "congregation." He was held up at knifepoint, threatened by a man with a shotgun and almost killed by a heroin dealer who thought he was a policeman.

The minister's night usually began in a 24-hour cafeteria where he greeted regular patrons and then headed out to the streets for a nocturnal patrol that took him from the bus terminal to the bars.

"Twelve years ago, it was not this way," said Stuart, the father of two children. "The streets were active, vibrant at night. Now there's nothing. Only fear. The fear's contagious — and unfounded.

"But the only fear I felt is when somebody called me and said 'I just swallowed a handful of Tylenol pills and I want to die,' " he said. "I got frightened they wouldn't tell me where they were calling from. I was afraid I wouldn't be able to find them in time."

Stuart is turning over his nocturnal chores to his assistant, The Rev. Charles Lewis, who inherits the battle to raise the $34,000 necessary to keep the "night ministry" operating each year.

Stuart was founding pastor of Trinity United Church of Christ in Lincoln. He served the congregation for eight years. He came to Lincoln in 1956 after six years' ministry in Nickerson, Kansas.

Trinity was the first United Church of Christ congregation organized in the nation after the Congregational, Evangelical and Reformed Churches merged.

Seven years after Stuart left Lincoln, Trinity's congregation dissolved and the church building at 3900 Pace Blvd. was sold to become a private residence.

Stuart grew up in Chicago, an experience which he once said had prepared him well for his work in San Francisco.

Fight Against Paper Work Begins

The newly formed Nebraska Commission on Paper Work, brainchild of Lt. Gov. Gerald Whelan, began Thursday chipping away at some of Nebraska state government's inefficiencies.

The commission, composed of 20 state agency heads, educators and businessmen, identified at least nine goals in hopes of reducing what Whelan called "the appalling amount of paper work flowing through state government."

Between now and January, when the commission will disband, members hope to review all state agencies and toyed with the idea of requiring executive agencies to reduce or consolidate reporting forms.

Whelan suggested requiring state senators to include a "paper work impact statement" when introducing bills.

Kearney City Manager Ray Lundy disagreed, saying, "We aren't going to get it all at the legislative level because they assign responsibilities to agencies to implement regulations."

Herman Brockmeyer, a Lincoln banker, suggested doing away with state employe pay checks in favor of direct treasury-to-bank deposits. State Planning Office Director Don Nelson suggested consolidating state agency newsletters into one state government publication.

Additionally, the commission will look into the impact of federal paper work requirements on Nebraska.

Lee Galeotos of the Federal Paper Work Commission told the Nebraska counterpart that some states have even banned all intergovernmental paperwork until standard forms were developed.

Galeotos said President Ford has ordered a 10 per cent reduction in the use of federal forms.

Whelan, who hopes to conduct at least five meetings between now and January, said the commission was not "just going through the motions."

Whelan cited several examples of poor legislation which created paperwork, including a law designed to determine the amount of corporate ownership of farm land.

Boys Enjoy Waterfall, Symphony

The Lincoln Symphony gave a brown bag concert Thursday in the Lincoln Center gardens, but the rivulet waterfall fountain of the garden got a bit more attention than the music from this group of boys. Hundreds of people basked in 90-degree temperatures to enjoy the snacks, the sun and the symphony. (Staff Photo by Web Ray)

Geis Won't Seek Top Demo Post

Don Geis of Lincoln Thursday said "out of concern for unity in the party" he will not run for Democratic National Committeeman.

He had been considered a probable candidate for the post.

Geis is an investments counselor and a member of the Lincoln Airport Authority. He was state coordinator for the Frank Church for president campaign and is considered to be closely aligned with Gov. J. James Exon in state party affairs.

"Tom Kelley (of Omaha, current national committeeman) has done a good job of supporting the governor. I'm supportive of the governor," Geis said.

He added he expects to support Dolores Christensen of Minden if she should challenge Democratic National Committeewoman Frances Ohmstede of Guide Rock at the state convention later this month as well as work for the reelection of State Chairman Dick White of Lincoln.

Geis said he agrees with those who believe that the high party posts should be shared among the congressional districts.

"Tom Kelley and I agreed long ago not to oppose each other," Geis said.

Kelley will seek another term as national committeeman. He faces a challenge from Allen O'Donnell of Wayne.

Sewage Treatment Funds Hard To Get

By United Press International

A state environmental control official said Thursday more than 240 Nebraska communities seeking state and federal sewage treatment plant construction assistance during the next fiscal year are now being placed on a priority list.

The list will be turned over to the State Environmental Control Council on June 18 during a meeting at Kearney for final approval and possible appeals by the communities on their priority placement, said George Ludwig, department grant administrator.

But there is one problem with that list, Ludwig said.

"As of now, there is no money for the next fiscal year," he said. Referring to the job of compiling the list, Ludwig said, "This might just be an academic exercise."

The official said neither the administration for the federal Environmental Protection Agency came up with a proposed budget for the assistance program.

The state received $38.5 million in federal money this year. Communities which received grants had 75% of the estimated cost picked up by the federal government and half the remainder by the state.

Ludwig said there is a bill pending in Congress under which Nebraska would get about $30 million next year. Nationally, there would be about $5 billion appropriated for distribution to the states.

Even though the Senate bill represents a decrease from this year's allocation, the administrator said "If we could get $30 million per year for some reasonable period of time, we could live with that."

Last year, the department said it would take $1.5 billion over the next 20 years to clean up all water pollution in the state. The federal government, using only a part of the formula Nebraska officials used, trimmed that down to about $245 million.

Ludwig said new projections are being worked out, but the $1.5 billion, plus inflation, will probably stand as the department's best estimate of the money needed to end water pollution.

When the priority list is released, the grant administrator said he fully expects to hear once again the claim that the smaller towns are being discriminated against and wind up automatically at the bottom of the heap.

Those at the top have the best chance of getting money. This year's money only made it about a third of the way down the priority list and those which did not receive assistance will be reviewed once again and compared to new projects.

In figuring out priorities, Ludwig said the same rating system is being used this year as was used last year and he said it isn't the system that places the smaller towns at the bottom.

"The law penalizes the small town," he said, explaining the law was designed to clean up pollution that is going on.

"Why doesn't the little town get on? Basically, it's because he isn't polluting," Ludwig said.

'Night Minister' Gives Up His Peculiar Parish

San Francisco (UPI) — The Rev. Donald Stuart, whose pulpit was the seedy tenderloin streets and his parishioners the hookers, hustlers and winos, is resigning after 12 years as the nation's first "night minister."

"I'm weary," the United Church of Christ clergyman said this week. "The hours have fatigued me. The kind of situations in which I've had to deal have burned me out."

"This was once a wonderful night town," recalled the bespectacled minister. "Something of the personality of San Francisco is lost. We've just about become Kansas City West."

Stuart came from Lincoln, Neb., a dozen years ago to set up the "night ministry," a unique experiment funded by five religious denominations and several private sources.

The 53-year-old cleric walked the streets of the city's ghetto from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m., tending to the needs of his "congregation." He was held up at knifepoint, threatened by a man with a shotgun and almost killed by a heroin dealer who thought he was a policeman.

The minister's night usually began in a 24-hour cafeteria where he greeted regular patrons and then headed out to the streets for a nocturnal patrol that took him from the bus terminal to the bars.

"Twelve years ago, it was not this way," said Stuart, the father of two children. "The streets were active, vibrant at night. Now there's nothing. Only fear. The fear's contagious — and unfounded.

"But the only fear I felt is when somebody called me and said 'I just swallowed a handful of Tylenol pills and I want to die,' " he said. "I got frightened they wouldn't tell me where they were calling from. I was afraid I wouldn't be able to find them in time."

Stuart is turning over his nocturnal chores to his assistant, The Rev. Charles Lewis, who inherits the battle to raise the $34,000 necessary to keep the "night ministry" operating each year.

Stuart was founding pastor of Trinity United Church of Christ in Lincoln. He served the congregation for eight years. He came to Lincoln in 1956 after six years' ministry in Nickerson, Kansas.

Trinity was the first United Church of Christ congregation organized in the nation after the Congregational, Evangelical and Reformed Churches merged.

Seven years after Stuart left Lincoln, Trinity's congregation dissolved and the church building at 3900 Pace Blvd. was sold to become a private residence.

Stuart grew up in Chicago, an experience which he once said had prepared him well for his work in San Francisco.

Fight Against Paper Work Begins

The newly formed Nebraska Commission on Paper Work, brainchild of Lt. Gov. Gerald Whelan, began Thursday chipping away at some of Nebraska state government's inefficiencies.

The commission, composed of 20 state agency heads, educators and businessmen, identified at least nine goals in hopes of reducing what Whelan called "the appalling amount of paper work flowing through state government."

Between now and January, when the commission will disband, members hope to review all state agencies and toyed with the idea of requiring executive agencies to reduce or consolidate reporting forms.

Whelan suggested requiring state senators to include a "paper work impact statement" when introducing bills.

Kearney City Manager Ray Lundy disagreed, saying, "We aren't going to get it all at the legislative level because they assign responsibilities to agencies to implement regulations."

Herman Brockmeyer, a Lincoln banker, suggested doing away with state employe pay checks in favor of direct treasury-to-bank deposits. State Planning Office Director Don Nelson suggested consolidating state agency newsletters into one state government publication.

Additionally, the commission will look into the impact of federal paper work requirements on Nebraska.

Lee Galeotos of the Federal Paper Work Commission told the Nebraska counterpart that some states have even banned all intergovernmental paperwork until standard forms were developed.

Galeotos said President Ford has ordered a 10 per cent reduction in the use of federal forms.

Whelan, who hopes to conduct at least five meetings between now and January, said the commission was not "just going through the motions."

Whelan cited several examples of poor legislation which created paperwork, including a law designed to determine the amount of corporate ownership of farm land.

Boys Enjoy Waterfall, Symphony

The Lincoln Symphony gave a brown bag concert Thursday in the Lincoln Center gardens, but the rivulet waterfall fountain of the garden got a bit more attention than the music from this group of boys. Hundreds of people basked in 90-degree temperatures to enjoy the snacks, the sun and the symphony. (Staff Photo by Web Ray)

Geis Won't Seek Top Demo Post

Don Geis of Lincoln Thursday said "out of concern for unity in the party" he will not run for Democratic National Committeeman.

He had been considered a probable candidate for the post.

Geis is an investments counselor and a member of the Lincoln Airport Authority. He was state coordinator for the Frank Church for president campaign and is considered to be closely aligned with Gov. J. James Exon in state party affairs.

"Tom Kelley (of Omaha, current national committeeman) has done a good job of supporting the governor. I'm supportive of the governor," Geis said.

He added he expects to support Dolores Christensen of Minden if she should challenge Democratic National Committeewoman Frances Ohmstede of Guide Rock at the state convention later this month as well as work for the reelection of State Chairman Dick White of Lincoln.

Geis said he agrees with those who believe that the high party posts should be shared among the congressional districts.

"Tom Kelley and I agreed long ago not to oppose each other," Geis said.

Kelley will seek another term as national committeeman. He faces a challenge from Allen O'Donnell of Wayne.

Sewage Treatment Funds Hard To Get

By United Press International

A state environmental control official said Thursday more than 240 Nebraska communities seeking state and federal sewage treatment plant construction assistance during the next fiscal year are now being placed on a priority list.

The list will be turned over to the State Environmental Control Council on June 18 during a meeting at Kearney for final approval and possible appeals by the communities on their priority placement, said George Ludwig, department grant administrator.

But there is one problem with that list, Ludwig said.

"As of now, there is no money for the next fiscal year," he said. Referring to the job of compiling the list, Ludwig said, "This might just be an academic exercise."

The official said neither the administration for the federal Environmental Protection Agency came up with a proposed budget for the assistance program.

The state received $38.5 million in federal money this year. Communities which received grants had 75% of the estimated cost picked up by the federal government and half the remainder by the state.

Ludwig said there is a bill pending in Congress under which Nebraska would get about $30 million next year. Nationally, there would be about $5 billion appropriated for distribution to the states.

Even though the Senate bill represents a decrease from this year's allocation, the administrator said "If we could get $30 million per year for some reasonable period of time, we could live with that."

Last year, the department said it would take $1.5 billion over the next 20 years to clean up all water pollution in the state. The federal government, using only a part of the formula Nebraska officials used, trimmed that down to about $245 million.

Ludwig said new projections are being worked out, but the $1.5 billion, plus inflation, will probably stand as the department's best estimate of the money needed to end water pollution.

When the priority list is released, the grant administrator said he fully expects to hear once again the claim that the smaller towns are being discriminated against and wind up automatically at the bottom of the heap.

Those at the top have the best chance of getting money. This year's money only made it about a third of the way down the priority list and those which did not receive assistance will be reviewed once again and compared to new projects.

In figuring out priorities, Ludwig said the same rating system is being used this year as was used last year and he said it isn't the system that places the smaller towns at the bottom.

"The law penalizes the small town," he said, explaining the law was designed to clean up pollution that is going on.

"Why doesn't the little town get on? Basically, it's because he isn't polluting," Ludwig said.

Stock Growers Hear Water Concerns

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

North Platte — Ranchers attending the annual Nebraska Stock Growers Association convention here learned Thursday that after July 1, 1977, all waters in the U S will come under the legal definition of navigable waters

Paul Douglas, attorney general for Nebraska, noted there are several attempts underway in Congress to change this definition

"There are a lot of environmental groups that oppose a change in the definition I think these amendments, if passed in the House, may have a problem getting through the Senate," Douglas said

Douglas told the stock growers that efforts to change the definition of a navigable stream exist because "Congress has finally come to fear over-regulation by the Army Corps of Engineers"

"Federal water policy should not be designed to drown farmers in a sea of red tape," he said

Bill Staiger, executive vice president of the California Cattlemen's Association, warned the stock growers that they have some hard choices to make in the near future concerning land-use legislation

"Most cattlemen are hung up in the conflict over protecting agricultural land and the right of a landowner to sell his land to a developer when he wants to retire You can't have it both ways," Staiger warned

"I believe we can defeat land-use controls that will tell you how to farm," he said "I don't believe that we can prevent land use controls designed to keep land in agricultural production

"Many well-intended laws have become so restrictive, so confusing, so enmeshed in red tape and so costly to comply with that they are gradually killing the economic fiber of this country," he added

Staiger also warned the stock growers that environmentalist groups seeking land-use legislation aimed at recreation expansion on public and private lands are seven times better financed than all farm groups combined

"The biggest task we have to learn is how to deal with people who aren't cattle people Tell and sell your story to people who don't agree with you It won't be easy, but it must be done and only you can do it," he said

"It requires listening as well as talking Give a point to get a point," he suggested

Bill Jones, executive vice president of the National Livestock Feeders Association in Omaha, gave the stock growers a demonstration of how his organization gets legislation passed in Congress

"Agriculture uses a different technique than the labor unions The unions use fear and threats They tell a congressman that unless he does what they want him to, they will pour money into a campaign against him the next election," Jones claimed

'We try to use the educational route We explain our needs, present them with a model bill already drafted and work with their staff and the committee staffs during the process of developing the bill," he said.

Jones told the ranchers "the real strength that agricultural organizations have is the letters you people write to your congressional delegation These letters are an essential factor in getting needed legislation passed and in getting unfavorable legislation killed '

The three-day convention will wind up Friday afternoon with an address by Rep Virginia Smith, R-Neb , and the development of a set of resolutions and bylaws to govern the organization for the coming year

Rampless Rustlers Flub Job

Nebraska City (AP) — An attempt to steal some cattle in western Otoe County earlier this week failed because the thieves apparently couldn't load the animals on their truck

The cattle thefts were attempted at the Fred Heine farm and at the Walter Stubbendick farm, according to Sheriff Russell Seals

Seals said the thieves evidently tried to load the cattle into their truck without the use of a ramp

The effort spooked the animals and they lumbered off into the dark pastures, leaving the rustlers empty-handed

Humboldt Jaycees Small, Mighty

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Humboldt — As publisher Jack Cooper wrote in his Humboldt Standard, it was "the marriage day, the first born, a royal flush and graduation all rolled into one"

The "emotional grand moment" referred to came at the recent Jaycee state convention at Kearney Yet to descend from Cloud 9 are the 121 members of the local chapter — believed to be the nation's largest for any town under 2,500.

Organized only four years ago, the Humboldt group made off with enough trophies and awards to half-fill president Loren Glathar's pickup That means 50-plus, topped off by being named Nebraska's No 1 chapter and also receiving the highly prestigious Henry Giessenbier Award

"We're the smallest town in the state ever to receive the Giessenbier, which has usually gone to Lincoln and Omaha or other good-sized towns," beamed Glathar, one of about 50 young farmers among the Humboldt membership "And we're kind of proud of beating out runnerup Lincoln as top chapter for two years straight"

The 35-year-old Glathar also walked off with one of the highest individual honors, that of outstanding local president. Two other Humboldt men shared the brightest individual spotlight.

Allen Fankhauser was runnerup for the Brownfield Award, given for first-year accomplishments, and also copped a first place in writing competition Larry Schuetz tied for chief recruiter honors and, of even more significance, was presented a Jaycee International senatorship

According to his Humboldt buddies, past president Schuetz has been both architect and construction crew in building the chapter. Largely through his efforts, a membership which held at 26 the chapter's first two years was quadrupled in 1974

Over a 13-month period, Schuetz personally recruited 126 new members. He also got 50 names on the line during a particularly successful two-month period

"Selling a young man a chance to help himself is kind of like giving away candy," said Schuetz, 34, and a purchasing agent for the O A. Cooper Co "It's easy to be enthusiastic about a program which develops both individuals and a community at the same time"

Counting Dave Farwell who just took over, the chapter has had three straight rural presidents Cousin Tom Farwell had served in 1974 when the chapter was judged No 1 for the first time

Besides its meteoric growth, the chapter is a standout for youth activities ranging from hunter safety courses to Boy Scouts to punt-and-pass contests Several regular fund-raising events, including weekly bingo nights, earn some $35,000 which is channeled back into a variety of projects

"Our top priority is youth work, but we also try to involve the whole community," said Schuetz "Bingo, for example, especially appeals to our senior citizens Some of them used to drive 80 to 100 miles to play"

Entering seven categories in state competition, Humboldt took three firsts and a second The chapter also was recognized for extending four new chapters during the year — Rulo, Salem, Table Rock and Bern, Kan The previous year saw Wymore, Dawson-Verdon and Southeast Area brought into the fold

Two men from neighboring Pawnee City have worked closely with Humboldt as area vice presidents Harold Schlender and Barry Kennedy, the latter just elected the new Nebraska president, were lauded as "really helpful in getting us off the ground."

The Humboldters also have done much for themselves in looking to other chapters and emulating their successes Last year alone they logged nearly 50,000 "man-miles" in visiting other cities

"As for next year, we're being careful not to promise a first for the third straight year," said Schuetz "On the other hand, we will say that whoever beats us will know they've been in a race '

Exon Offers Support To Keep Air Service

By United Press International

Gov J J Exon said Thursday he would be more than willing to help four Nebraska communities who have banded together in an attempt to preserve commercial airline service to each of them.

"I'll certainly be willing to be of any help I can," Exon told UPI when informed that a special committee made up of representatives of the four communities decided Wednesday night to seek his assistance.

The four communities include Hastings, Kearney, McCook and Columbus.

Exon said as yet he has not been officially contacted by the special committee.

The communities are now all served by Frontier Airlines. But Frontier has issued a warning that it will be pulling out at some future date due to costs

The special committee wants Frontier to take over the responsibility of finding its own replacement and also guaranteeing that if a commuter airline operation fails it would move back in.

Exon said that providing air transportation to Nebraska communities has been one of his administration's continuing projects.

'Our idea, of course, is to develop an overall plan for adequate air service,' he said, which would include 'good quality air service that will tie in with Frontier and possibly other airlines '

The State Aeronautics Department currently is putting together such a plan for use in connection with Exon's earlier suggestion that a multi-state hub airport be built.

The hub would serve as a focal point for an air service network which would include all of the five Old-West Regional Commission states of Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Wyoming and Montana.

The commission is handling the various studies connected with preliminary planning

Exon reported that the regional airport suggestion has received "great attention" from Washington, D C , officials

He said those officials, which includes the House Aeronautics Committee, views the suggestion as a "very viable and interesting approach to serving air transportation needs in communities now under-serviced" and those which have commuter service but bad connections with major airlines

Reclamation Agreements Are Signed

Denver (AP) — The Construction phase on the North Loup Division of the Bureau of Reclamation's Lower Missouri Region has begun with the signing of a contract between the United States and Garfield County, Neb , and between the United States and the city of Burwell, Neb , according to the bureau's regional director

The project will provide irrigation water to about 53,000 irrigable acres near the towns of Ord, St. Paul and Fullerton, Neb , increase water-oriented recreation opportunities and promote fish and wildlife conservation.

According to Joe D Hall, regional director, the Garfield contract requires the bureau to improve and maintain about 6.5 miles of Garfield County road used for construction access to the Calamus Dam and Reservoir, with the county to carry out ordinary maintenance of the road.

The North Loup Division was authorized by the Reclamation Project Authorization Act of 1972 and is located in Loup, Garfield, Valley, Greeley, Howard, and Nance Counties in central Nebraska.

Tenants' Leader Quits Over Tactics

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Acrimony continued to flare Thursday between an organized group of unhappy tenants and the Lincoln Housing Authority.

At the same time a coordinator of the group, Doris Scott, said she was stepping down from her post because she disagreed with the group's recent tactics.

She apparently was referring to the Tuesday night visit by members of the group, known as the Housing Authority Tenants Action Coalition (HATAC), to the homes of some housing authority board members to push their demand for night meetings.

Scott told the board the only reason she wanted to give for removing herself from the post was that she was reluctant to embarrass people, including those who actions she hoped to change.

Another Arnold Heights tenant, William Sundet, told the board that he thinks some problems could be solved if "we could cut some of the B.S. the press is publicizing."

The current dispute has evolved after an announcement by the Housing Authority several months ago that tenants would have to pay for their own gas and electricity

This led to a round of discussions in which tenants, particularly those in Arnold Heights, requested winterization of their homes. Tenants in the 130 rent-subsidized homes also asked for a greater reduction in rent than planned to make up for the additional cost of gas and electricity.

Feelings gradually became exacerbated and culminated in the Tuesday night visits to the homes of board members Don Parker and Doris Collins. The group also visited the home of board chairman Doug Alford, but found him out.

Alford denied Thursday that the board has refused to hold a night meeting. He said a night meeting will be held when information has been gathered on the proposed increase in rent reduction, or allowance, for utilities.

That position does not meet with agreement from all HATAC members Coordinator Jan Jackson told the board "I don't think we're asking anything unreasonable" by the night meeting. Another 40 tenants would have been present if the Thursday meeting had been held at night, she said.

"Our position has been stated. You can stand there all afternoon and it won't change." Alford responded. He said the authority plans to have a night meeting in July if data is gathered on the utility allowances.

He told the group that the department of Housing and Urban Development, the source of the rent subsidies, has agreed to review the allowances to see if they should be raised.

On another matter the board heard a report from director Dick Burke that according to a University of Nebraska-Lincoln study it would cost $200 per house to increase the amount of ceiling insulation from three inches to eight or ten

The survey, however, indicated that it will be difficult to correct the leaky casement windows, which are opened by a crank. The survey did recommend using adhesive foam strips to block the leaks.

Stock Growers Hear Water Concerns

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

North Platte — Ranchers attending the annual Nebraska Stock Growers Association convention here learned Thursday that after July 1, 1977, all waters in the U.S. will come under the legal definition of navigable waters.

Paul Douglas, attorney general for Nebraska, noted there are several attempts underway in Congress to change this definition.

"There are a lot of environmental groups that oppose a change in the definition. I think these amendments, if passed in the House, may have a problem getting through the Senate," Douglas said.

Douglas told the stock growers that efforts to change the definition of a navigable stream exist because "Congress has finally come to fear over-regulation by the Army Corps of Engineers."

"Federal water policy should not be designed to drown farmers in a sea of red tape," he said.

Bill Staiger, executive vice president of the California Cattlemen's Association, warned the stock growers that they have some hard choices to make in the near future concerning land-use legislation.

"Most cattlemen are hung up in the conflict over protecting agricultural land and the right of a landowner to sell his land to a developer when he wants to retire. You can't have it both ways," Staiger warned.

"I believe we can defeat land-use controls that will tell you how to farm," he said. "I don't believe that we can prevent land use controls designed to keep land in agricultural production.

"Many well-intended laws have become so restrictive, so confusing, so enmeshed in red tape and so costly to comply with that they are gradually killing the econimic fiber of this country," he added.

Staiger also warned the stock growers that environmentalist groups seeking land-use legislation aimed at recreation expansion on public and private lands are seven times better financed than all farm groups combined.

"The biggest task we have to learn is how to deal with people who aren't cattle people. Tell and sell your story to people who don't agree with you. It won't be easy, but it must be done and only you can do it," he said.

"It requires listening as well as talking. Give a point to get a point," he suggested.

Bill Jones, executive vice president of the National Livestock Feeders Association in Omaha, gave the stock growers a demonstration of how his organization gets legislation passed in Congress.

"Agriculture uses a different technique than the labor unions. The unions use fear and threats. They tell a congressman that unless he does what they want him to, they will pour money into a campaign against him the next election," Jones claimed.

"We try to use the educational route. We explain our needs, present them with a model bill already drafted and work with their staff and the committee staffs during the process of developing the bill," he said.

Jones told the ranchers "the real strength that agricultural organizations have is the letters you people write to your congressional delegation. These letters are an essential factor in getting needed legislation passed and in getting unfavorable legislation killed."

The three-day convention will wind up Friday afternoon with an address by Rep. Virginia Smith, R-Neb., and the development of a set of resolutions and bylaws to govern the organization for the coming year.

Rampless Rustlers Flub Job

Nebraska City (AP) — An attempt to steal some cattle in western Otoe County earlier this week failed because the thieves apparently couldn't load the animals on their truck.

The cattle thefts were attempted at the Fred Heine farm and at the Walter Stubbendick farm, according to Sheriff Russell Seals.

Seals said the thieves evidently tried to load the cattle into their truck without the use of a ramp.

The effort spooked the animals and they lumbered off into the dark pastures, leaving the rustlers empty-handed.

Humboldt Jaycees Small, Mighty

Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Humboldt — As publisher Jack Cooper wrote in his Humboldt Standard, it was "the marriage day, the first born, a royal flush and graduation all rolled into one."

The "emotional grand moment" referred to came at the recent Jaycee state convention at Kearney. Yet to descend from Cloud 9 are the 121 members of the local chapter — believed to be the nation's largest for any town under 2,500.

Organized only four years ago, the Humboldt group made off with enough trophies and awards to half-fill president Loren Glathar's pickup. That means 50-plus, topped off by being named Nebraska's No. 1 chapter and also receiving the highly prestigious Henry Giessenbier Award.

"We're the smallest town in the state ever to receive the Giessenbier, which has usually gone to Lincoln and Omaha or other good-sized towns," beamed Glathar, one of about 50 young farmers among the Humboldt membership. "And we're kind of proud of beating out runnerup Lincoln as top chapter for two years straight."

The 35-year-old Glathar also walked off with one of the highest individual honors, that of outstanding local president. Two other Humboldt men shared the brightest individual spotlight.

Allen Fankhauser was runnerup for the Brownfield Award, given for first-year accomplishments, and also copped a first place in writing competition. Larry Schuetz tied for chief recruiter honors and, of even more significance, was presented a Jaycee International senatorship.

According to his Humboldt buddies, past president Schuetz has been both architect and construction crew in building the chapter. Largely through his efforts, a membership which held at 26 the chapter's first two years was quadrupled in 1974.

Over a 13-month period, Schuetz personally recruited 126 new members. He also got 50 names on the line during a particularly successful two-month period.

"Selling a young man a chance to help himself is kind of like giving away candy," said Schuetz, 34, and a purchasing agent for the O. A. Cooper Co. "It's easy to be enthusiastic about a program which develops both individuals and a community at the same time."

Counting Dave Farwell who just took over, the chapter has had three straight rural presidents. Cousin Tom Farwell had served in 1974 when the chapter was judged No. 1 for the first time.

Besides its meteoric growth, the chapter is a standout for youth activities ranging from hunter safety courses to Boy Scouts to punt-and-pass contests. Several regular fund-raising events, including weekly bingo nights, earn some $35,000 which is channeled back into a variety of projects.

"Our top priority is youth work, but we also try to involve the whole community," said Schuetz. "Bingo, for example, especially appeals to our senior citizens. Some of them used to drive 80 to 100 miles to play."

Entering seven categories in state competition, Humboldt took three firsts and a second. The chapter also was recognized for extending four new chapters during the year — Rulo, Salem, Table Rock and Bern, Kan. The previous year saw Wymore, Dawson-Verdon and Southeast Area brought into the fold.

Two men from neighboring Pawnee City have worked closely with Humboldt as area vice presidents. Harold Schlender and Barry Kennedy, the latter just elected the new Nebraska president, were lauded as "really helpful in getting us off the ground."

The Humboldters also have done much for themselves in looking to other chapters and emulating their successes. Last year alone they logged nearly 50,000 "man-miles" in visiting other cities.

"As for next year, we're being careful not to promise a first for the third straight year," said Schuetz. "On the other hand, we will say that whoever beats us will know they've been in a race."

Tenants' Leader Quits Over Tactics

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Acrimony continued to flare Thursday between an organized group of unhappy tenants and the Lincoln Housing Authority.

At the same time a coordinator of the group, Doris Scott, said she was stepping down from her post because she disagreed with the group's recent tactics.

She apparently was referring to the Tuesday night visit by members of the group, known as the Housing Authority Tenants Action Coalition (HATAC), to the homes of some housing authority board members to push their demand for night meetings.

Scott told the board the only reason she wanted to give for removing herself from the post was that she was reluctant to embarrass people including those who actions she hoped to change.

Another Arnold Heights tenant, William Sundet, told the board that he thinks some problems could be solved if "we could cut some of the B.S. the press is publicizing."

The current dispute has evolved after an announcement by the Housing Authority several months ago that tenants would have to pay for their own gas and electricity.

This led to a round of discussions in which tenants, particularly those in Arnold Heights, requested winterization of their homes. Tenants in the 150 rent-subsidized homes also asked for a greater reduction in rent than planned to make up for the additional cost of gas and electricity.

Feelings gradually became exacerbated and culminated in the Tuesday night visits to the homes of board members Don Parker and Doris Collins. The group also visited the home of board chairman Doug Alford, but found him out.

Alford denied Thursday that the board has refused to hold a night meeting. He said a night meeting will be held when information has been gathered on the proposed increase in rent reduction, or allowance, for utilities.

That position does not meet with agreement from all HATAC members. Coordinator Jan Jackson told the board "I don't think we're asking anything unreasonable" by the night meeting. Another 40 tenants would have been present if the Thursday meeting had been held at night, she said.

"Our position has been stated. You can stand there all afternoon and it won't change," Alford responded. He said the authority plans to have a night meeting in July if data is gathered on the utility allowances.

He told the group that the department of Housing and Urban Development, the source of the rent subsidies, has agreed to review the allowances to see if they should be raised.

On another matter the board heard a report from director Dick Burke that according to a University of Nebraska-Lincoln study it would cost $200 per house to increase the amount of ceiling insulation from three inches to eight or ten.

The survey, however, indicated that it will be difficult to correct the leaky casement windows, which are opened by a crank. The survey did recommend using adhesive foam strips to block the leaks.

Pay Court Test Nixed By NAPE

The Nebraska Association of Public Employes executive board has decided it cannot seek a court remedy to win a maximum limit on state employes' pay raises, NAPE Executive Director Roger Schulz announced Thursday.

He said the NAPE legal staff reviewed Gov. J. James Exon's recent decision to apply the dollar limit only to pay increases for merit, and not a combination of merit plus automatic cost-of-living boosts.

NAPE decided it couldn't request an injunction of Exon's decision "without risking the possibility that all merit money would be enjoined from being given out to other employes," Schulz said in a prepared statement.

Exon's decision was based on an attorney general's opinion requested by his administration regarding LB691, the appropriations bill containing the intended pay ceiling provision.

Schulz, who said earlier he'd recommend going to court to settle the issue, declared he's not happy with the Justice Department opinion. But he said LB691 "might still serve as a check on the equal distribution of this merit money."

The law, providing for 1976-77 pay raises among other features, requires each state agency to report to the Legislature by Feb. 1, 1977, how it distributed the merit money.

The NAPE board directed Schulz to examine those reports and Exon's previous policies regarding compensation of higher-paid employes, for wider public dissemination.

NAPE and some state senators contended that pay raise funds should be limited for top-paid employes, to bring up pay levels for those in lower brackets.

The NAPE board also approved a resolution requesting Exon to direct his agency heads to allocate the merit money to all state employes in a way that will guarantee "equal proportionate increases" throughout all pay levels.

Schulz said the board also asked that Exon and the State Personnel Department reclassify high state positions to gain any needed pay improvements, instead of using merit money to achieve higher pay levels at the expense of lower-paid workers.

No Charges Planned In Nutt's Death

Omaha (AP) — A 32-year-old woman who shot and killed her ex-boyfriend Wednesday will not be charged with a crime because she acted in self-defense, Deputy Douglas County Atty. Edward Warin said Thursday.

Killed by a gunshot wound to the head was John Otis Nutt Jr., 28, Omaha. Police said he was shot by Magdalene L. Acevedo of Omaha after he apparently broke into the woman's home Wednesday evening. Nutt died about 30 minutes later at a hospital.

Warin said the shooting was in self-defense because Nutt had broken down Mrs. Acevedo's locked door and reportedly had beaten her several times previously.

Police reports show that Mrs. Acevedo recently bought the .38 caliber revolver used in the shooting because she was afraid of Nutt. She had registered the weapon with police and had talked with authorities about taking legal steps to keep Nutt away from her.

When Nutt began knocking the door down, Mrs. Acevedo told police she began firing. Nutt was hit by one of five shots fired.

Suit Against Douglas Board Is Dismissed

Omaha (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Richard Robinson has dismissed a $100,000 damage suit filed against the Douglas County Board by Mrs. Ann Adler in 1974.

The suit arose out of a dispute between Mrs. Adler and the board over dog kennels she kept in a rural residential area where kennels are not permitted.

Mrs. Adler, citing an 1871 law which is being used increasingly against public officials in damage suits, claimed she was deprived of her constitutional rights.

Robinson ruled that the commissioners relied on the advice of a deputy county attorney on a complex legal question and they should not be held personally liable.

Cook To Replace Nelson

When the champion Boston Celtics selected Kansas forward Norman Cook in the first round of the National Basketball Association draft, they got exactly what they were looking for — a fast, good shooting forward to replace the retiring Don Nelson, former Iowa sharpshooter who now is 36 years old

Cook was recruited heavily out of high school in Lincoln, Ill., by schools such as Illinois and Indiana of the Big Ten. He never has lived up to his credentials at Kansas, even though the Jayhawks won a pair of Big Eight titles and advanced to the final four of the NCAA tournament once.

Cook opted to give up his senior season of eligibility with the Jayhawks He almost didn't play his junior year, but was talked into staying at Kansas by a Celtics' assistant coach (John Killiles) and former KU star Jo Jo White, the MVP in the Celtics' NBA title series against Phoenix

"I think he s made for our ball club,' Boston coach Tommy Heinsohn said "I saw him twice in Providence during tryouts for the Pan American Games and I saw him play against Notre Dame He can run He s smart and he can get nothing but better '

Heinsohn described Cook as "a good, quick forward, a pure forward." He pointed out that Boston had a chance to draft Earl Tatum of Marquette, who is also a scorer "But Cook is bigger and more fundamental," he added. "He played at a school that uses a slowdown offense, but Jo Jo White learned under the same coach (Ted Owens) and he adjusted quite well."

White was the Celtics first draft choice in 1969 and has become a mainstay with Boston It will be interesting to see if Cook can become the same kind of star player

Fort Has Competition

Nebraskan Jerry Fort, who went in the third round to Boston, will have competition in his battle to become one of four guards the Celtics will keep He was the 51st player taken after averaging 19 points a game last season for the Cornhuskers

Boston's other guard picks were Lewis Linder, 6-4, Kentucky State, John Clark, 6-2, of Northeastern, a school located in downtown Boston, and Otho Tucker, 6-6, Illinois.

Fort actually was Boston s No 2 pick since the Celtics traded away their second round choice when they obtained Charlie Scott from Phoenix and sent Paul Westphal to the Suns Based on the way the two players looked in the playoffs, it was a pretty even trade without the draft choice That s another way of saying the Suns probably got the better of the deal

Fort is a dedicated player and needs only to develop more consistency in his shooting to make the Celtics He has the intelligence to go with his quickness and defensive ability to play in the pros Perhaps another thing he needs to work on is his strength and stamina because pro basketball is quite demanding physically Jerry has been running and working with weights to develop his upper body

When you get tired, the first thing that tires is the arm. That can be fatal to a shooter. The only basketball players I've seen who can shoot with their feet are the Globetrotters.

Incidentally, the other Boston draftees were Louis McKinney, 6-5 forward St. Louis, Art Collins 6-4½ forward, Biscayne, Ralph Drollinger 7-0 center, UCLA, and Bill Collins, 6-10 center, from hometown Boston College

CWS Highlights Arizonans

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Omaha — Heavily favored Arizona State will wait until Saturday evening to make its debut in the College World Series against state rival Arizona Each team is hoping a victory in that 5 10 p m game will help make the other six teams think it is invincible

Oklahoma, which is in the same bracket with the favored clubs, and Eastern Michigan are the two teams regarded as having the best chance to upset the apple cart

The Series, which is for the NCAA's Division I baseball championship, begins at 5 10 p m Friday in Rosenblatt Stadium when Auburn's Southeastern Conference champions go against Clemson, winner of the Atlantic Coast Conference crown

The second game pairs Maine, winner of the Northeastern NCAA Regional, against Eastern Michigan, which defeated Big Ten champion Michigan to earn a trip here

The opening night program will see three starting pitchers who were taken in Tuesday's major league draft and at least five other players the professional scouts regarded highly enough to select

Auburn, 37-13, will lead the righthander Joe Beckwith, who was drafted by Cleveland in the 12th round He ll oppose undefeated Charles Porter of Clemson, who went to California in the seventh round

Eastern Michigan, back in the Series for the second year in a row and third ranked by Collegiate Baseball will start lefthander Bob Owchinko, who shutout Michigan in the Midwest Regional championship game He was taken by San Diego in the first round Maine s hurler will be Berg Roberge, the all-time leading hurler for the Bears

So all the talent isn t confined to the Saturday night session which also features a game between Oklahoma of the Big Eight and Washington State from the Pacific-8

NCAA officials said tickets still are available for all sessions, but that the ones for Saturday are moving fast Tickets ($3 box $2 50 reserved $1 60 adult general admission and $ 75 children under 12) can be purchased at Brandeis Ticket Center or at Rosenblatt

Clemson made back to back World Series appearances in 1958 59 and under Coach Bill Wilhelm the Tigers have never finished lower than 500 while winning more than 65 per cent of their games

His top hitter is centerfielder Steve Tucker with a 353 average but the best player is Kurt Seibert shortstop who was picked by the Chicago Cubs in the third round Leading slugger is Dave Caldwell, who had 29 extra base hits

Auburn third baseman Ritchie Howard finished third in SEC batting with a 383 average

Eastern Michigan has a hard hitting trio including shortstop Glenn Gulliver (413) an eighth round pick of the Detroit Tigers catcher first baseman Charles Keller (356) drafted on the tenth round by Atlanta and infielder Glenn Ambrose (351)

Marathon Suits Carlberg

By RYLY JANE HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Marathon runner Greg Carlberg doesn't subscribe to the theory that long distance running is a lonely sport

"Sure, I train alone a lot of the time, said the Drake Relays marathon winner of 1976 ' But once or twice a week, or even more often, I get together with some friends and we run together, usually on weekends

Carlberg s training paid off with a Drake Relays watch and a chance recently to run in the Olympic marathon trials in Eugene, Ore

The Omaha insurance underwriter finished 22nd with a time of 2 24 10 in the trials which Frank Shorter won Just 42 of the 71 starters finished the 26-mile, 385-yard course

"I wasn t really satisfied with the time," Carlberg said "I was a bit disappointed, but I was really glad I went Otherwise I would have wondered how well I could have done

'I enjoyed running against the top marathoners in the country," he said

They set an extremely fast pace — under five minutes for a mile for the first 20 miles — and then eased in I didn t try to keep their pace, because as it was I was going at a pretty good pace for me

I got pretty tired the last two or three miles I was even tempted to drop out at 25 miles ' he admitted

Carlberg, who runs with the Plains Track Club of Omaha, was clocked in 2 22 25 17 at the Drake Relays He knew he had to get a time under two hours, 23 minutes in order to qualify for the Olympic trials

"Actually, when I was running at the Drake Relays, toward the end of the race, I was hurting so bad, which you usually do at the end of a marathon, I was almost hoping I wouldn t qualify I knew that if I did, ' Carlberg explained, "that I would keep training for it and right then I didn t want to think about training any more

The former University of Nebraska track standout said he wasn t able to do the training he thought he needed before the trials

"I needed to do more speed training, he said "But then, some people say it takes a month to recover from a marathon, and I didn't have that much time to recover and then train "

Now Carlberg has his sights set on another marathon This time it s the Aug 1 Omaha Marathon that he s interested in The winner of the Omaha race gets a round-trip ticket to the Boston Marathon in which Carlberg would like to compete

There are some other track meets this summer I m going to run in he said The Plains Track Club is sponsoring an AAU championship meet June 26-27 with the open meet the 27th

I d like to do a triple if it s not too hot he said The 800 meters is in the morning the 5 000 meters is at noon and the 1 500 meters is late in the afternoon I ll run all three if I can

I like both long and short distances I think I have a competitive advantage in the long distances because of my college running I m faster than other marathoners and can sustain a given pace Now I have to improve on endurance Carlberg said

During the summer Carlberg takes a low-key approach in his training He s aiming at a consistent training program

We call it LSD — long slow distance It s 10 to 20 miles at a slow pace to develop a base and work your heart consitently he explained The body can store enough energy to go 20 miles and after that it s endurance and it s also the point when little things irritate you Some people say a marathon is about half over at 20 miles

After that it s all training endurance and desire

Solomon Wins, In Semifinals

PARIS (AP) — Throwing his moonball game away to beat cramps and gathering darkness, Harold Solomon, tennis supreme run-and-fetch player, turned hitter for 20 minutes Thursday, time enough to advance into the semifinals of the French Open tournament with a victory over Guillermo Vilas

The American who has driven players to the edge of desperation with his lobs slow-paced game and retrieving abilities whacked a series of net volleys and winners from the baseline to beat the Argentine 6-1 0-6 7-6, 6-1 as the clock of Roland Garros Stadium brushed 9 15 p m

The visibility had started to fade and Solomon said he began to be bothered by cramps in his leg at the beginning of the fourth set

' I thought to myself if I don t get it over now, I m in trouble, Solomon said ' I started to bang the ball and I think it was the best I ever hit it I hit everything as hard as I could and they never seemed to go long

Solomon of Silver Spring Md , will meet Raul Ramirez of Mexico, who beat Belacz Taroczy of Hungary 4-6, 7-6, 2-6, 6-1 7-5 to advance into the semifinals Eddie Dibbs of Miami also has a shot at the finals if he can beat the Italian champion, Adriano Panatta on Saturday

"If I had to pick somebody I d like to play I guess it s Ramirez, Solomon said I beat him twice recently

The match, including the 14-minute break between the third and fourth sets, took a minute over three hours Most of it, with the exception of Solomon s final rush involved the long baseline-to-baseline rallies that characterize Solomon matches

The American was able to do the forcing in the first set 6-1 taking the left hander to 4-0 on two service breaks that came from deep groundstrokes and an occasional volley at the net Vilas won the second set at love serving better and finding Solomon short on approach shots

Solomon broke Vilas service in the first game and the match seemed to be settling into a hypnotic pattern of long exchanges—there were 54 shots for the second point in the second game But Vilas served two aces to lead 3-2 and advanced to 4-3 on an overhead The Argentine had three break points on Solomon s service in the next game but Solomon produced a backhand that fell the six inches between Vilas and the line that brought them even

Both men lost their services in consecutive games and forced a tie-breaker Solomon led four points to one but a Vilas smash and a service winner put him within a point of winning the set at 6-5 SOlomon tied the score with another stunningly controlled backhand and then Vilas netted a backhand and hit long giving solomon an 8-6 win

The last set produced almost no resistance from Vilas, whom the American had not beaten in two years I felt as good as I ever have said Solomon The ball was just ripping off the racket

Taroczy had only himself to blame for losing After winning the first set 6-4, he twice came within a point of winning the tiebreak second set He missed an open volley once and let Ramirez get in position for a passing forehand the second time Ramirez won the tiebreak 7-5

It s more interesting than driving in a straight line for a quarter of a mile or going around and around in a circle

At least that s what Lincolnite Duane Eitel thinks about sports car racing And that s the reason he got started in the inaugural Scirocco Bilstein Cup Pro Series this year

Eitel of the E-K Racing team in Lincoln, is one of the 15 men in the country this year who will be competing in the Sports Car Club of America series this season

Sponsored by Volkswagen of American, Inc and Bilstein Corporation, with additional support from Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co and the Robert Borsch Corp , the Scirocco/Bilstein Cup series currently consists of a series of seven pro races across the country

Eitel who started drag racing in 1962, retired temporarily before buying a formula Ford in 1972 which he raced for three years "This Scirocco in the SCCA s Showroom Stock class is the most inexpensive pro sports car racing available," said Eitel "And that was one of the reasons for getting into it

' The only difference between the car we race and one you can buy off the showroom floor is we have a roll-bar, fire extinguisher, competition seat belts, taped headlights and no hubcaps," said Bunny Rawie, one of the mechanics on the crew

Eitel and the team crew of Rawie, head mechanic Don Kehr and Jerry and Nancy McGorian will be heading for their first race of the Cup series next Wednesday The race is slated for June 20 at the Mosport Park track in Ontario, Canada.

Other races in the series include Road America at Elkhart Lake, Wis , Mid-Ohio in Lexington, Ohio, Brainerd International Raceway in Minnesota, Lime Rock Park in Connecticut, and Road Atlanta in Gainesville, Ga

There aren't any tracks to practice on around here so we either go to St. Louis, where they have a road circuit or try and get to the course we ll be racing at a couple of days early and practice there," said Eitel

Eitel has passed numerous SCCA driving school tests and holds a national competition license "It s not the kind of thing anymore where a 300-pound guy sitting behind a desk all week can hop into his car and win a race," said Eitel "You have to stay in good shape and really work at driving '

"Because these cars can't be doctored too much due to the strict regulations, winning relies quite a bit on driver ability," said Eitel, who works for the Department of Roads when not racing

"On a sports car track you have to learn all the different turns and then work on the ones you feel are the most important, like the turns before a long straight," Eitel said

Although there is a $1,000 top prize for each of the seven races and a $25,000 points-fund to be distributed at the end of the season, Eitel doesn't feel he could make a living racing in the showroom stock class ' Eventually I would like to turn to racing full time in the formula 5000 class Those cars are kind of an American version of the European Grand Prix cars," said Eitel "But that may be awhile yet "

Ak's Johnson Remains At Ease

Omaha — Elmer Johnson doesn't let horseman s complaints seriously bother his work Still, he s concerned whenever something is being questioned about the Ak-Sar-Ben racing surface

"It (numerous complaints) can't help but bother me I'd like to have everyone happy, but that can't be done so I just try to work a little harder to please somebody " said Ak-Sar-Ben s director of physical plant.

"There are some horsemen who complain a lot about the track," he noted "It's hard to get a general poll. I guess it just depends on whether they have winning horses "

As with Fonner Park in Grand Island, the biggest objection appears to the amount of sand in the track. Johnson has the figures, done for Ak-Sar-Ben by the Omaha Testing Laboratories, Inc.

Before anything was done to the track for this year's race meet, the amount of sand in the surface ranged from 68.5 per cent at the eighth-pole to 76.8 at the quarter and 5/8ths pole.

Then 500 tons of sand were put into the surface on May 2 That boosted the sand percentages to a top of 81.2 at the eighth-pole to a low of 78.8 at the 5/8ths pole.

An additional 400 tons were added on May 15, bringing the results to a low of 76 per cent sand at the finish line to a high of 80 9 at the 5/8ths pole.

"You see, the additional 400 tons really didn t do much to the percentages." Johnson noted. "I think it's excellent and most horsemen say the track's as good as it's ever been Probably the same group that thinks there s too much sand on it won't like it.

All right, so why was the sand?

' It makes a softer cushion — a better running surface and it makes the track dry faster after rains. It drains water better," he explained. "There's also another aspect. With so much dirt in the track, the plastic index (PI) is cut down with sand. That's the sticky part of the dirt.

"Horsemen notice it when they're washing horses. When the PI is high, it's harder to wash the dirt off horses because it sticks. The sand lowers that and it only takes a little water to wash the dirt from horses. It's not a big thing, but it does help." he said.

Johnson said 80 per cent is the magic percentage Ak-Sar-Ben seeks in its sand content. He added that most of the sand won't run off during the rains — the fine sand and dirt will run off — but the vast majority of sand isn't bothered by rains

Another aspect to the track problem is the number of horses that have broken down due to track conditions

"More sand and cushion combined help that problem," he noted I don't think we've had any horses break down because of the track so far One got hurt out of the gate and another died of a heart attack.

When I first came here in 1969, the race track was real hard — the hardest it's ever been I think between 20 and 25 horses broke down

"But the last few years, I don't think we've had two or three break down because of the race track. You kind of use that as a gauge It s not very scientific, but it makes you feel better "

Johnson added that Ak-Sar-Ben generally seeks a three-inch cushion. "We ve cut it down to between two and two and one-half inches. It makes the track a little faster, but it still makes a good cushion."

He noted that the track has been worked and the packed cushion has been brought up and the sand content lowered somewhat.

' We're doing everything we can to have the best racing surface possible at Ak-Sar-Ben," he said. "But you can't please everyone."

Miss Bryant, of Los Angeles, was clocked in 23 61 seconds and Miss Morehead, of Tennessee State in 23 59 as both won their heats over a wet track at UCLA

An unseasonable morning rain gave way to bright sunshine in the afternoon for the first session of this three-day championship which for the first time had events for both men and women

Lack of competitors in the men s and women s 400-meter intermediate hurdles caused trials in those events to be cancelled and competitors were moved automatically into the semifinals

No final events were scheduled for Thursday

State Trapshoot Opening Round A Scorcher

By TOM VINT
Outdoor Editor

Doniphan — Thursday's opening round of the 80th annual State Trapshoot here was a scorcher not only from the 90-plus degree weather but from the scores as well.

Sometimes known as the all-American Trapshoot, due to the number of all-American shooters participating, the Nebraska shoot opened with seven 100s recorded before noon in the Directors' Open Singles

And as usual, names like Bueford Bailey of Big Springs and Jim Beck of Omaha were among the leaders

State shooters often mingle to talk ammunition, guns and how Bailey and Beck did It's come to pass as an annual thing for the two former national 16-yard average leaders who've topped the state in target shooting percentages for several years

If competition improves the shooting scores both of these marksmen feel this will be a tough field to crack. There are at least present or former all-American shooters participating in the four-day shoot.

You ve got five or six of them here from this year,' said Beck of the all-Americans 'That s the good thing about it Competition makes better shooters If there was one or two good shooters in the state they'd always be No 1 and No 2 There are just too many good shooters around here for that. You can't let down here You have to concentrate all the time

Bailey agreed saying It has a good effect on a good shooter I d like to see all the all Americans come here It makes you think because you know if you miss once you re done You can t miss a target "

Bailey will be trying for his third straight state singles title, a feat never before accomplished in state shoot history He is also the holder of more state titles than any other shooter having won the handicap once from his 27 yard [illegible] five singles titles and four doubles titles He took successive doubles titles from 1965 67 to become the only three-time consecutive winner in any state event

Saturday Bailey will get his chance at that third straight singles title

Cook To Replace Nelson

When the champion Boston Celtics selected Kansas forward Norman Cook in the first round of the National Basketball Association draft, they got exactly what they were looking for — a fast, good shooting forward to replace the retiring Don Nelson, former Iowa sharpshooter who now is 36 years old.

Cook was recruited heavily out of high school in Lincoln, Ill., by schools such as Illinois and Indiana of the Big Ten. He never has lived up to his credentials at Kansas, even though the Jayhawks won a pair of Big Eight titles and advanced to the final four of the NCAA tournament once.

Cook opted to give up his senior season of eligibility with the Jayhawks. He almost didn't play his junior year, but was talked into staying at Kansas by a Celtics' assistant coach (John Killiles) and former KU star Jo Jo White, the MVP in the Celtics' NBA title series against Phoenix.

"I think he's made for our ball club," Boston coach Tommy Heinsohn said. "I saw him twice in Providence during tryouts for the Pan American Games and I saw him play against Notre Dame. He can run. He's smart and he can get nothing but better."

Heinsohn described Cook as "a good, quick forward, a pure forward." He pointed out that Boston had a chance to draft Earl Tatum of Marquette, who is also a scorer. "But Cook is bigger and more fundamental," he added. "He played at a school that uses a slowdown offense, but Jo Jo White learned under the same coach (Ted Owens) and he adjusted quite well."

White was the Celtics first draft choice in 1969 and has become a mainstay with Boston. It will be interesting to see if Cook can become the same kind of star player.

Fort Has Competition

Nebraskan Jerry Fort, who went in the third round to Boston, will have competition in his battle to become one of four guards the Celtics will keep. He was the 51st player taken after averaging 19 points a game last season for the Cornhuskers.

Boston's other guard picks were Lewis Linder, 6-4, Kentucky State; John Clark, 6-2, of Northeastern, a school located in downtown Boston; and Otho Tucker, 6-6, Illinois.

Fort actually was Boston's No. 2 pick since the Celtics traded away their second round choice when they obtained Charlie Scott from Phoenix and sent Paul Westphal to the Suns. Based on the way the two players looked in the playoffs, it was a pretty even trade without the draft choice. That's another way of saying the Suns probably got the better of the deal.

Fort is a dedicated player and needs only to develop more consistency in his shooting to make the Celtics. He has the intelligence to go with his quickness and defensive ability to play in the pros. Perhaps another thing he needs to work on is his strength and stamina because pro basketball is quite demanding physically. Jerry has been running and working with weights to develop his upper body.

When you get tired, the first thing that tires is the arm. That can be fatal to a shooter. The only basketball players I've seen who can shoot with their feet are the Globetrotters.

Incidentally, the other Boston draftees were Louis McKinney, 6-5 forward, St. Louis; Art Collins, 6-4½ forward, Biscayne; Ralph Drollinger, 7-0 center, UCLA; and Bill Collins, 6-10 center, from hometown Boston College.

CWS Highlights Arizonans

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Omaha — Heavily favored Arizona State will wait until Saturday evening to make its debut in the College World Series against state rival Arizona. Each team is hoping a victory in that 5:10 p.m. game will help make the other six teams think it is invincible.

Oklahoma, which is in the same bracket with the favored clubs, and Eastern Michigan are the two teams regarded as having the best chance to upset the apple cart.

The Series, which is for the NCAA's Division I baseball championship, begins at 5:10 p.m. Friday in Rosenblatt Stadium when Auburn's Southeastern Conference champions go against Clemson, winner of the Atlantic Coast Conference crown.

The second game pairs Maine, winner of the Northeastern NCAA Regional, against Eastern Michigan, which defeated Big Ten champion Michigan to earn a trip here.

The opening night program will see three starting pitchers who were taken in Tuesday's major league draft and at least five other players the professional scouts regarded highly enough to select.

Auburn, 37-13, will lead the righthander Joe Beckwith, who was drafted by Cleveland in the 12th round. He'll oppose undefeated Charles Porter of Clemson, who went to California in the seventh round.

Eastern Michigan, back in the Series for the second year in a row and third-ranked by Collegiate Baseball, will start lefthander Bob Owchinko, who shutout Michigan in the Midwest Regional championship game. He was taken by San Diego in the first round. Maine's hurler will be Berg Roberge, the all-time leading hurler for the Bears.

So, all the talent isn't confined to the Saturday night session which also features a game between Oklahoma of the Big Eight and Washington State from the Pacific-8.

NCAA officials said tickets still are available for all sessions, but that the ones for Saturday are moving fast. Tickets ($3 box, $2.50 reserved, $1.50 adult general admission and $ .75 children under 12) can be purchased at Brandeis Ticket Center or at Rosenblatt.

Clemson made back-to-back World Series appearances in 1958-59 and under Coach Bill Wilhelm the Tigers have never finished lower than .500 while winning more than 65 per cent of their games.

His top hitter is centerfielder Steve Tucker with a .353 average, but the best player is Kurt Seibert, shortstop who was picked by the Chicago Cubs in the third round. Leading slugger is Dave Caldwell, who had 29 extra base hits.

Auburn third baseman Ritchie Howard finished third in SEC batting with a .383 average.

Eastern Michigan has a hard-hitting trio, including shortstop Glenn Gulliver (.413), an eighth round pick of the Detroit Tigers, catcher-first baseman Charles Keller (.356), drafted on the tenth round by Atlanta, and infielder Glenn Ambrose (.351).

Marathon Suits Carlberg

By RYLY JANE HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Marathon runner Greg Carlberg doesn't subscribe to the theory that long distance running is a lonely sport.

"Sure, I train alone a lot of the time," said the Drake Relays marathon winner of 1976. "But once or twice a week, or even more often, I get together with some friends and we run together, usually on weekends."

Carlberg's training paid off with a Drake Relays watch and a chance recently to run in the Olympic marathon trials in Eugene, Ore.

The Omaha insurance underwriter finished 22nd with a time of 2:24.10 in the trials, which Frank Shorter won. Just 42 of the 71 starters finished the 26-mile, 385-yard course.

"I wasn't really satisfied with the time," Carlberg said. "I was a bit disappointed, but I was really glad I went. Otherwise I would have wondered how well I could have done.

"I enjoyed running against the top marathoners in the country," he said. "They set an extremely fast pace — under five minutes for a mile for the first 20 miles — and then eased in. I didn't try to keep their pace, because as it was I was going at a pretty good pace for me.

"I got pretty tired the last two or three miles. I was even tempted to drop out at 25 miles," he admitted.

Carlberg, who runs with the Plains Track Club of Omaha, was clocked in 2:22:25.17 at the Drake Relays. He knew he had to get a time under two hours, 23 minutes in order to qualify for the Olympic trials.

"Actually, when I was running at the Drake Relays, toward the end of the race, I was hurting so bad, which you usually do at the end of a marathon, I was almost hoping I wouldn't qualify. I knew that if I did," Carlberg explained, "that I would keep training for it and right then I didn't want to think about training any more."

The former University of Nebraska track standout said he wasn't able to do the training he thought he needed before the trials.

"I needed to do more speed training," he said. "But then, some people say it takes a month to recover from a marathon, and I didn't have that much time to recover and then train."

Now Carlberg has his sights set on another marathon. This time, it's the Aug. 1 Omaha Marathon that he's interested in. The winner of the Omaha race gets a round-trip ticket to the Boston Marathon, in which Carlberg would like to compete.

"There are some other track meets this summer I'm going to run in," he said. "The Plains Track Club is sponsoring an AAU championship meet June 26-27, with the open meet the 27th.

"I'd like to do a triple if it's not too hot," he said. "The 800 meters is in the morning, the 5,000 meters is at noon and the 1,500 meters is late in the afternoon. I'll run all three if I can.

"I like both long and short distances. I think I have a competitive advantage in the long distances because of my college running. I'm faster than other marathoners and can sustain a given pace. Now I have to improve on endurance," Carlberg said.

During the summer, Carlberg takes a low-key approach in his training. He's aiming at a consistent training program.

"We call it LSD — long slow distance. It's 10 to 20 miles at a slow pace to develop a base and work your heart consitently," he explained. "The body can store enough energy to go 20 miles and after that it's endurance and it's also the point when little things irritate you. Some people say a marathon is about half over at 20 miles."

After that, it's all training, endurance and desire.

Solomon Wins, In Semifinals

PARIS (AP) — Throwing his moonball game away to beat cramps and gathering darkness, Harold Solomon, tennis' supreme run-and-fetch player, turned hitter for 20 minutes Thursday, time enough to advance into the semifinals of the French Open tournament with a victory over Guillermo Vilas.

The American, who has driven players to the edge of desperation with his lobs, slow-paced game and retrieving abilities, whacked a series of net volleys and winners from the baseline to beat the Argentine 6-1, 0-6, 7-6, 6-1 as the clock of Roland Garros Stadium brushed 9:15 p.m.

The visibility had started to fade and Solomon said he began to be bothered by cramps in his leg at the beginning of the fourth set.

"I thought to myself if I don't get it over now, I'm in trouble," Solomon said. "I started to bang the ball and I think it was the best I ever hit it. I hit everything as hard as I could and they never seemed to go long."

Solomon, of Silver Spring, Md., will meet Raul Ramirez of Mexico, who beat Belacz Taroczy of Hungary 4-6, 7-6, 2-6, 6-1, 7-5 to advance into the semifinals. Eddie Dibbs of Miami also has a shot at the finals if he can beat the Italian champion, Adriano Panatta, on Saturday.

"If I had to pick somebody I'd like to play I guess it's Ramirez," Solomon said. "I beat him twice recently."

The match, including the 14-minute break between the third and fourth sets, took a minute over three hours. Most of it, with the exception of Solomon's final rush, involved the long baseline-to-baseline rallies that characterize Solomon matches.

The American was able to do the forcing in the first set 6-1, taking the left-hander to 4-0 on two service breaks that came from deep groundstrokes and an occasional volley at the net. Vilas won the second set at love, serving better and finding Solomon short on approach shots.

Solomon broke Vilas' service in the first game and the match seemed to be settling into a hypnotic pattern of long exchanges—there were 54 shots for the second point in the second game. But vilas served two aces to lead 3-2 and advanced to 4-3 on an overhead. The Argentine had three break points on Solomon's service in the next game, but Solomon produced a backhand that fell the six inches between Vilas and the line that brought them even.

Both men lost their services in consecutive games and forced a tie-breaker. Solomon led four points to one, but a Vilas smash and a service winner put him within a point of winning the set at 6-5. SOlomon tied the score with another stunningly controlled backhand, and then Vilas netted a backhand and hit long, giving solomon an 8-6 win.

The last set produced almost no resistance from Vilas, whom the American had not beaten in two years. "I felt as good as I ever have," said Solomon. "The ball was just ripping off the racket."

Taroczy had only himself to blame for losing. After winning the first set 6-4, he twice came within a point of winning the tiebreak second set. He missed an open volley once and let Ramirez get in position for a passing forehand the second time. Ramirez won the tiebreak 7-5.

An unseasonable morning rain gave way to bright sunshine in the afternoon for the first session of this three-day championship which for the first time had events for both men and women.

Lack of competitors in the men's and women's 400-meter intermediate hurdles caused trials in those events to be cancelled and competitors were moved automatically into the semifinals.

No final events were scheduled for Thursday.

Leading the qualifiers in the women's 100-meter hurdles was veteran Jane Frederick of Los Angeles, 13.82; Deby La Plante, unattached from Michigan, 13.99; Pat Donnelly, Lake Wood, Calif., 13.77; and Rhonda Brady, Chicago 13.90.

Miss Frederick won the 1975 event in 13.8 and is a top pentathlon hopeful.

UCLA has an all-weather track so no events were delayed because of the rain conditions.

The first surprise came in the first heat of the men's 110-meter hurdles. Charles Foster of Chapel Hill, N. C., pulled up after the seventh hurdle and did not qualify for the semifinals.

Foster, the fastest American of 1976, with a 13.55 clocking, was favored, just as he was a year ago when he fell down in the finals and did not finish the '75 meet.

State Trapshoot Opening Round A Scorcher

By TOM VINT
Outdoor Editor

Doniphan — Thursday's opening round of the 98th annual State Trapshoot here was a scorcher, not only from the 90-plus degree weather but from the scores as well.

Sometimes known as the all-American Trapshoot, due to the number of all-American shooters participating, the Nebraska shoot opened with seven 100s recorded before noon in the Directors' Open Singles.

And as usual, names like Bueford Bailey of Big Springs and Jim Beck of Omaha were among the leaders.

State shooters often mingle to talk ammunition, guns and how Bailey and Beck did. It's come to pass as an annual thing for the two former national 16-yard average leaders who've topped the state in target shooting percentages for several years.

If competition improves the shooting scores, both of these marksmen feel this will be a tough field to crack. There are at least present or former all-American shooters participating in the four-day shoot.

"You've got five or six of them here from this year," said Beck of the all-Americans. "That's the good thing about it. Competition makes better shooters. If there was one or two good shooters in the state they'd always be No. 1 and No. 2. There are just too many good shooters around here for that. You can't let down here. You have to concentrate all the time."

Bailey agreed, saying, "It has a good effect on a good shooter. I'd like to see all the all-Americans come here. It makes you think because you know if you miss once you're done. You can't miss a target."

Bailey will be trying for his third straight state singles title, a feat never before accomplished in state shoot history. He is also the holder of more state titles than any other shooter, having won the handicap once from his 27-yard perch, five singles titles and four doubles titles. He took successive doubles titles from 1965-67 to become the only three-time consecutive winner in any state event.

Saturday, Bailey will get his chance at that third straight singles title.

Trevino Doubtful For Open

Lee Trevino
Pinched Back Nerve

Lee Trevino, suffering from a pinched nerve in his back, withdrew from the $250,000 Kemper Open and became a questionable starter for next week's U.S. Open Golf Championship.

"I don't know if I'll be able to play or not," Trevino said of the national championship, to be played June 17 to 20 in Atlanta.

Trevino, a two-time U.S. Open champion and one of the leading contenders for the title this year, pulled out of the Kemper before starting first-round play.

AL president Lee MacPhail scheduled a hearing for Colavito June 22 when the Indians are in New York. Colavito said Garcia initiated the bumping incident, then ejected him although he had merely asked a proper question. It was the 12th time this season that an Indian player, manager or coach had been thumbed by the umpiring crew of Garcia, Lou Di Muro, Dave Phillips and Bill Kunkel.

Catcher-outfielder Gary Carter of the Montreal Expos had a pin inserted in his fractured left thumb to help speed its healing.

In all, 713 players were taken in the regular phase and 73 taken in the secondary phase, which was for players previously selected but who were unsigned.

OSU Moves Up By Nine

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Freshman Britt Harrison fired a three-underpar 69 to take the individual lead and stretch Oklahoma State's front-running margin to nine strokes Thursday in the second round of the NCAA golf championships.

Harrison's 140 total gave him a one-stroke advantage over Allan Strange of East Tennessee State and Bart Goodwin of Rice, and three of Harrison's teammates were also among the leaders. That gave Oklahoma State a 578-587 bulge over runnerup Brigham Young, which was paced by Mike Reid with 145 and Jim Nelford at 146.

Harrison completed his round before afternoon winds whipped to a steady 30 miles per hour with gusts to 50 mph on the University of New Mexico South Course. He easily overhauled the three co-leaders after Wednesday's first round.

Herzog Hired Just In Time To Move Royals

KANSAS CITY (AP) — It s beginning to look more and more like Whitey Herzog is exactly what the Kansas City Royals needed And he is a classic study of a man being in the right place at the right time

Herzog was 43 years old and the third base coach for the California Angels last July when owner Ewing Kauffman made the decision to fire Jack McKeon and find another pilot for his strife-ridden Royals, who had lagged in their pursuit of Oakland in the American League West Herzog, a veteran baseball man who had made his home since 1959 in Independence, Mo , a few minutes from Royals Stadium, was his choice

Herzog made no personnel changes, but the team nevertheless played better than it had all season, racing to an impressive 41-25 clip and finishing with 91 victories, the highest total in 20 years of major league ball in this town

This season the Royals are again rolling and lead the American League West

A manager s role is difficult to assess, but there is no question that Whitey Herzog—he gets the name from his sun-colored hair—has won the hearts of his players

The Royals were an unhappy divided lot before Herzog arrived, and club spokesmen now asked to help explain the change suddenly find an excuse to leave the room

The players are almost as reticent

It s just a much more relaxed atmosphere said one, after carefully weighing his words He s willing to admit a mistake '

' He s honest with you," said another ' He can communicate with the players, and what s more, the players can communicate with him '

' There doesn't seem to be any pressure on the players," said one veteran Royal

Remember when you were a kid and you d hop out of bed at eight o clock and play all day just for the fun of it? Well, that s sort of the atmosphere Whitey s created here again It s fun But don t misunderstand If you re not doing the job he won t put up with you and he lets you know it He s the boss

Herzog s destiny wove a circuitous path from his birth in New Athens Ill to the leadership of the Royals His experience includes seven years in the New York Mets organization, scouting for the Kansas City Athletics eight years as an outfielder first baseman with several teams and most recently a brief stint as manager of the Texas Rangers He was fired by the Rangers in 1973 when Billy Martin who later would also be fired became available

Herzog accepts modestly any credit for the Royals new found success

Longet Enters 'Innocent' Plea

ASPEN, Colo (AP) — The courtroom was opened after a judge withdrew a gag order, and entertainer Claudine Longet pleaded innocent on Thursday to manslaughter in the death of her lover, professional skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich

The French born actress entered the plea after Pitkin County District Court Judge George E Lohr withdrew a gag order and ordered transcripts of the all-day preliminary hearing made available to the press Lohr set trial for Aug 30

He also scheduled a hearing for June 30 on a motion to suppress evidence in the case

Miss Longet is charged with shooting Sabich to death at his $250,000 mountain chalet where the two lived together for two years She told investigators the shooting on March 21 was an accident, that a pistol went off as Sabich showed her how to use it

A deputy sheriff had been posted outside to enforce the gag order issued eight days ago A few minutes before the hearing began, the U S Supreme Court let the ruling stand

But Dist Atty Frank Tucker the prosecutor, emerged from the closed hearing and told reporters, "You ll never believe what just happened ' He then reported that the hearing had been opened and the gag order lifted

As reporters entered the courtroom Miss Longet clutched a tissue and had tears in her eyes

When Lohr asked Miss Longet to enter a plea she and her attorney stood and she murmured Not guilty

Redskins Sign Riggins

WASHINGTON (AP) — Running back John Riggins, probably the best of the 24 free agents who became available May 1, has signed a series of one-year contracts with the Washington Redskins That gives the National Football League team three players who have gained 1,000 yards in a season

The 26-year-old Riggins, who played out his option with the New York Jets last year, told reporters that the Redskins presented the best opportunity of the four teams with which he had been negotiating recently

"They were all contenders, but I felt I had the greatest opportunity here," said Riggins, who also had talked with Houston, Los Angeles, New Orleans and Minnesota "I'm very happy to be here and that includes everything "

Riggins and Coach George Allen declined to discuss details of the contract It had been reported that Riggins had sought $1 5 million for five seasons, to be paid at $100,000 annually for 15 years

Jets General Manager Al Ward said on Wednesday he had been told it would take ' substantially more" than the $1 5 million over five years Riggins was asking from the other clubs for the Jets to sign him again

Riggins said he had told the Jets, which had offered to match any other offer he had received, that he wanted ' the same salary as Joe Namath It wasn t feasible They knew it and I knew it

"The demand I put on the Jets is my way of saying 'It's been nice' "

Riggins said that he wanted to leave the Jets because the New York team had a pass-oriented offense led by quarterback Joe Namath, who reportedly makes $450 000 a year

Riggins will join a Redskin offense that recently acquired free agent Calvin Hill and Larry Brown, both of whom have gained 1,000 yards in a season

Riggins, who will be entering his sixth pro year was the first player in Jets history to rush for more than 1,000 yards in one season when he gained 1 005 yards on 238 carries in 1975

Rudolph Takes Stroke Lead Over Snead

CHARLOTTE, N C (UPI) — Veteran Mason Rudolph shot a six-under-par 66 Thursday and held a one-stroke lead over J C Snead when rain halted play for the day in the first round of the $250,000 Kemper Open golf tournament

A severe thunderstorm moved over the Quail Hollow Country Club course and play was suspended at 3 53 p m PGA officials hoped to resume play but decided shortly after 7 p m. to call it off for the day because of threatening skies

The 75 golfers who teed off in the afternoon still were on the course when play was stopped The 78 players in the morning group completed play First round play will be resumed at 8 a m Friday, with the second round starting at 9 a m

"I had a good putting round," said Rudolph after he finished his round under bright, sunny skies "My iron game was probably as good as it s been in a long time "

Rudolph had seven birdies and a lone bogey over the 7,160yard layout He had a single stroke advantage over Snead, and was two shots ahead of rookie Tom Purtzer and Rex Caldwell

Forrest Fezler, Mark Hayes and Gary Groh had 3-under-par 69s after the first round Jim Dent was three under after 10 holes of play and Bob Lunn was also three under after nine holes

Larry Nelson picked up four birdies through 10 holes but suffered back-to-back bogeys and stood two under after 14.

Rudolph was all smiles after his round, the second best he has shot in the past two years. He said changes made in the course since last year suited his style.

"You have to place some shots now and play some position golf. said Rudolph, noting that more than 300 trees have been added to tighten up the fairways. ' I think it's a good test of golf now They really put some trees close together out there. Fortunately I stayed out of them today "

Rudolph, whose last victory came in the 1970 Green Pond tournament, now the Southern Open, started on the back nine and picked up birdies at the 13th, 14th and 16th holes before bogeying the 18th after hitting his drive into the rough

AAU Misfire Costs Glance

KNOXVILLE, Tenn (AP) — A misfire of a starter s gun almost cost Harvey Glance, Auburn freshman ad co-holder of the 100 meter world record, a chance to represent the United States in international track competition this summer

When starter Jerry Scott fired his gun for the 100-meter dash Wednesday night in the National Junior AAU track meet, he noticed a false start by one runner

Scott pulled the trigger twice in an attempt to recall the sprinters but the gun failed to fire

Dwayne Evans, 17-year-old schoolboy sensation from Phoenix, Ariz , nipped Glance in the race, winning in 10 1 to Glance's 10 2

Evans said he didn't hear the gun click and "I just ran like mad I wasn t about to stop "

Glance, winner of the 100 and 200 sprints in the NCAA championships last week, said he knew there was a false start and slowed up momentarily But he rallied from dead last and finished a step behind Evans, also winner of the 200 dash

' At least I have a trip to Canada and Europe, but it's a tough way to lose," Glance said ' I just have to accept it. '

The American team, composed of athletes who have not reached their 20th birthday, will compete in Montreal's Olympic Stadium June 26-27 and then fly to Europe for a meet with the Soviet Union s juniors at Tallin July 2-3

Smith Shifts 2 Forwards

CHAPEL HILL, N C (UPI) — U S Olympic basketball coach Dean Smith, trying to bolster his squad at center, shifted two forwards to center Thursday in workouts at the University of North Carolina.

Smith, who put his 15 players through a tough, two-hour practice, said he has decided to try Arizona State's Mark Landsberger and North Carolina State's Kenny Carr at center

In addition, he said forward Walter Davis of North Carolina will be shifted to guard

"It's true that we have too many forwards and that is where the cut (from the current 15 players to 12 for the Olympic Games) should come," Smith said after the workout. "But I'm not going to say I'll do that.

"We may have a lot of forwards, but that's where a lot of our talent is."

Smith said he was satisfied with the performance of the team so far, though several of his players still appeared to be out of condition.

"The No 1 thing for us to do," he said, "is to establish a team cohesiveness I couldn't be happier with the way the players are willing to give up the ball.

Thursday's practice was the only session open to the public

Connors, Tanner, Smith Advance

Beckenham England (AP) — Three Americans, Jimmy Connors, Roscoe Tanner and Stan Smith charged into the semifinals of the Beckenham Grass Courts Tennis Championships with victories Thursday

Tanner said he believed this tournament would be the perfect tuneup for Wimbledon

"All the guys here will be helped by the grass courts and match practice " the powerful left-hander said ' If the weather stays like this the Wimbledon courts will be fast and the bounce better than usual — and that s the way I like it

Gorman said Tanner was nearing the top of his game

'You can't get any rhythm against Roscoe because you can't get the racket into the ball," he said "He must fancy himself for Wimbledon because his service is getting so great "

In Friday s semifinals, Connors will duel New Zealand s Onny Parun who beat Teimuraz Kakulia of the Soviet Union, 6-4, 6-1, and Tanner will play Smith

In women s play former three-time Wimbledon champion Maria Bueno retired from the quarter-finals after just three games of her match against Nana Sato of Japan.

I just didn't feel too well, she said later "It's as simple as that

Just over one hour earlier Miss Bueno had defeated Judy Connor of New Zealand 6-3 6-1

Herzog Hired Just In Time To Move Royals

KANSAS CITY (AP) — It's beginning to look more and more like Whitey Herzog is exactly what the Kansas City Royals needed. And he is a classic study of a man being in the right place at the right time.

Herzog was 43 years old and the third base coach for the California Angels last July when owner Ewing Kauffman made the decision to fire Jack McKeon and find another pilot for his strife-ridden Royals, who had lagged in their pursuit of Oakland in the American League West. Herzog, a veteran baseball man who had made his home since 1959 in Independence, Mo., a few minutes from Royals Stadium, was his choice.

Herzog made no personnel changes, but the team nevertheless played better than it had all season, racing to an impressive 41-25 clip and finishing with 91 victories, the highest total in 20 years of major league ball in this town.

This season the Royals are again rolling and lead the American League West.

A manager's role is difficult to assess, but there is no question that Whitey Herzog—he gets the name from his sun-colored hair—has won the hearts of his players.

The Royals were an unhappy, divided lot before Herzog arrived, and club spokesmen now asked to help explain the change suddenly find an excuse to leave the room.

The players are almost as reticent.

"It's just a much more relaxed atmosphere," said one, after carefully weighing his words. "He's willing to admit a mistake."

"He's honest with you," said another. "He can communicate with the players, and what's more, the players can communicate with him."

"There doesn't seem to be any pressure on the players," said one veteran Royal.

"Remember when you were a kid and you'd hop out of bed at eight o'clock and play all day just for the fun of it? Well, that's sort of the atmosphere Whitey's created here again. It's fun. But don't misunderstand. If you're not doing the job he won't put up with you and he lets you know it. He's the boss."

Herzog's destiny wove a circuitous path from his birth in New Athens, Ill., to the leadership of the Royals. His experience includes seven years in the New York Mets organization, scouting for the Kansas City Athletics, eight years as an outfielder-first baseman with several teams, and, most recently, a brief stint as manager of the Texas Rangers. He was fired by the Rangers in 1973 when Billy Martin, who later would also be fired, became available.

Herzog accepts modestly any credit for the Royals new-found success.

Welter Signs Pro Contract

Kearney — Kathy Welter, a Kearney State graduate this spring, has signed to play softball with the Michigan Travellers based in Detroit.

Welter, who competed in swimming, volleyball, basketball and track as well as softball, will be with the team for 52 doubleheaders between Memorial Day and Labor Day with teams from Rhode Island to California.

Kearney Race May Be Honor

Kearney — Kearney State's Bicentennial 24-hour relay may be the opening event of the observance of the nation's 200th birthday. The relay, scheduled to begin on July 2 at 10:30 a.m., is open to anyone.

Teams may be composed of two to 10 runners. Each team may chose where it wants to run, but each runner must complete one mile before handing off the baton. Medals will be awarded to the winning squad.

For further details, contact Kearney State track coach Bob Hauver at the school.

Sutherland To Brewers

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Tigers traded second baseman Gary Sutherland to the Milwaukee Brewers Thursday for second baseman Pedro "Pete" Garcia.

A Tigers' spokesman said both players are expected to be in uniform for their new teams' games Friday night. The deal will become official Friday at 2 p.m. when Sutherland formally clears waivers.

Garcia, 26, is a slick fielder who has been with the Brewers since 1973.

Longet Enters 'Innocent' Plea

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — The courtroom was opened after a judge withdrew a gag order, and entertainer Claudine Longet pleaded innocent on Thursday to manslaughter in the death of her lover, professional skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich.

The French-born actress entered the plea after Pitkin County District Court Judge George E. Lohr withdrew a gag order and ordered transcripts of the all-day preliminary hearing made available to the press. Lohr set trial for Aug. 30.

He also scheduled a hearing for June 30 on a motion to suppress evidence in the case.

Miss Longet is charged with shooting Sabich to death at his $250,000 mountain chalet where the two lived together for two years. She told investigators the shooting on March 21 was an accident, that a pistol went off as Sabich showed her how to use it.

A deputy sheriff had been posted outside to enforce the gag order issued eight days ago. A few minutes before the hearing began, the U.S. Supreme Court let the ruling stand.

But Dist. Atty. Frank Tucker, the prosecutor, emerged from the closed hearing and told reporters, "You'll never believe what just happened." He then reported that the hearing had been opened and the gag order lifted.

As reporters entered the courtroom, Miss Longet clutched a tissue and had tears in her eyes.

When Lohr asked Miss Longet to enter a plea, she and her attorney stood and she murmured, "Not guilty."

Redskins Sign Riggins

WASHINGTON (AP) — Running back John Riggins, probably the best of the 24 free agents who became available May 1, has signed a series of one-year contracts with the Washington Redskins. That gives the National Football League team three players who have gained 1,000 yards in a season.

The 26-year-old Riggins, who played out his option with the New York Jets last year, told reporters that the Redskins presented the best opportunity of the four teams with which he had been negotiating recently.

"They were all contenders, but I felt I had the greatest opportunity here," said Riggins, who also had talked with Houston, Los Angeles, New Orleans and Minnesota. "I'm very happy to be here and that includes everything."

Riggins and Coach George Allen declined to discuss details of the contract. It had been reported that Riggins had sought $1.5 million for five seasons, to be paid at $100,000 annually for 15 years.

Jets General Manager Al Ward said on Wednesday he had been told it would take "substantially more" than the $1.5 million over five years Riggins was asking from the other clubs for the Jets to sign him again.

Riggins said he had told the Jets, which had offered to match any other offer he had received, that he wanted "the same salary as Joe Namath. It wasn't feasible. They knew it and I knew it.

"The demand I put on the Jets is my way of saying 'It's been nice'."

Riggins said that he wanted to leave the Jets because the New York team had a pass-oriented offense led by quarterback Joe Namath, who reportedly makes $450,000 a year.

Riggins will join a Redskin offense that recently acquired free agent Calvin Hill and Larry Brown, both of whom have gained 1,000 yards in a season.

Riggins, who will be entering his sixth pro year, was the first player in Jets history to rush for more than 1,000 yards in one season when he gained 1,005 yards on 238 carries in 1975.

Rudolph Takes Stroke Lead Over Snead

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Veteran Mason Rudolph shot a six-under-par 66 Thursday and held a one-stroke lead over J.C. Snead when rain halted play for the day in the first round of the $250,000 Kemper Open golf tournament.

A severe thunderstorm moved over the Quail Hollow Country Club course and play was suspended at 3:53 p.m. PGA officials hoped to resume play but decided shortly after 7 p.m. to call it off for the day because of threatening skies.

The 75 golfers who teed off in the afternoon still were on the course when play was stopped. The 78 players in the morning group completed play. First round play will be resumed at 8 a.m. Friday, with the second round starting at 9 a.m.

"I had a good putting round," said Rudolph after he finished his round under bright, sunny skies. "My iron game was probably as good as it's been in a long time."

Rudolph had seven birdies and a lone bogey over the 7,160yard layout. He had a single stroke advantage over Snead, and was two shots ahead of rookie Tom Purtzer and Rex Caldwell.

Forrest Fezler, Mark Hayes and Gary Groh had 3-under-par 69s after the first round. Jim Dent was three under after 10 holes of play and Bob Lunn was also three under after nine holes.

Larry Nelson picked up four birdies through 10 holes but suffered back-to-back bogeys and stood two under after 14.

Rudolph was all smiles after his round, the second best he has shot in the past two years. He said changes made in the course since last year suited his style.

"You have to place some shots now, and play some position golf," said Rudolph, noting that more than 300 trees have been added to tighten up the fairways. "I think it's a good test of golf now. They really put some trees close together out there. Fortunately I stayed out of them today."

Rudolph, whose last victory came in the 1970 Green Pond tournament, now the Southern Open, started on the back nine and picked up birdies at the 13th, 14th and 16th holes before bogeying the 18th after hitting his drive into the rough.

AAU Misfire Costs Glance

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A misfire of a starter's gun almost cost Harvey Glance, Auburn freshman ad co-holder of the 100 meter world record, a chance to represent the United States in international track competition this summer.

When starter Jerry Scott fired his gun for the 100-meter dash Wednesday night in the National Junior AAU track meet, he noticed a false start by one runner.

Scott pulled the trigger twice in an attempt to recall the sprinters but the gun failed to fire.

Dwayne Evans, 17-year-old schoolboy sensation from Phoenix, Ariz., nipped Glance in the race, winning in 10.1 to Glance's 10.2.

Evans said he didn't hear the gun click and "I just ran like mad. I wasn't about to stop."

Glance, winner of the 100 and 200 sprints in the NCAA championships last week, said he knew there was a false start and slowed up momentarily. But he rallied from dead last and finished a step behind Evans, also winner of the 200 dash.

"At least I have a trip to Canada and Europe, but it's a tough way to lose," Glance said. "I just have to accept it."

The American team, composed of athletes who have not reached their 20th birthday, will compete in Montreal's Olympic Stadium June 26-27 and then fly to Europe for a meet with the Soviet Union's juniors at Tallin July 2-3

Smith Shifts 2 Forwards

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UPI) — U.S. Olympic basketball coach Dean Smith, trying to bolster his squad at center, shifted two forwards to center Thursday in workouts at the University of North Carolina.

Smith, who put his 15 players through a tough, two-hour practice, said he has decided to try Arizona State's Mark Landsberger and North Carolina State's Kenny Carr at center.

In addition, he said forward Walter Davis of North Carolina will be shifted to guard.

"It's true that we have too many forwards and that is where the cut (from the current 15 players to 12 for the Olympic Games) should come," Smith said after the workout. "But I'm not going to say I'll do that.

"We may have a lot of forwards, but that's where a lot of our talent is."

Smith said he was satisfied with the performance of the team so far, though several of his players still appeared to be out of condition.

"The No. 1 thing for us to do," he said, "is to establish a team cohesiveness. I couldn't be happier with the way the players are willing to give up the ball.

Thursday's practice was the only session open to the public.

Connors, Tanner, Smith Advance

Beckenham, England (AP) — Three Americans, Jimmy Connors, Roscoe Tanner and Stan Smith, charged into the semifinals of the Beckenham Grass Courts Tennis Championships with victories Thursday.

Connors of Belleville, Ill., eliminated Alex Metreveli of the Soviet Union 6-1, 6-1. Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., beat Tom Gorman of Seattle 6-2, 4-6, 6-4, and Smith of Sea Pines, S.C. defeated Charlie Pasarell of Puerto Rico 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

Tanner said he believed this tournament would be the perfect tuneup for Wimbledon.

"All the guys here will be helped by the grass courts and match practice," the powerful left-hander said. "If the weather stays like this, the Wimbledon courts will be fast and the bounce better than usual — and that's the way I like it."

Gorman said Tanner was nearing the top of his game.

"You can't get any rhythm against Roscoe because you can't get the racket into the ball," he said. "He must fancy himself for Wimbledon because his service is getting so great."

In Friday's semifinals, Connors will duel New Zealand's Onny Parun, who beat Teimuraz Kaulia of the Soviet Union, 6-4, 6-1, and Tanner will play Smith.

In women's play, former three-time Wimbledon champion Maria Bueno retired from the quarter-finals after just three games of her match against Nana Sato of Japan.

"I just didn't feel too well," she said later. "It's as simple as that."

Just over one hour earlier, Miss Bueno had defeated Judy Connor of New Zealand 6-3, 6-1.

Sharon Walsh of San Rafael, Calif., advanced to the semifinals with a 4-6, 8-6, 10-8 decision over Australian Pam Whytcross. Miss Walsh will face Olga Morozova of Russia in the semifinals. Miss Morozova beat Laura Dupont of Charlotte, N.C., 7-5, 6-3.

In the other women's semifinal, Miss Sato will play M. Kruger of South Africa, who beat N. Chmyreva of the Soviet Union 6-4, 9-7.

Ford's Floor Manager Quits; Cites Vote Lack, Close Race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen John Tower, R-Tex, resigned Thursday as President Ford's floor manager for the Republican convention in Kansas City

Tower said that because of the closeness of the contest between the President and challenger, Ronald Reagan, he felt Ford should select as his floor manager someone who also had a vote as a delegate

"Owing to the current situation on delegate count and considering what is likely to be the situation in Kansas City, I think it is essential that your floor leader be someone of delegate status who is eligible to seek recognition of the chair," Tower said in a letter to Ford

Texas will have 100 delegates to the August GOP convention In the May 1 primary, 96 were selected

The state party will pick the remaining four "at large" delegates later this month, but Tower had already withdrawn his name from consideration

"He did this because he did not want to be the subject of party division in the state," an aide said

The aide said Tower's resignation as Ford's floor manager was an effort to help the President

No Cubans Leave Angola

Brussels (UPI) — Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld told America's NATO allies Thursday that despite earlier reports there is no sign that Cuban troops have begun to leave Angola

Secretary of State Henry A Kissinger announced last month after talks in Stockholm that Cuban Premier Fidel Castro had written Swedish Premier Olof Palme promising to start withdrawing troops at a rate of 200 per month

But Rumsfeld told the opening session of the spring meeting of NATO defense ministers there was no concrete evidence yet of any significant Cuban withdrawals Five other ministers, citing their own intelligence reports, concurred in Rumsfeld s assessment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., resigned Thursday as President Ford's floor manager for the Republican convention in Kansas City.

Tower said that because of the closeness of the contest between the President and challenger Ronald Reagan, he felt Ford should select as his floor manager someone who also had a vote as a delegate.

"Owing to the current situation on delegate count and considering what is likely to be the situation in Kansas City, I think it is essential that your floor leader be someone of delegate status who is eligible to seek recognition of the chair," Tower said in a letter to Ford.

Texas will have 100 delegates to the August GOP convention. In the May 1 primary, 96 were selected.

The state party will pick the remaining four "at large" delegates later this month, but Tower had already withdrawn his name from consideration.

"He did this because he did not want to be the subject of party division in the state," an aide said.

The aide said Tower's resignation as Ford's floor manager was an effort to help the President.

No Cubans Leave Angola

Brussels (UPI) — Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld told America's NATO allies Thursday that despite earlier reports there is no sign that Cuban troops have begun to leave Angola.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger announced last month after talks in Stockholm that Cuban Premier Fidel Castro had written Swedish Premier Olof Palme promising to start withdrawing troops at a rate of 200 per month.

But Rumsfeld told the opening session of the spring meeting of NATO defense ministers there was no concrete evidence yet of any significant Cuban withdrawals. Five other ministers, citing their own intelligence reports, concurred in Rumsfeld's assessment.

Hope Helps Spark Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — Hopes for a break in the recent rise of interest rates helped spark a moderate rally in stock prices Thursday

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks climbed 6 30 to 964 39, for its best daily showing in nearly two weeks

Gainers outstripped losers by about a 2-1 margin inthe overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed ssues

Big Board volume stepped up a bit to 16 10 million shares from 14 56 million on Wednesday

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market came to 19 44 million shares as of the close in New York

Brokers said investors seemed to have been encouraged by signs that interest rates had stabilized in the past few days after a substantial rise from their lows earlier in the year

Hopes also seemed to circulate that weekly Federal Reserve statistics would show enough slack in the money supply to allow the Fed enough room to go easy on its credit policies

The Fed figures, issued at the market close, showed a $1 billion rise in the money supply for the latest reporting week

Whether that would come as a disappointment to traders was left to be seen in Friday's stock market activity

The rally Thursday also seemed to draw some impetus from generally bright view of the economic outlook in a mid-year report from the White House

Alan Greenspan, President Ford's top economic adviser, said the evidence pointed to a continued strong recovery, with a slightly lower rate of inflation than had been projected earlier for the year

Another plus cited by brokers was the effort toward a durable cease-fire in the civil war in Lebanon

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index advanced 82 to 99 56, and the NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was up 43 at 53 05

The big-name glamor. stocks recorded some of the day's best gains Xerox, IBM and Digital Equipment each rose more than a point

—Staying Ahead—

Job Seekers—Check 'Open' Professions

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — All over the country high school and college graduates will be scrambling for non-existent jobs this month while at the same time, thousands of other slots go unfilled The openings seem principally to be in technological fields that young people have never heard of in professions that their education hasn t trained them to consider

Their parents generally don't know much about these jobs either says Van M Evans, president of Deutsch Shea and Evans a prominent manpower consulting firm All that many of them can do is advise their children to do what they did — be a "secretary" "be a teacher " take the civil service exam " When; in fact, two years of technical training could put a young man or woman into an expanding field with rising salaries, and job mobility that would serve them all their working lives

If parents can t help their children with these new jobs. students might at least hope to turn with confidence to guidance counselors But here Evans is similarly discouraging "Most counselors have never worked in industry he says "They have no idea what it s like and or what variety of jobs exist there "

A few companies have taken the time to conduct guidance teachers through plants and offices showing them all the jobs and describing the requirements But most guidance teachers work only with printed materials that don t give them a real-life sense of the kinds of careers available

Among the "open" professions. Evans lists dental hygenists medical lab technicians X-ray technicians, chemists dieticians draftsmen, environmental technicians, mechanical civil and industrial engineers and oil-industry technicians These skills are taught in many community colleges — sometimes in conjunction with local employers — but social pressure steers many students elsewhere It's more prestigious to go to a four-year school and study teaching (even if you can t get a job) than to study drafting in a two-year college and pick up liberal-arts learning on the side

But Evans disagrees with those discouraged college graduates who say that a diploma and a quarter will get you a cup of coffee "Society is becoming more complicated all the time," he says "A technician with little education in other areas is not going to be promoted to an executive level, or be able to run his own business well "

The key is to combine your general learning with specific job skills rather than train for overfilled liberal arts " professions like teaching and social work

Another problem is that many graduates, tied emotionally to their home grounds, aren t going where the jobs are — in the booming southwest south and west, rather than in the northeast and midwest For example Houston Tex, has a 4 7 per cent unemployment rate compared with 7 5 percent nationwide Richard Walker, vice president of the M David Lowe Employment Agency there says that the city is begging for skilled workers including engineers, accountants, lawyers, chemists, oil riggers and secretaries

On the industrial level Evans sees a big shortage of welders, machinists, mechanics and skilled repairmen for our vast and complex machinery The problem here, he says is the influence of white-collar snobbery It takes a smart person to be a good machinist — but a person able enough to do the work might be directed instead into respectable government employment (which he could hate) If he became a machinist or repairman on the other hand, and also took business management and accounting courses, he might be able to open his own business

Evans says that industry also has to share some of the blame for the shortage of technical workers. Businessmen make little attempt to forecast their probable future job needs and communicate these conclusions to the schools and colleges They forecast what machines they expect to sell, but not where the people will come from to put these sophisticated machines to use

For a broader view of the kind of work you might do write to a nearby community college for a brochure Another mind-opener is a free U S Office of Education brochure called "You can be more than you are a listing of 129 interesting technical careers Write to Careers Box 111 Washington, D C 20044

Soybeans Close With Limit Gain

Chicago (AP) — Soybeans closed with a limit gain of 20 cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday.

It marked the second limit close of the week and five straight days of advancing prices. The gain in that period totaled 75 cents.

Soybean meal futures were up nearly $8 a ton and oil 90 points higher Both end-products had advanced to limits along with oats earlier Oats closed 5¼ higher, corn 3½ and wheat 3

Iced broilers were uneven at the close of a very lightly traded session

Concern over a lack of moisture in the Middle West higher temperatures thinning stocks and a belief that the soybean crop might be lower than expected again contributed to the generally bullish mood in the soybean complex

Cattle Prices Rise Sharply

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Butcher hogs turned topsy-turvey on the Omaha livestock market Thursday, while buyers faced with a short supply and a need to fill out the rest of this week's scheduled kill sent cattle prices sharply higher for the second straight day.

The day's hog run was estimated at about 3,000 head.

The cattle run was estimated at only about 1,000 head. The small run came under agressive demand, and the trade was active. Steers and heifers took the spotlight, trending mostly $1.00 higher, while cows were left in the dust, turning 50-cents to $1.00 lower.

Choice steers weighing in from 1,025-to-1,200 pounds cleared from $41.50-$42.50, while good and low-choice offerings cashed from $39.00-$40.50.

A load of choice and prime heifers averaging 1,025-pounds moved at $42.25. Choice 900-to-1,025-pound she stock sold from $41 00-$42.00, with good and low-choice animals selling from $38.00-$40.50.

Sheep were nominal.

Hope Helps Spark Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — Hopes for a break in the recent rise of interest rates helped spark a moderate rally in stock prices Thursday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks climbed 6.30 to 964.39, for its best daily showing in nearly two weeks.

Gainers outstripped losers by about a 2-1 margin inthe overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed ssues.

Big Board volume stepped up a bit to 16.10 million shares from 14.56 million on Wednesday.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, came to 19.44 million shares as of the close in New York.

Brokers said investors seemed to have been encouraged by signs that interest rates had stabilized in the past few days after a substantial rise from their lows earlier in the year.

Hopes also seemed to circulate that weekly Federal Reserve statistics would show enough slack in the money supply to allow the Fed enough room to go easy on its credit policies.

The Fed figures, issued at the market close, showed a $1 billion rise in the money supply for the latest reporting week.

Whether that would come as a disappointment to traders was left to be seen in Friday's stock market activity.

The rally Thursday also seemed to draw some impetus from generally bright view of the economic outlook in a mid-year report from the White House.

Alan Greenspan, President Ford's top economic adviser, said the evidence pointed to a continued strong recovery, with a slightly lower rate of inflation than had been projected earlier for the year.

Another plus cited by brokers was the effort toward a durable cease-fire in the civil war in Lebanon.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index advanced .82 to 99.56, and the NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was up .43 at 53.05.

Job Seekers—Check 'Open' Professions

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — All over the country, high school and college graduates will be scrambling for non-existent jobs this month while, at the same time, thousands of other slots go unfilled. The openings seem principally to be in technological fields that young people have never heard of, in professions that their education hasn't trained them to consider.

Their parents generally don't know much about these jobs either, says Van M. Evans, president of Deutsch, Shea and Evans, a prominent manpower consulting firm. All that many of them can do is advise their children to do what they did — "be a secretary" . . . "be a teacher" . . . "take the civil service exam." When, in fact, two years of technical training could put a young man or woman into an expanding field, with rising salaries, and job mobility that would serve them all their working lives.

If parents can't help their children with these "new" jobs, students might at least hope to turn with confidence to guidance counselors. But here Evans is similarly discouraging. "Most counselors have never worked in industry," he says. "They have no idea what it's like, and or what variety of jobs exist there."

A few companies have taken the time to conduct guidance teachers through plants and offices, showing them all the jobs and describing the requirements. But most guidance teachers work only with printed materials that don't give them a real-life sense of the kinds of careers available.

Among the "open" professions, Evans lists dental hygenists, medical lab technicians, X-ray technicians, chemists, dieticians, draftsmen, environmental technicians, mechanical, civil and industrial engineers, and oil-industry technicians. These skills are taught in many community colleges — sometimes in conjunction with local employers — but social pressure steers many students elsewhere. It's more prestigious to go to a four-year school and study teaching (even if you can't get a job) than to study drafting in a two-year college and pick up liberal-arts learning on the side.

But Evans disagrees with those discouraged college graduates who say that a diploma and a quarter will get you a cup of coffee. "Society is becoming more complicated all the time," he says. "A technician with little education in other areas is not going to be promoted to an executive level, or be able to run his own business well."

The key is to combine your general learning with specific job skills, rather than train for overfilled "liberal arts" professions like teaching and social work.

Another problem is that many graduates, tied emotionally to their home grounds, aren't going where the jobs are — in the booming southwest, south and west, rather than in the northeast and midwest. For example, Houston, Tex., has a 4.7 per cent unemployment rate compared with 7.5 percent nationwide. Richard Walker, vice president of the M. David Lowe Employment Agency there, says that the city is begging for skilled workers, including engineers, accountants, lawyers, chemists, oil riggers and secretaries.

On the industrial level, Evans sees a big shortage of welders, machinists, mechanics and skilled repairmen for our vast and complex machinery. The problem here, he says, is the influence of white-collar snobbery. It takes a smart person to be a good machinist — but a person able enough to do the work might be directed instead into "respectable" government employment (which he could hate). If he became a machinist or repairman, on the other hand, and also took business management and accounting courses, he might be able to open his own business.

Evans says that industry also has to share some of the blame for the shortage of technical workers. Businessmen make little attempt to forecast their probable future job needs and communicate these conclusions to the schools and colleges. They forecast what machines they expect to sell, but not where the people will come from to put these sophisticated machines to use.

For a broader view of the kind of work you might do, write to a nearby community college for a brochure. Another mind-opener is a free U.S. Office of Education brochure called "You can be more than you are," a listing of 129 interesting technical careers. Write to Careers, Box 111, Washington, D.C., 20044.

Cattle Prices Rise Sharply

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Butcher hogs turned topsy-turvey on the Omaha livestock market Thursday, while buyers faced with a short supply and a need to fill out the rest of this week's scheduled kill sent cattle prices sharply higher for the second straight day.

The day's hog run was estimated at about 3,000 head.

The cattle run was estimated at only about 1,000 head. The small run came under agressive demand, and the trade was active. Steers and heifers took the spotlight, trending mostly $1.00 higher, while cows were left in the dust, turning 50-cents to $1.00 lower.

Choice steers weighing in from 1,025-to-1,200 pounds cleared from $41.50-$42.50, while good and low-choice offerings cashed from $39.00-$40.50.

A load of choice and prime heifers averaging 1,025-pounds moved at $42.25. Choice 900-to-1,025-pound she stock sold from $41.00-$42.00, with good and low-choice animals selling from $38.00-$40.50.

Sheep were nominal.

Soybeans Close With Limit Gain

Chicago (AP) — Soybeans closed with a limit gain of 20 cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday.

It marked the second limit close of the week and five straight days of advancing prices. The gain in that period totaled 75 cents.

Soybean meal futures were up nearly $8 a ton and oil 90 points higher. Both end-products had advanced to limits along with oats earlier. Oats closed 5¼ higher, corn 3½ and wheat 3.

Iced broilers were uneven at the close of a very lightly traded session.

Concern over a lack of moisture in the Middle West, higher temperatures, thinning stocks and a belief that the soybean crop might be lower than expected again contributed to the generally bullish mood in the soybean complex.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Friday, June 11, 1976

Friend of Astrology: Charles O. Finley. Insurance magnate. Owner of Oakland Athletics baseball team. Finley says that manager Chuck Tanner will be briefed on player's horoscopes and astrological cycles. Will this help the team? Time will tell. Baseball and astrology — perhaps the two will go together. We'll see.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emphasis on communication, long-distance, journey, study, perception, dealings with Gemini, Virgo persons. What was a deep, dark secret is revealed — and is harmless. Stop being afraid! Assert yourself; analyze data.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Indirect approach works best for you. Avoid family confrontations. Seek harmony; eliminate discord. Another Taurus — and Libran — could be in picture. Emphasis on costs, greater understanding of insurance, taxes, special funds affecting partner, mate.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Perception is more important than usual — pay heed to subtle signals, hints, inner voice. Pisces, Virgo could figure prominently. See as is — don't rush to judgment. Delay of game works to your advantage.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Obtain hint from Taurus message. Remain flexible. Leave options open. Be responsible for actions — accept responsibility. But don't become unnecessarily involved in disputes, debates. Remember health, diet resolutions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Finish rather than initiate project. Close deal. Highlight force in sense that creative urges find outlets. Being overly timid now would be an error. Aries, Libra could be part of scenario. Young person is more disillustioned than deceived.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Litigation can be avoided if you double check rights, permissions. Be positive concerning property value, ownership. Leo, Aquarius might figure in important ways. Accent on solidity, basic structure, legal agreement.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Follow through on hunch. Teach, learn, gather data. Relative may mean well but could also be suffering from delusions of grandeur. Know it and act accordingly. Short trip may be waste of time unless facts are reviewed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Highlight versatility. Be willing to expand horizons. Popularity increases. Emphasis on payment, collection, reward as result of creative endeavors. Gemini, Sagittarius could be in picture. Count change — be "sure" of checks.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Lunar cycle is such that you can secure position. Aura of romance, glamour is evident. Illusion figures prominently. A Piscean explains things in poetic manner. What had been taken for granted should receive more attention. Property, home are spotlighted.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Some figures, calculations may not be on target. Know it and do some tests, verification studies. Be positive concerning appraisals. Imporrant discussion, meeting takes place behind the scenes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on what is real, what can be attained as contrasted to fantasy. You come to terms with actuality — you find out about costs, expenditures, collections. Protect assets. Don't give up something for nothing.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You get boost from unexpected source. Career aspirations are not out-of-reach. Your style is imprinted. Very important person is impressed and you'll know it. Another Piscean — and a Virgo — could be in picture.

IF JUNE 11th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are an excellent teacher, drawn to social work, highly-intuitive, nervous, impulsive. unsatiable curiosity. Leo persons play key roles in your life. New start this month proves beneficial. Cycle which has seen you restricted, discouraged by delay, is just about finished. You'll soon be making creative changes and travel will also be featured.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Local Share Of Red Cross Fund $15,600

The Lancaster County Red Cross Chapter's share of the national Red Cross disaster assistance fund is $15,600, and only $2,065 has been raised here so far, the chapter reports.

Nationally the Red Cross is trying to raise $10 million to help cover the costs of disaster assistance.

A rapid series of disasters, from floods in Idaho and Oklahoma to the devastation of Typhoon Pamela, is expected to cost the American Red Cross $33 million so far this year.

Red Cross disaster assistance includes food, shelter, clothing, medical and nursing care.

In Tulsa, Okla , where flood waters forced thousands from their homes, an estimated 1,000 families will need Red Cross help before the operation is completed.

In Guam and other Mariana Islands, the Red Cross is assisting at least 18,000 families. The U.S. trust territories were battered by 190-mile per hour winds of Typhoon Pamela in late May.

Donations to the Red Cross disaster fund can be mailed to the American Red Cross, Lancaster County Chapter, 1701 E St., Lincoln, Neb. 68508.

State Population Increasing Slowly

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nebraska's population jumped only about 5,000 persons from July 1, 1974 through July 1 of last year, according to provisional estimates made by the Bureau of Census

As of July 1, 1975, the state's population was estimated at 1,542,000 up from the 1,537,000 estimated the year before

However, compared with the 1970 revised and corrected census the state's population has increased by 56,000 persons or 3.8 per cent

The report estimates that 686,300 Nebraska residents live in "metropolitan" areas, while 855,400 live in "nonmetropolitan areas"

Douglas County remained the state's most populous with an estimated population of 411,000 on July 1, 1975 But that figure represented a drop of 4,300 from the estimate reported the year before

Since the 1970 census, which pegged Douglas County at 389 455 residents, the population increased an estimated 5 5 per cent through July 1 of last year

Lancaster County was the second most crowded county in the state with 185 400 an increase of 2 700 from the July 1 1974 estimate, and up 10 4 per cent from the 1970 census, according to the report

The fastest growing area during the first half of the current decade was Lincoln County (North Platte), which had a population of 29,538 in 1970 The estimated population as of last July 1 was 33,900, an increase of 14 9 per cent

The outlying Omaha suburban counties also showed fast growth during the period Sarpy County's population jumped 13 6 per cent, while Washington County showed a 10 1 per cent increase Outstate, Stanton County recorded a 12 3 per cent increase and Dakota County showed a 12 per cent increase.

The state's least populated areas, according to the report, are McPherson and Arthur Counties both with estimated populations of 600 on July 1, 1975 However, a special census taken last Aug 21 showed Arthur County with 565 residents, while a census last Aug 18, turned up 634 residents in McPherson County

Wayne County showed the biggest decrease in population over the first half of the decade The county's estimated population as of last July 1 was 8,800, a drop of 1,600 or 15 5 per cent from the 1970 census

Nuckolls County showed a 13 per cent decrease.

State Population Increasing Slowly

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nebraska's population jumped only about 5,000 persons from July 1, 1974 through July 1 of last year, according to provisional estimates made by the Bureau of Census.

As of July 1, 1975, the state's population was estimated at 1,542,000, up from the 1,537,000 estimated the year before.

However, compared with the 1970 revised and corrected census, the state's population has increased by 56,000 persons, or 3.8 per cent.

The report estimates that 686,300 Nebraska residents live in "metropolitan" areas, while 855,400 live in "nonmetropolitan areas."

Douglas County remained the state's most populous with an estimated population of 411,000 on July 1, 1975. But that figure represented a drop of 4,300 from the estimate reported the year before.

Since the 1970 census, which pegged Douglas County at 389,455 residents, the population increased an estimated 5.5 per cent through July 1 of last year.

Lancaster County was the second most crowded county in the state with 185,400, an increase of 2,700 from the July 1, 1974 estimate, and up 10.4 per cent from the 1970 census, according to the report.

The fastest growing area during the first half of the current decade was Lincoln County (North Platte), which had a population of 29,538 in 1970. The estimated population as of last July 1 was 33,900, an increase of 14.9 per cent.

The outlying Omaha suburban counties also showed fast growth during the period. Sarpy County's population jumped 13.6 per cent, while Washington County showed a 10.1 per cent increase. Outstate, Stanton County recorded a 12.3 per cent increase and Dakota County showed a 12 per cent increase.

The state's least populated areas, according to the report, are McPherson and Arthur Counties, both with estimated populations of 600 on July 1, 1975. However, a special census taken last Aug. 21 showed Arthur County with 565 residents, while a census last Aug. 18, turned up 634 residents in McPherson County.

Wayne County showed the biggest decrease in population over the first half of the decade. The county's estimated population as of last July 1 was 8,800, a drop of 1,600 or 15.5 per cent from the 1970 census.

Nuckolls County showed a 13 per cent decrease.

Council Bluffs Man Indicted For 4 Robberies In Nebraska

Omaha (AP) — Jackie Lee Bixler, 27, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, was indicted by a federal grand jury here Thursday in connection with four bank robberies, the FBI said.

Bixler was arrested June 2 in connection with a March 12 robbery of the Mid-City Bank Drive-In at Omaha.

He also was indicted Thursday in connection with robberies of the Southroads Bank at Bellevue on June 19, 1975, and July 17, 1975, and with a robbery of the Packers National Bank of Omaha on Sept. 2, 1975.

Bixler was held at Douglas County jail in lieu of $25,000 surety bond, to await trial in U.S. District Court here.
